Democrats Will Debate Civil Rights Plank Today

Southern Bloc Lines Up Forces For Battle Before Platform Makers

By Robert C. Albright
Post Reporter

Philadelphia, July 7.—Southerners walked and talked softly today as the Democratic resolutions committee started rolling out another keg of party dynamite—the 1948 Democratic platform.

Outnumbered in a committee heavily sprinkled with New Dealers, they were plainly angling for a trade on the explosive civil rights issue.

As former Gov. Chauncey Sparks of Alabama put it:

"If these boys up here are wise, they'll give the South something."

Civil Rights By-Passed

Democratic Resolutions Chairman Francis J. Myers (Pa.), meanwhile by-passed the civil rights fuse in today's opening hearings, reserving the intersectional fracas for tomorrow.

He heard witnesses instead, on farm planks, business planks, welfare, health and Federal aid to education planks, veterans, foreign relations and national defense planks.

Half a dozen other liberal Democrats on the 18-man platform drafting subcommittee were satisfied for the time being to give National Association of Manufacturers President Morris Sayre as rough a going over as any congressional committee ever gave a witness.

For nearly two hours, Myers, Mayor Hubert Humphrey of Minneapolis, former Gov. Maurice Tobin of Massachusetts, Representative Michael J. Kirwan of Ohio, Senator Theodore F. Green of Rhode Island and other members romped all over the NAM's call for more cuts in taxes and Government costs, its Taft-Hartley Act advocacy and opposition to a comprehensive Federal Housing program.

Declines to Argue

Sayre, for the most part, declined to talk back.

"I want to be helpful, not argumentative," he said.

Opening the hearings, Chairman Myers, meanwhile, enjoined the committee to build a platform "on which our candidates can run, in good conscience."

"Those who must walk behind their platform with their fingers crossed make a mockery of our political system," said Myers. "We don't want an exercise in ambiguity."

First formal civil rights testimony was slated for today, but four

Bear Carries Off Girl, 3, And Kills Her

Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., July 7 (AP).—The 3-year-old daughter of a forest ranger was carried off into the woods and killed by a bear in the isolated Marquette National Forest west of here today.

The child, Carol Ann Pomrankey, was found a quarter of a mile from her parents' lonely cabin by a posse of farmers and woodsmen. An angered trapper immediately organized a party to hunt the killer, tracked down the 200-pound black bear and killed him.

Carol Ann was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Pomrankey, whose cabin was located next to the Mission Hill fire tower, 30 miles northwest of here. Her father is a towerman at the isolated station.

The girl's mother witnessed the scene as the child was carried off about 2 o'clock this afternoon. The father was at the forest headquarters at the time, about 12 miles away.

Carol Ann, she told officers, was playing on the porch of the cabin when the bear lumbered out of the woods and ran for her.

The mother screamed and tried to frighten off the animal. But it grabbed the child and ran back into the woods.

First Arrivals at Philadelphia Generally Agree Truman Is 'In'

Philadelphia, July 7 (AP).—Democrats gave their national convention machinery a preliminary spin today and to many of them it looked as if President Truman would turn up with the winning number.

Early arrivals for the party meeting starting next Monday predicted for the most part that Mr. Truman is "in" for the presidential nomination. But the "Draft-Eisenhower" crowd, here and elsewhere around the country, was giving up grudgingly and in some cases not at all.

Truman supporters went into action to head off any attempt by a gallery mob to stampede the convention to Gen. Dwight Eisenhower.

Party bigwigs went over final details for the convention.

And on the top floor of the Bellevue-Stratford Hotel, a platform drafting team started hearings.

The once-big boom for General Ike appeared to be definitely sagging, in spite of efforts of diehards to keep it going.

But just as a precaution, convention Sergeant at Arms Leslie L. Biffle rounded up an extra police detail because he had heard "there will be an attempt to stampede the convention."

That was an obvious move to intercept any efforts by a howling crowd in the convention galleries to revive the Eisenhower campaign.

Eight years ago, the "We want Willkie" cries from the balconies were credited in part with swinging the Republican convention toward the nomination of the late Wendell L. Willkie.

Biffle told a reporter he figures it's Truman on the first ballot at this year's Democratic show. That was the idea, too, of Senator J. Howard McGrath of Rhode Island, Democratic national chairman.

McGrath came to town today after seeing Mr. Truman at the White House last night.

Even some Southern Democrats were saying it looked as if Mr. Truman would clinch the nomination, and that the main jobs of the convention would be to build a platform and pick a vice presidential candidate.

But William Ritchie, Nebraska Democratic chairman, told a reporter he still is getting "a lot of letters and telegrams" from people who haven't given up hope that Eisenhower somehow will be given the nomination the general has said he could not accept.

And in New York, Queens Democratic Leader James A. Roe said

Police Fire on Man Near Site Of Girl Slaying

Sex Offender Suspect Escapes in Park Under Cover of Darkness

Police last night fired on a suspected sex offender in Rock Creek Park, only a half mile from where 11-year-old Carol Bardwell was raped and slain 11 day ago.

Detectives have been keeping a close watch throughout the vast stretches of the park and last night at about 10 o'clock surprised a man in the wooded section off Piney Branch rd., near 16th st. nw.

Within a few minutes a tight police cordon had been thrown around the area but the suspect apparently escaped in the darkness.

Special Watch Kept

Police had been keeping a special watch in the area since last Saturday night when a man assaulted a woman who had entened the park to look for her dog and ripped part of her clothing from her.

Detective Sergt. Karl E. Howe first saw the suspect last night and when the man started to run fired several shots. He could not say whether they had taken effect. However, hospitals were alerted.

Sent to the scene to join in the search for the suspect were 14 police scout cars and cruisers, 2 of them park police cars. Quick to reach the scene also were Assistant Police Superintendent Lloyd Kelly and Inspector Robert S. Bryant and Capt. Robert V. Murray, first and second in command, respectively, of the detective bureau.

Possible Suspect in Murder

Bryant said the man fired upon by Howe was certainly a likely suspect in last Saturday night's assault and a possible suspect in the unsolved murder of the Bardwell girl.

Murray said when Howe sighted the man he was "running like a deer."

Police prowled through the dark recesses of the park in this area, poking flashlights into overhanging branches and obscuring undergrowth.

The man was described as a white man or light-skinned Negro, about 5 feet 9, weighing about 150 pounds, with short black hair and wearing a dirty white shirt and coffee-colored trousers.

Meanwhile, police in Baltimore continued to concentrate their attention yesterday on one suspect in the knife-slaying there of Marsha

Polio Strikes Three Here, First in 1948

Trio of Small Boys Are Hospitalized Within Past 6 Days

Infantile paralysis has struck three District children in the last six days, it was disclosed yesterday by the District Health Department. They are the first local victims this year.

"This should cause no public alarm, only extra precautions," declared Dr. James G. Cumming, director, communicable disease division, District Health Department. "We had exactly the same number of cases by this time last year."

At the same time, however, officials of the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis disclosed figures indicating polio has already reached epidemic stages in North Carolina, Texas and perhaps California. Virginia authorities have issued warning to residents to postpone trips into neighboring North Carolina unless absolutely necessary.

The District afflicted were identified as a 4½-year-old boy of the 800 block 30th st. se., stricken Tuesday; a 15-month-old boy of the 1400 block Columbia rd nw., and a 2-year-old boy of the 1400 block Somerset st. nw., both stricken last Friday. All were admitted to Children's Hospital.

Four other polio patients from Virginia are under treatment at hospitals here. They are two boys, 5½ and 9½ years old, from Alexandria; a 30-year-old woman from Arlington, and a 2-year-old girl from Chincoteague.

The total number of infantile paralysis cases treated in the District last year was 22 residents and 34 nonresidents.

Officials of the National Foundation were cautious yesterday in making any prediction as to how serious the polio season may be. They said they preferred to let records of United States Public Health Service show the present picture.

Jump to 360 in N. C.

The records showed that to the week ending last Saturday there were 360 polio cases reported this year in North Carolina, as contrasted to 22 cases during the same period in 1947; 646 in Texas to 72 last year, and 355 in California to 377 last year. California was among the States hit hard by polio last year, and its record to date this year was termed "not so good" by Foundation spokesmen.

The USPHS records further showed that to this time last year the District had three reported

Judge Gives Mother 10 Days After Sermon on Americanism

Judge George D. Neilson delivered a sermon on Americanism in Municipal Court yesterday as he sentenced a mother to spend 10 days in jail for beating her 5-year-old daughter.

The mother, Mrs. Anna Majerska, 38, a waitress, is a naturalized American citizen from Czechoslovakia.

Judge Neilson asked the mother how long she had been in this country.

"I have been here 10 years," she said, "and I love this country. It is a country of freedom and liberty."

"Yes," observed Judge Neilson, "and the reason we have freedom and liberty here is that we protect it against such things as brutality.

"Brutality is a thing of concentration camps, and it makes no difference over here what mothers in Czechoslovakia do. I am going to make an example of you for all parents and others who want to whip their children as you have done."

In finding Mrs. Majerska guilty of assault upon her daughter, Janet, Judge Neilson gave her a straight jail sentence of 10 days and a fine of $50 or 30 additional days in jail.

Mrs. Majerska, who until a few days ago lived at 1630 17th st. nw., had been accused of beating the child on May 10.

A policewoman, Pvt. Jacobette Novak of the Women's Bureau, testified she had gone to the 17th st. address May 13 after neighbors had complained, and that when she examined the child found her back covered with black and blue bruises.

She said Janet told her that her mother had beat her. With a stick? Yes, she sometimes used a stick, said the child, but usually she spanked her with her hand.

The policewoman said that when she spoke to the mother the latter

Arabs Expect Renewal of War Friday

Israel Reported In Favor of Truce Extension Urged By U. N. Mediator

Cairo, July 7 (AP).—An Arab League spokesman said tonight the Palestine war between Jews and Arabs will be resumed Friday.

Israel was reported to have accepted Count Folke Bernadotte's proposal to extend the Palestine truce beyond the Friday deadline. The Arab League spokesman said, however, there would be no extension of the four-week truce.

Asked if his statement meant that warfare would start again, the Arab replied, "I mean nothing else."

No Official Replies on Truce

Bernadotte, the United Nations mediator, has not received an official reply on the truce extension from either the Jews or Arabs. A well-informed source in Tel Aviv said, however, the Israeli government is willing to continue the truce during further negotiations.

The Jewish source said Israel will not deal now with Bernadotte's proposals to demilitarize Jerusalem and the Haifa port area. The Arabs already have rejected these proposals.

Abdul Rahman Azzam Pasha, secretary general of the Arab League, said the League will try to have its reply on the truce ready Thursday.

In Jerusalem, 225 Haganah soldiers evacuated Hadassah Hospital and Hebrew University. This left the twin American-financed institutions under control of United Nations security police.

King Farouk of Egypt visited the southern Palestine front. He spent last night with Egyptian soldiers.

A dispatch from Beirut, capital of Lebanon, said the care of 150,000 Palestine refugees in that country has created a serious problem.

The dispatch quoted the newspaper Alhadith as saying the refugees number about one-fourth of the country's population. The newspaper blamed the government for admitting more refugees than it could handle in the belief the Palestine conflict would end quickly. The paper suggested asking the Arab states to help care for the refugees.

In Palestine, fighting raged last night along the main Tel Aviv-Haifa highway. Information was sparse. Telephone lines between Tel Aviv and Haifa were cut.

2 Killed as C-47 Crashes on Night Training Flight

Greenville, S. C., July 7 (AP).—Two men were killed tonight when an Air Force C-47 on a routine night training flight crashed and burst into flames at Greenville Air Force base.

Cause of the crash has not been determined, base officials said. Firemen battled the flames from the high octane gasoline for about 30 minutes before they could get near the burning ship, which crashed about 10:20 p. m.

San Francisco, July 7 (AP).—A very light earth shock was reported at 7:35 p. m. (PDT) today from at least one sector of San Francisco and from Marin County, across the Golden Gate to the north. # Home Owner's Electric Bill Likely to Go Up 10c a Week

By Murrey Marder
Post Reporter

Increased electricity rates—probably effective on August billings—appeared virtually certain yesterday.

At the final hearing on proposals by Potomac Electric Power Co. for a rate increase, a District and a Federal witness both agreed Pepco should get a rate boost, but disagreed with Pepco on the increase required.

Pepco estimates the increases it seeks will raise the average home owner's electric bill about 10 cents a week. Its own proposals, ending a 28-year record of periodic rate reductions, will produce $2,200,000 more revenue from commercial customers, and $780,000 from residential customers, Pepco contends.

Both V. A. McElfresh, executive accountant and auditor for the Public Utilities Commission, and David A. Kosh, chief of the public utilities commission of the Bureau of Federal Supply, differed with these figures.

Kosh pointed out that the three-million-dollar estimate was based on operations in the calendar year 1947, or $3,100,000 for the 12 months ended April 30, 1948. But for the calendar year of 1948, he and McElfresh said, the Pepco rates would bring in an additional $3,250,000, or more.

Instead, they told the District Public Utilities Commission at the hearing in the District Building board room, Pepco's rates should be increased by $2,633,000 a year.

This, they said, would give Pepco a basic return of 5½ per cent on its $10,356,611 investment for the 12 months starting from the time new rates become effective.

Pepco has stated that for the 12 months ending April 30, its basic return was down to 4.45 per cent because of rising costs, and contended this was too low to attract investors for a contemplated 86-million-dollar expansion program.

To compensate for part of Pepco's smaller return on investment since the start of 1948, McElfresh and Kosh proposed using up $713,311 in a reserve fund—created last February to serve as a "buffer fund" in the hope it would eliminate or reduce rate fluctuations. The $713,311 was composed of "excess" Pepco profits and funds set aside for expected rate rebates.

While neither McElfresh nor

'Extermination' of Communists Held Vital to Peace in Peninsula Nation

Singapore, July 7 (U.P.).—British Commissioner-General Malcolm MacDonald, in a declaration amounting to total war against Communists in Malaya, announced tonight that Gurkha and Malayan troops, supported by British forces, are closing in on guerillas on several fronts.

MacDonald told a nationwide radio audience that "extermination" of the Communists is necessary, if Malayans are to live in peace. He said the wave of "terrorism" in Malaya was "part of a deliberate plan by Malayan Communists to start a violent revolution and capture by force the government of this country."

MacDonald said the government has invoked new powers permitting the secret trial of alleged Communists. This, he said, would "reduce to a matter of days . . . the expectation of life of a terrorist."

Agitators Included

He emphasized that the campaign against communism would be carried against "agitators who confer quietly in committee rooms and spread propaganda from secret hiding places," as well as armed bands.

MacDonald said more than 1000 persons have been arrested in the past three weeks and "others are being picked up every day."

Terrorism was so widespread that in Kuala Lampur, in the interior 200 miles northwest of Singapore, civilian and military police armed with automatic weapons cordoned off St. Mary's Church today during a memorial service for Sir Edward Gent, Malayan high commissioner killed in a London crash Sunday.

Singapore police reported five Chinese were murdered yesterday by guerillas in separate incidents—one within 10 miles of Kuala Lampur and another only eight miles from Singapore. Three were slain with chopping knives.

Military Action Held Necessary

MacDonald said the Communists comprised only 1 per cent of the population and were attempting to rule "not by majority votes, but by majority guns." A military campaign was necessary to eradicate them, he said.

MacDonald said between 3000 and 4000 Gurkhas, 1500 soldiers of a Malay regiment, plus "several thousand special guards, 12,500 police in the federation and 3000 in Singapore" have been thrown into the fight against communism. These forces, he said, "are being firmly supported by the three (British) armed services."

Earlier this week, the air command was transferred from Singapore to Kuala Lampur and the navy was alerted to watch the coast for possible Communist landings. Malaya is just across the narrow Malacca Strait from Sumatra, where Indonesian republicans have been fighting the Dutch since the war.

Rupture With Tito Is Final And Irrevocable, Says Pravda

Belgrade Reports Albanians Mistreat Yugoslav Citizens

Belgrade, Yugoslavia, July 7 (U.P.). Albania has expelled 94 Yugoslavia railroad workers after treating them "like criminals," and others have been arrested or maltreated, dispatches to Belgrade newspapers asserted today.

It was charged that Albanian officials had raided Yugoslav buildings, torn up pictures of Marshal Tito and refused food to Yugoslav residents.

The trade union newspaper Rad reported that the 94 expelled Yugoslavs had arrived at Titograd, on the Montenegrin frontier, under escort by armed Albanian guards.

The Yugoslavs were working on the railroad being constructed to the Yugoslav border.

Incidents complained of resulted from Albania's support of the Communist Bureau of Information attack on Marshal Tito and his fellow leaders for alleged deviation from the party line.

Ill feeling between Yugoslavia and Albania was emphasized when Albanian delegates walked out of the final meeting today of a war invalid association.

The walkout came when Maj Gen. Miloje Milojevitch, the chairman, referred to "false accusations" against Yugoslavia.

Despite the Tito-Cominform dispute the government announced to-

Communist Paper Foresees Replacement By 'Other Leaders'

By Marshall Andrews
Post Reporter

The official mouthpiece of the Kremlin has made it clear that Moscow's break with Marshall Tito of Yugoslavia is complete and irrevocable. The Washington Post learned last night.

Pravda, Communist Party spokesman, has declared that "in the opinion of diplomats" the present situation in Yugoslavia "makes reconciliation with Tito impossible." These same "diplomats," said Pravda, "foresee the replacement of Tito by other leaders" and that Tito and his followers will not be "given the opportunity to correct their mistakes."

In other words, Pravda says Josef Stalin is finished with Tito, and Pravda speaks for the Kremlin.

The Pravda story was based on a telegram to Stalin from the Central Committee of the Albanian Communist Party in which the Russian dictator was thanked for the "salvation of Albania from the fierce anti-Marxist Yugoslav leaders."

In their telegram, according to Pravda, the Albanian Communists accused Tito of attempting to "colonize" Albania and to "impose their own methods and their Trot-

Imminent Decision Confronts Truman on Control of A-Bombs

By John G. Norris
Post Reporter

President Truman faces an imminent decision on the direct and immediate control of the Nation's stockpile of atomic bombs.

Nonmilitary agencies of the Government wish the stockpile left under the direct jurisdiction of the Atomic Energy Commission subject to release only upon presidential order.

Military commanders want to have immediate, unobstructed and outright access to the bombs so that they can retaliate instantly to any possible foreign attack.

Congress did not finally settle the issue inasmuch as the Atomic Energy Act (the McMahon Act of 1946) left the President with power to convey the A-bomb stockpile to defense agencies at any time.

Military men are pressing for an immediate decision. Their anxiety has been sharpened by conditions abroad. At the same time, they are reconciled to leaving the situation undisturbed until the crisis in Berlin is passed. Any action now would be mistakenly associated with that development. An attempt to change over in a crisis would be undesirable because of diplomatic repercussions and practical military disadvantage of being in the midst of a change during an emergency. The central issues are older than the Berlin crisis and not directly related to it.

Plan Swift Retaliation

American strategy is that we will start no war, but if attacked, will launch a terrible counter-offensive. We rest our hopes on the threat of a retaliation so devastating that no aggressor will dare attack us.

The threat is an airborne assault of atomic bombs. But, say the military men, a counter-punch is of no use if it is blocked in the very beginning. Supposing we are

U.S. Tells Poles To Blame Reds For Reich Split

The United States advised Poland yesterday to complain to the Russians rather than the western powers about "the present deplorable division of Europe and Germany."

The State Department acidly rejected Poland's protest against a plan to set up a separate government in western Germany. The note laid full blame for the split on Moscow.

[Great Britain also rejected the Polish protest in a similar note dispatched yesterday. — Editor's note.]

Following up the demand submitted Tuesday by the United States, Great Britain and France that the Soviets lift the blockade of Berlin, Undersecretary of State Robert A. Lovett told the Polish Ambassador:

The division "is not of our making and certainly not in accordance with our wishes."

Israel Lets Palestine Jew, Convicted as Spy, Kill Self

Jerusalem, July 7 (AP).—A 42-year-old Palestine Jew, formerly a British army major, was convicted by the Israeli army of spying and permitted to kill himself, reliable sources said tonight.

At the same time the Stern group announced the trial, conviction and execution of a pretty young Jewess, Rosa Beiser, accused of spying for the British and Arabs.

Irgun Zvai Leumi, another Jewish extremist group, abducted four British subjects and charged them with "intelligence with the enemy."

The British Foreign Office in London said five British subjects were kidnaped.

The former British major was reported charged with espionage in Jerusalem. In high Israeli army councils in Tel Aviv he was told of his death sentence and left alone with a single shot revolver.

A few minutes later he killed himself to avoid public execution, these sources said. They gave this account of the incident:

The army charged he was in constant contact with Arab forces in Jerusalem's Old City while serving as senior officer of a British-owned utility company.

The Stern group announcement said Rosa Beiser was assistant to a British intelligence agent.

The Sternists recalled she "engaged herself in passing over to the British information against Jewish immigration into Palestine . . . that she was in contact with the enemy after May 15 (when the British mandate ended and Israel came into existence) and supplied the enemy with information regarding fortifications and military positions.

The announcement ended:

"Rosa Beiser was sentenced to death and the sentence was duly executed."

5 Yaks Spotted By English Pilot; U. S. Starts Coal Flights to City

Berlin, July 7 (AP).—The British announced tonight that five Russian Yak fighter planes were sighted in the British air corridor between Berlin and Hamburg yesterday.

British military government headquarters said a British European Airways pilot spotted the planes.

An announcement said one of the fighters "peeled off and flew within the comparatively close vicinity of the BEA pilot's aircraft."

"The Yak pilot did not fly dangerously near and in the BEA pilot's own words, 'I was not in the least worried,'" the statement added.

It declared "no importance or significance is attached to the report."

This was the first report of a British or American pilot sighting Russian fighters since the air lift to blockaded Berlin got under way. U. S. Air Force officers said American pilots had been given "routine" briefing to watch for Russian fighters. But none has been reported in the United States corridor.

Two United States fliers tonight reported "continuing interference" with their compases while flying over the Soviet zone en route to Berlin.

In a radio interview Lieut. Patrick V. Rogers of Valdosta, Ga., and S/Sergt. Jack Smith of Atlanta, Ga., said it appeared "deliberate" to them.

American pilots last week reported for the first time a strange beam pulled them off their courses. Officials began an investigation to see whether it came from the Russians.

British military government headquarters officially denied that the Russians protested the use of Havel Lake, in the western sector, by Sunderland flying boats bringing supplies to the city.

The announcement added, however, that the Russian inland water chief visited headquarters yesterday and "intimated he wished to ask urgent questions on the use of flying boats on the Havel Lake."

"As the responsible military government official, as well as the head of the transport branch, were absent on duty he was not able to pursue the matter further," the announcement said.

American planes went over the top for the first time in the air lift.

Flying by instruments in bad weather, United States pilots hustled in more than 1000 tons of supplies. The Americans had planned to fly at least half of the estimated 2000 tons of food a day needed for the western sectors. Since June 26 the Americans have brought in 5853 tons of supplies.

4 Ex-Army Officers Face Rail Rate Quiz

By Mary Spargo
Post Reporter

Four former Army officers will be called before a congressional subcommittee within the next few weeks to answer charges of helping the railroads "gouge" the Government on excessive wartime freight rates, Chairman George R. Bender (R., Ohio) said last night.

Bender, chairman of an Executive Expenditures Subcommittee holding hearings on Federal traffic control, said committee information indicates that a little group of five Army officers were in control of setting rates on Army freight during nearly all of the war.

One officer, he said, who refused to go along with setting rates extremely favorable to the railroads and unfavorable to the Government, was "frozen out" of conferences so the four were in control.

All Railroad Men

All were in the railroad business before they were commissioned in the Army, and all, Bender said, have now returned to railroad employment.

Bender's statement was made after a Justice Department official testified he had fruitlessly recommended a criminal investigation of certain Army and Navy officers who worked out Government freight rates with the railroads.

James E. Kilday, the Justice Department's chief of transportation, antitrust division, said he had asked for a Federal Bureau of Investigation inquiry but the matter had been "dropped." The investigation of officers was ruled out, he said, until after the rates had been proven "unreasonable."

300-Million Excess Alleged

The department has brought 16 cases before the Interstate Commerce Commission seeking to recover wartime charges. One case is now before the United States District Court here.

Bender said that recent secret testimony before his subcommittee indicated that the Government may have overpaid the railroads as much as 300 million dollars in freight rates during the war. Bender added that about 100 million a year is now being wasted through failure to coordinate the Government's efforts in negotiating freight rates.

Bender said he had asked the Department of the Army for the full records on about a dozen or so officers involved in rate setting during the war, including the records of employment before and after their military service. The information has not yet been officially furnished, Bender told reporters.

Reenter General Meyers

The Ohio Congressman refused to disclosed the names of officers who might be called, but a witness yesterday afternoon brought in the name of one military officer.

He was Maj. Gen. Bennett E. Meyers, retired, former second ranking officer for Air Corps procurement, who is now in District jail after a conviction in District Court here for inducing a witness to lie to a Senate subcommittee.

Thomas F. Proctor, 4221 S. 25th st., Arlington, a Government transportation expert, charged that the Nation's railroads entered into a wartime conspiracy to "rig" the rates and "defraud" the Government.

It was in this connection he suggested the committee study the activities of Meyers, who was charged by the Senate committee with reaping a golden harvest of profits from a dummy-held wartime corporation.

"As long as Gen. Benny Meyers was running the Air Forces Materiel Command at Patterson Field," Proctor said, "the Army Transportation Corps and the Air Forces traffic people in Washington were relegated to a position of secondary importance in traffic matters," Proctor declared.

"In this connection," he added, "this committee could very well direct itself to an investigation into the so-called service contracts, which General Meyers negotiated with the oil companies on aviation gasoline during the war. I can assure you that the revelations would be most interesting, and are pertinent to the current inquiry."

May Summon Meyers

Bender said it might be necessary to call Meyers before the subcommittee. He said he did not believe it would be "too difficult" to secure his presence even in view of where the once high-living general is now lodged.

Proctor, a transportation analyst for the Post Office Department, served in a similar capacity with the Army Transportation Corps during the war. He has had 24 years' experience in the transportation field.

He charged that the rail carriers "even persuaded the motor carriers to join them in 'rigging' rates for the United States Government," during the war, citing correspondence between the Association of American Railroads and the trucking industry.

Criticizes Rail Committee

Proctor, like Kilday of the Justice Department, was bitterly critical of a four-man railroad committee called the Traffic Executive Chairmen's Committee.

He termed it "the real cutting edge of the railroads' grandiose schme to gouge the Government on transportation of war material."

Kilday told the committee that these four men representing some 900 railroads had the final say in negotiating what rates the Government should pay the railroads. He charged they operated on a "take it or leave it" policy in recommending Government rates.

Because of this "thoroughly organized and cartelized industry," Kilday said, the Government was deprived of the right to shop around for rates among the different roads.

Kilday Hit as "Irresponsible"

Bender quipped to reporters later that so far as the Army was concerned it looked as if four men on each side of the table—four for the Army and four for the railroads—were all working for the same thing.

William T. Faricy, president of the Association of American Railroads, last night denounced Kilday's testimony as "irresponsible."

He said it was "not true" that the Government had been denied the right of shopping around for lower rates. That right, Faricy declared, was expressly reserved to any and all Government agencies.

Faricy said Kilday was airing "vague" charges of criminality. Some railroad men were assigned to railroad jobs with the military services during the war because of their technical experience, Faricy declared. He said those former railroad men called to war duty who have since returned to civilian employment were all under the direct supervision of officers who had never been railroad employes and who never had any connection with railroads.

6 Waves Become First Women to Be Sworn Into Regular Navy

Harris & Ewing

NOW, IT'S A CAREER—Secretary of Navy John L. Sullivan (left) and Capt. Joy B. Hancock (right), director of the Waves, yesterday attended ceremonies at which Rear Admiral George L. Russell, Navy Judge Advocate General, swore in the first six enlisted Waves into the regular Navy. The Waves transferred from the Naval Reserves to the regulars under the law setting up a permanent women's corps. The Waves (left to right) are Aviation Storekeeper 1/c Kay Louise Langdon; Chief Yeoman Wilma J. Marchal; Storekeeper 2/c Frances T. Devaney; Yeoman 2/c Edna E. Young; Teleman 2/c Doris R. Robertson, and Hospital Corpsman 1/c Ruth Flora

The Navy got its first permanent Waves yesterday.

Six women who have been on active duty in the Naval Reserve were sworn into the regular Navy. They were the first to take the oaths as regulars in arms since Congress passed a law permitting women to do so.

The Navy staged a big ceremony as it got the jump on the Army and the Air Force. The first Wacs and Wafs will not be sworn in as regulars for several weeks yet.

Navy Secretary Sullivan and other high ranking officials watched as Rear Admiral George L. Russell, Navy judge advocate general, administered the oath to these Waves:

Kay Louise Langdon, Burton, Wash., aviation storekeeper, first class; Wilma Juanita Marchal, Tell City, Ind., chief yeoman; Frances Teresa Devaney, Baltimore, storekeeper, second class;

Truman Faces New A-Bomb Decision

hit so hard in the initial attack that we cannot launch this paralyzing retaliation?

Advocates of a change in the control of American A-bomb stockpiles argue that the present divided responsibility for the "supreme weapon" is dangerous.

Under the Atomic Energy Act of 1946 and presidential ruling, the Atomic Energy Commission retains custody of the completed A-bombs. If a war emergency demands their use, the President of the United States must order the AEC to turn over a specified number of such weapons to the armed forces and must personally order their use.

Fear "Atomic Pearl Harbor"

The military men who favor a change in this system argue that there is grave danger in this divided responsibility. They warn of an "atomic Pearl Harbor," in which a devastated American Government will not be able to launch the all-important counterattack. And of a divided responsibility which would invite such an assault.

Airmen say that our strategic air force now is an dhas been on a "near war alert" that it could get from 75 to 80 per cent of its 350 B-29's into the air on their way across the globe within 4 to 12 hours after receiving orders from headquarters at Andrews Field, Md.

But that is with its "available bombs," and the airmen say that the added time to take over possession of the A-bombs which make them potential "enders of the war" might be fatal.

Officials in a Quandary

They make a fairly convincing case. But there is another side of the story. The pros and cons have many honest officials in a quandary.

In the first place, say the opponents of the change, Congress decided to put custody of the atomic bomb stockpile in the AEC, after long and deliberate consideration. The legisaltors ruled that control of such a terrific weapon should be in civilian—not military—hands.

In the second place, fears that the AEC would not have the bombs ready are without basis, say opponents of the move. Procedure has been worked out to assure that they will be ready for the Strategic Air Command to load aboard its B-29s when the President orders, it is said.

Insist on Proper Safeguards

Worries of military men that "all the bolts may not be tightened" are the usual ones of combat crews when dependent upon technicians, whether in or out of the military service, say the nonmilitary men.

More important, opponents of military control of the atomic bmb argue, is that proper safeguards be put around irresponsible use of this potential world-wrecker. Keep it out of the hands of some "crazed lieutenant colonel" or "potential Napoleon," it is urged.

It is indeed a problem—one which must not be considered hastily. Top-level military men agree that proper safeguards must surround use of the A-bomb. But they say this can be handled adequately—still with civilian direction—within the National Military Establishment. That is the name of the Armed Forces—the Army, Navy, Air Force and Independent boards—set up under Defense Secretary James Forrestal by the Unification Act of 1947.

Executive Order All Needed

They say this will give both civilian control and military readiness of the all-important weapon. Unlike other proposed changes in the Nation's atomic setup, a change of the custody of the atomic bomb stockpile can be effected by executive order. The Atomic Energy Act of 1946 says:

"All rights, title and interests within or under the jurisdiction of the United States, in or to any fissionable material now or heretofore produced, shall be the property of the (Atomic Energy) Commission . . .

"The President from time to time may direct the Commission (1) to deliver such quantities of fissionable material or weapons to the armed forces for such use as he deems necessary in the interest of national defense."

This would seem to give the President full authority to transfer custody of the atomic bomb to the military. Whether he will do so or not is yet to be decided. There are arguments on both sides. None have to do with the current world crisis.

Military men agree that it might be wiser to delay a shift in control of our mightiest weapon to a time of relative calm, rather than be caught with our A-bombs down—so to speak.

There are indications, however, that a decision may be imminent—at least a preliminary one affecting current procedure over inspection and access to the A-bombs by the military.

U. S. to Send 24 To Danube Talks

Navy Asserts

Ship Moves Not Linked To Palestine

By the United Press

The Navy confirmed yesterday that seven United States warships have sailed from Naples and Istanbul, but it said the operations were "routine" and have "absolutely no connection" with the crisis in Palestine.

The vessels are units of the Sixth Task Fleet assigned to maneuvers in the Mediterranean.

Defense Secretary James Forrestal told a news conference later that the maneuvers were scheduled a long time before the Palestine problem came to a head and the warships are merely carrying out previous orders.

The Navy conceded that the carrier Palau and the cruisers Huntington, Fargo and Juneau sailed one day early from the Turkish port of Istanbul. But it said this was caused by a "speed-up" in the Mediterranean maneuvers and that there was "nothing urgent" about the departure.

It said the four vessels will stop at the Isand of Cyprus, 150 miles west of Palestine, for provisioning and then will "join elements of the Sixth Task Fleet for routine operations." The future destination was not given.

The carrier Kearsarge and the destroyers Massey and Meredith, it said, sailed from Naples for "routine flight operations." It added that the Massey will then go to Pireaus, Greece, but the port of call of the Meredith and Kearsarge "is not known at this time."

By the United Press

The State Department plans to send 24 officials and aides to Yugoslavia to represent the United States at the 10-power conference on freedom of navigation in the Danube, it was revealed yesterday.

The conference opens at Belgrade July 30. The American delegation, including about a dozen officials and the same number of assistants, will leave by ship within the next two weeks.

It is understood that Cavendish Cannon, American Ambassador to Yugoslavia, will head the group. He arrived here yesterday to discuss plans for the conference and to report on the significance of the rift between Yugoslavia's Marshal Tito and the rest of the Soviet Russian bloc.

Yugoslavs to Face Russians

The conference has taken on added significance in view of the split between Tito and the Russian-dominated Cominform. It will bring Yugoslav officials face to face with delegates from Russia and five Soviet satellites.

On the basic question of reopening the Danube to free navigation, however, Yugoslavia is expected to make clear that her interests are akin to Russia's.

As a result, the three western powers, the United States, Britain and France, face the prospect of being out-voted 7 to 3 in their attempts to open the Danube to east-west trade through international control.

American officials are unable to say yet how many American newsmen will be allowed to cover the parley. Yugoslavia was reported yesterday to have agreed that the meeting will be open to the press of the 10 powers and promised there will be no censorship.

Yugoslavs Delay Approval

But it was not clear immediately whether a limit in Belgrade facilities would place some restrictions on the number of newsmen permitted to attend.

Thus far only one American reporter has applied to the State Department for permission to cover the conference.

Meanwhile, the United States still is awaiting a word from Belgrade on final approval of a tentative agreement which provides that the United States give Yugoslavia some 50 million dollars in Yugoslav gold and assets in exchange for settlement of 20 million dollars in United States claims against Yugoslavia.

The United States has held the gold, which was deposited here for safekeeping during the war, pending settlement of the American claims.

The agreement was reached here by Yugoslav-American negotiators 12 days ago.

Some diplomats speculated that Tito might have refused to approve the agreement for fear of incurring further wrath from the Soviet bloc. But many American officials believe the delay is simply a question of government "red tape."

Czechs Probe Pro-Benes Demonstration

Prague, Czechoslovakia, July 7 (AP).—The government ordered a probe of the Sokol Congress today as Czechs again staged popular demonstrations for former President Eduard Benes.

The Prague radio said "the question of future participation of foreign delegations in the Slet (the Bohemian name for the Sokol Society Congress) will be studied" by the Communist-dominated cabinet.

The decision to investigate the cultural and athletic organization followed a passive demonstration against Communist President Klement Gottwald during Tuesday's Sokol parade. The marchers cheered for Benes and for Premier Tito of Yugoslavia, now in trouble with the Communist parties of other eastern European nations.

Early today police broke up groups which traveled about the city cheering Benes, singing the national anthem, and even paying apparent homage to the late Woodrow Wilson.

Another development was an order for a Communist review of the high command of the Czech army. Gen. J. Prochazka, the army's education director, said that henceforth the army would have political instruction and that "he who has no positive attitude toward the people cannot serve as a commander."

In Tuesday's Sokol parade there were Yugoslav, Russian, Polish, Triestine and Bulgarian delegations marching. Many American Czechs who took part waved American flags.

Early today, one large group cheered Benes in Vaclaska Namesti, Prague's central square. Police shooed them away and they marched down Hoover Avenue to the Wilson railroad station, named for the late U. S. President.

There they stood with bared heads and sang the national anthem in front of the pedestal where Wilson's statue stood before it was destroyed by the Nazis.

Tito's Territorial Claims Linked to Soviet Dispute

Paris, July 7 (NYHT).—The French Communist weekly, Action, in an article published here today, said that Yugoslavia's persistent territorial claims to Trieste, Austrian Carinthia and Macedonia were strongly involved in its current dispute with the Soviet Union and the Cominform.

This source of the trouble has been suspected for some time by western observers but never before has a Communist organ confirmed the suspicion.

Action intimated that Moscow was seeking some sort of an overall settlement with the western powers but that its efforts were blocked by Marshall Tito's intransigeance. It also indicated that the Yugoslav leader prevented the Soviet Union from assisting Italian Communists during the April political campaign.

Pravda Says Tito Break Final

zkyite authority on Albania and the Albanian Communist Party."

Pravda said the telegram also spoke of "the open treachery of the leaders of Yugoslavia who have betrayed Marxism, Leninism and socialism and who have begun an open struggle against the glorious mother of socialism, the U.S.S.R.

Publication of this article in Pravda was regarded here as removing any possibility that the rift between Belgrade and Moscow might somehow be patched up. It also was regarded as indicating the finality of the loss to Yugoslavia of her Albanian satellite, though the tie between the two countries had been thought unbreakable.

Something ominous was seen also in Pravda's reference to anticipated replacement of Tito "by other leaders" and in the assertion that Tito and his followers would be given no "opportunity to correct their mistakes."

35 Reservist Drills Needed To Avoid Draft

Defense Secretary Forrestal has ruled that reserve units must hold 35 scheduled drills a year in order for their draft-age members to be exempt from induction.

He told a news conference yesterday that he acted on recommendations of the Army, Navy and Air Departments when establishing the requirements.

Membership in a Federally recognized National Guard unit also exempts a man.

The ruling gives draft exemption to those men who by midnight of June 24 (the day President Truman signed the draft bill) were enlisted in reserve organizations having a minimum of "35 scheduled drills or training periods, or days of active Federal service, or any combination thereof, per year."

Registration August 16

The Draft Act provided for exemption of men in reserve units, but did not specify the qualifications of the units. That was left to the Secretary of Defense.

Registration of men 18 to 25 for the draft has been tentatively set for August 16. The date will not become official, however, until President Truman issues a proclamation formally designating it.

Actual drafting cannot begin before September 22—90 days after Mr. Truman signed the new draft law.

Attending the news conference with the Defense Secretary were Army Secretary Royall, Chairman Thomas J. Hargrave of the Munitions Board, and military officers in charge of personnel matters.

No Scale-Down Planned

Forrestal was asked if current trends in Europe—Yugoslav's quarrel with Moscow, the anti-Communist vote in Finland and other developments—had caused any prospective scale-down in planned American military expansion.

"The answer to that is no," the Secretary said, in a tone of finality.

Then he added that "until the United Nations is a going concern" this country must maintain the "adequate military posture" urged by Secretary of State Marshall.

Belgrade Reports Albanians Mistreating Yugoslav Citizens

day it had received the invitations sent it by the Big Four powers, including Russia, to summon a conference here July 30 on Danube navigation regulations.

"In conformity with these notes the Yugoslav ministry of foreign affairs will address invitations to the governments of Bulgaria, Czechoslovakia, Hungary, Romania and the Ukraine to send their delegation to the conference," Director of Information Velizan Savic announced.

These countries, all members of the Cominform (with the Ukraine being represented by Russia) will attend in addition to the Big Four powers because their territory touches the Danube.

Also, Savic said, Austria will be invited in an advisory part.

The conference is to draft a new convention on Danube shipping in accordance with the decision of the Big Four Council of Foreign Ministers in December, 1946.

Despite the rupture of economic relations between Yugoslavia and Albania as the result of the attack, and reported Albanian insults to this country, reliable sources said no incidents had been reported on the frontier and that there had been no Yugoslav troop movements.

Meanwhile, two Slav minority leaders have been expelled from the Hungarian Workers Party for opposing the party's condemnation of Marshal Tito, official Communist communiques announced today.

Yugoslav Minister of communications, Todor Vujasinovic, warned "western imperialist sharks" there was nothing for them to be happy about in Tito's break with the Cominform.

He said a camel will be drawn through a needle's eye before Yugoslavia joins the western ranks.

Vujasinovic also appealed again to Josef Stalin for understanding, repeating that Yugoslavia will always remain Russia's friend.

Slav Moscow Staff Voice Faith in Tito

London, July 7 (U.P.).—Members of the Yugoslav Legation staff in Moscow cabled today their "unshakeable faith" in Marshal Tito and the Yugoslav Communist Party, the Tanjug News Agency reported from Moscow.

"With Tito through the struggle; with Tito to socialism," the message said, according to the agency.

U. N. Makes Appeal To Extend Truce

Lake Success, July 7 (AP).—The United Nations Security Council late today appealed to the Jews and Arabs to extend the truce in Palestine. The vote was 8 to 0.

Russia, the Soviet Ukraine and Syria abstained on the ballot, which was taken on a British resolution. The expiration date of the new truce was left open. The present armistice expires Friday.

Neither the Arabs nor Jews have yet officially declared whether they will agree to extend the truce. However, in Cairo an Arab League spokesman said there would be no continuation of the cease-fire.

Soviet Delegate Andrei A. Gromyko said he could not support the extension move because of the truce conditions drafted by Count Folke Bernadotte, the U. N. mediator.

The vote came in a spirited session where Gromyko charged that Bernadotte's peace proposals "could only have been conceived in the Foreign Office of the United Kingdom" and an Arab delegate walked out in a row over recognition of the new Jewish state of Israel.

Gromyko delivered a lengthy attack on the British, once declaring that Bernadotte was just a front for the London government. The Soviet Deputy Foreign Minister said the U. N. mediator was attempting to overthrow the U. N. decision to Partition Palestine and was trying to turn over Arab territory to Trans-Jordan. He added that Trans-Jordan was under a puppet king (Abdullah), financed by the United Kingdom.

Jamal Husseini, representative of the Arab Higher Committee, left the U-shaped table as a protest against the action of Council President Dmitri Z. Manuilsky in designating Aubrey S. Eban as a representative of Israel.

The Arabs have refused to recognize the Jewish state, and Husseini said he could not assist in Council deliberations so long as the term Israel was used.

A fast bit of work by two surgeons, who sewed the finger back on made Sherry Lynn none the worse off. Today the finger was returning to normal. It happened at Los Angeles

Veto Limits Urged by Little U. N. Assembly

Lake Success, July 7 (NYHT.)—The Soviet-boycotted Little Assembly approved sweeping recommendations today which urge the Big Five powers to agree to drop their Security Council veto rights in cases involving peaceful settlement of disputes, applications for United Nations membership, and the so-called "double veto" decisions on whether issues can be vetoed.

These would thus recommend elimination of the veto in the same fields in which the Soviet Union has cast 24 of its 26 vetoes in 2½ years of troubled U. N. history. The only Soviet vetoes remaining, under such agreement, would have been those blocking resolutions last August 19 to issue outright orders against Balkan hostilities—under the punishment sections of the Charter.

More than 40 nations agreed on the recommendations, outgrowth of a detailed study since March 15 of 28 possible types of Security Council decisions. The whole program will be forwarded to the General Assembly in Paris this September.

The United States backed the complete list adopted today, but Great Britain and France objected to surrendering the "double veto" claim to decide whether a case is eligible for veto. Britain also offered a reservation in which it "doubted the wisdom of singling out Chapter VI"—the peaceful settlements section of the Charter—"and of abolishing the veto in relation to that particular chapter."

Veterans Get Extension To Renew Insurance

National service life insurance "term" policies may be renewed for five years, the Veterans Administration said yesterday.

The first of the policies, issued to men in service in October, 1940, will expire next October unless renewed. From 1946 onward the term policies were issued for five instead of eight years.

Meanwhile, more than 10 million veterans who have allowed term insurance to lapse have until July 31 to reinstate their policies without a physical examination.

200,000 Red Troops Routed In East Honan, Chinese Claim

Nanking, China (Thursday), July 8 (U.P.).—Powerful Nationalist forces have routed 14 Communist armies totaling 200,000 troops in east Honan Province, smashing the Chinese Reds' main strength in central China, the government said today.

Nationalist military dispatches, hailing the operation as the "biggest victory of the civil war," said a 300,000-man ground force, supported by heavy air coverage, recaptured all strategic points in east Honan and turned back Communist reinforcements from Shansi Province after a furious seven-day battle.

The Communists were said to have lost more than 8000 men in dead and seriously wounded.

A government spokesman said the dispatches indicated the Communists were surrounded in east Honan. He said Communist Gen. Chen Yo's first and eleventh armies tried to open an escape route into Kwantung or Kwangsi Provinces, but were "decimated" by ground and air attacks.

Socialists Join Reds to Vote Cut in French Arms Budget

Paris, July 7 (U.P.).—Socialists deserted the government majority in the National Assembly today and voted with the Communists to reduce France's large peacetime military budget by 20 per cent.

A government crisis threatened. But Premier Robert Schuman, undaunted by the split in his middle-road coalition, authorized Armed Forces Minister Pierre-Henri Teitgen to demand a vote of confidence on the budget "whenever he thinks it is necessary" during debate tonight and tomorrow.

When they learned of Schuman's firm stand, the Socialists asked for and obtained adjournment of the assembly at 10:30 p. m. and immediately went into caucus to decide their stand.

Schuman made the decision to risk his government again during a four-hour cabinet meeting tonight. The Socialists voted with the Communists on a major issue for the first time since March 22, 1947, when Premier Paul Reynaud threw the Communists out of the government.

The military budget amendment, introduced by the Socialists, was approved over Teitgen's objections by a vote of 276 to 183. The Popular Republicans and the radial Socialists, the two other parties in the Schuman coalition government, voted against the amendment. The extreme rightists and the DeGaullists did not vote.

British Spot Yak Fighters

States Air Force attacked the growing fuel shortage in this beleaguered city. Shortly after noon the first coal-laden plane nosed into Berlin with 110 bags of coal.

The U. S. military government made public tonight a complaint from Marshal Vassily D. Sokolovsky, Soviet commander, against Anglo-American stoppage of deliveries from their zones into the Soviet zone. The Anglo-American action was taken after the Russians put on their blockade.

Sokolovsky, in a letter dated July 3 to the American commander, Gen. Lucius D. Clary, charged the Americans and British had "grossly violated" interzonal trade agreements.

The Russian said he found it hard to understand "your expressed desire to discuss trade relations between our zones with measures being applied by you in practice."

Replying to Sokolovsky on July 5, Clay said he hoped "technical difficulties which have necessitated this disruption of trade relations can be overcome at an early date."

Meanwhile the East-West stalemate on Germany hardened. The Communists announced (1) they are drawing up a constitution for a German republic and (2) a two-year plan to link Berlin economically with the Soviet zone.

Bids to Be Opened July 29 on Start Of Clinical Center

Bids for construction start of the new 40-million-dollar clinical center, National Institute of Health, in Bethesda, will be opened July 29, the Public Buildings Administration announced yesterday.

Initial bidding, they said, is to be on grading the grounds, roads, parking areas and walks and construction of the substructure for the 13-story hospital and research center. Such bids will be opened at 2 p. m., July 29, in Room 7004, Federal Works Agency, 19th and F sts. nw. It is specified that the work bid on be completed in 350 days.

The next contract, said PBA officials, will be for the rest of the main building, with bids to be invited next spring.

U.S. Tells Poles To Blame Reds

sible for preventing these countries from cooperating in the general recovery program for Europe."

Lovett's note was in reply to a protest filed June 18 by Poland against last month's six-power agreement at London to go ahead with plans to revive western Germany without participation of Russia and her satellites. First steps already are being taken to merge the American, British and French occupation zones. Lovett addressed his note to Ambassador Josef Winiewicz and used it as a vehicle for a fresh indictment of Soviet actions since VJ-Day. Britain rejected a similar Polish protest Tuesday.

Bill of Particulars Against Soviet

Lovett ticked off these points:

Failure of the Big-Four foreign ministers to agree on Germany's future was due largely to the "intransigent attitude" of Russia.

In the Allied Control Council at Berlin, Russia up to last March had vetoed 69 times the agreed decisions of the other three powers. This was nearly three times the combined number of vetoes wielded by the others.

The refusal of the Soviet bloc to join with 16 western European nations in a common recovery effort, with American aid, was at Russia's instigation.

Russia's "unwillingness" to join the other powers in a long-term treaty to keep Germany disarmed has made "more complicated" the problem of postwar European security.

The Polish protest was based on the contention that the western powers, which were joined at London by representatives of Belgium, Holland and Luxembourg were "not competent and not empowered" to deal with Germany in view of the wartime agreements binding all the allies to act in concert.

World Labor Treaty Will Be Considered

San Francisco, July 7 (AP).—The International Labor Conference tentatively decided today to consider an international treaty on labor clauses in public contracts at its 1949 conference.

A final record vote will be taken Friday.

Police Use Tear Gas In Strike

Rome, July 7 (AP).—Police riot squads hurled tear gas bambs in Milan today after workers occupied part of a strike-bound food factory.

Tanks, armored cars and jeeps blockaded the area for more than two hours while police dispersed a fighting, jeering crowd of workers.

Several persons were bruised in fist fights. An agent of the struck Motta food products factory was injured by a flying tear gas bomb.

Workers' spokesman said 30 strikers "symbolically" invaded part of the factory in protest against what they called management's attempts to continue operations.

Meanwhile a creeping paralysis of strikes threatened to cripple all of Italy. Gas workers planned a nation-wide walkout next Monday. Petroleum workers have been on strike eight days. Stocks of gasoline and oil are running dangerously low.

Reward Offered For Vandals at Chillum Manor

The Chillum Manor Committee of Homeowners last night voted to post $100 reward for arrest and conviction of anyone guilty of vandalism in the development, outside Hyattsville, Md.

Posting of the reward offer was nounced by William R. Turner, committee secretary. It was prompted, he said, after someone splattered black paint throughout one home ready for occupancy, during the holiday weekend.

Previous broken windows and other acts of vandalism at the 58-home development had been asscribed to children, Turner said. After last weekend's episode, however, he said he wondered if someone was attempting to "sabotage" the project, which was taken over by homeowners after the contractor failed to complete it.

President to Omit News Conference

President Truman will not hold his usual Thursday news conference this week, White House Press Secretary Charles G. Ross told reporters yesterday.

Ross said the President has "a great deal of work to do and had no announcement to make."

Crump Offers to Quit Memphis If Editor Can Disprove Charges

Memphis, Tenn., July 7 (AP).—Political Leader E. H. Crump today challenged Edward J. Meeman, editor of the Memphis Press-Scimitar, to accept an agreement by which one of them would leave town.

Crump

He called for "a showdown on this challenge." Meeman declined immediate comment. Later Kefauver accepted the challenge and said "let the hearing be conducted so that the verdict will be conclusive and final."

Crump's statement was delivered by Mayor James J. Pleasants in a 30-minute radio transcription broadcast over 11 stations.

The challenge was an outgrowth of the campaign for Democratic nomination to the United States Senate. Crump is supporting Judge John A. Mitchell. The Press-Scimitar has indorsed Representative Estes Kefauver.

Crump asked that a Chamber of Commerce committee be named to investigate charges he has made against Kefauver. If they are proved false, he said, he will "pick up my hat" and leave town. Otherwise, he added, Meeman should leave.

Crump reiterated his charges against Kefauver—that he voted too often with Representative Vito Marcantonio (ALP, N. Y.) that he opposes the filibuster and that his voting record against communism is bad.

Meeman, he added, "has used every trick to cover that shameful record."

Dewey Put on Spot With 3500 Teachers

Cleveland, July 7 (AP). — Gov. Thomas E. Dewey's ideas about the teachers' lobby and Federal aid for education overshadowed other questions today at the National Education Association Convention.

The Republican presidential nominee was put on the spot with 3500 delegates here by Columnist Drew Pearson. Pearson wrote that Dewey tried but failed to get the Governors' Conference at Portsmouth, N. H., last month to undertake a publicity campaign against the teachers. Pearson claimed the New York Governor said teachers' propaganda "is the biggest lie since Adolf Hitler."

Those were fighting words to most of the NEA members gathered here to represent 440,000 constituents in every State and Territory. The delegation from Dewey's home State of New York took the lead in both attacking and defending Dewey on the convention floor today.

NEA President Glenn E. Snow of St. George, Utah, said he was making every effort to have an answer from Dewey himself to read to the general session Thursday, next to last day of the five-day annual meeting.

James C. Hagerty, Dewey's executive secretary, sent an authorized message from the Governor yesterday asserting "it was never proposed by Governor Dewey or any other Governor to break the teachers' lobby" at the Portsmouth meeting.

But after hearing Pearson's charges and the reply telephoned by Hagerty to Dr. Martin Wilson, principal-elect of Christopher Columbus High School in New York City, several delegates demanded more positive denial from Dewey himself.

Pearson, meanwhile, dispatched a telegram late today to James A. Cullen, New York State NEA director, saying:

". . . Not only did my report of his -(Dewey's) conversation at Portsmouth come from a Governor who sat in on the session, but in addition I talked with Governor Dewey personally at his headquarters in Philadelphia June 20 at which time he repeated to me the same general ideas he expressed at the Governors' Conference, even referring to the teachers' lobby as 'damnable blackmail and Hitler's tactics.'

"I have talked to Dewey twice about teachers' salaries; and while I have high regard for him on most other issues, he has not been able to see that the education of American youth is more important than balancing a State budget."

The Dewey issue occupied most of this morning's general session and appeared likely to take much of Thursday's morning business period.

Miss Catharine Barret, a teacher in Porter Junior High School, Syracuse, N. Y., made a long statement in which she said "thousands of New York State's educators challenge any claim that support of education has been efficiently, progressively or adequately met by the Dewey administration."

Wilson then took the floor to defend Dewey and said he did not believe the Governor's "attitude has been antiteacher." Dewey, Wilson said, "has resented what he says are unfair statements by some teachers, which tend to make New York State look bad so far as education is concerned."

Kerr, Smith Top Men in Senate Race

Oklahoma City, July 7 (AP).—Oklahoma's Democratic United States senatorial candidate in November will be either former Gov. Robert S. Kerr or former Congressman Gomer Smith.

They were top men in Tuesday's primary, with Kerr's 124,185 votes putting him far ahead of Smith's 66,122 but without a majority of all votes cast for the 10 candidates. So Kerr must meet Smith, a former vice president of the Townsend Pension organization, in the runoff July 27.

The votes were from 3491 of the State's 3698 precincts.

Ross Rizley, present Eighth District Congressman, easily outdistanced five other candidates for the Republican senatorial nomination.

Two former Democratic Congressmen made strong comeback attempts. Both had been defeated in 1946.

Victor Wickersham of Mangum ousted Representative Preston Peden on the basis of nearly complete, but unofficial, returns. Unless there is a definite change of trend in the uncounted votes, Wickersham will avoid a run-off. He has been in the real estate business in Washington the last two years.

Lyle Boren, who served five terms in Congress before losing to Glen D. Johnson two years ago, topped a field of eight candidates in the Fourth District. He will face Tom Steed, secretary to three former Oklahoma Congressmen, in the run-off. Steed was only slightly behind on the basis of complete, unofficial returns.

Johnson gave up his congressional post this time to seek the senatorial nomination.

Other incumbent Congressmen ran well ahead of opponents. They were Representative George B. Schwabe, Republican; W. G. Stigler, Democrat; Carl Albert, Democrat; Mike Monroney, Democrat; and Toby Morris, Democrat. None will have a run-off election.

Alabama Senator to Do Utmost to Draft Ike

Montgomery, Ala., July 7 (AP).—Senator Hill (D., Ala.) said tonight "I shall do all in my power" to draft Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower for the Democratic presidential nomination.

"If we are to draft our youth," Hill said in a statement, "we can draft their Commander-in-Chief. Our youth will not dodge the draft and I do not believe that General Eisenhower will dodge a draft."

The Senator's statement was issued as he left for Philadelphia to attend the Democratic National Convention which opens Monday.

Tijuana Seeks Freedom

Tijuana, Baja California, Mexico, July 7 (U.P.).—A new political party today demanded that the Mexican government make Lower California a free state and allow its residents to elect their own officials.

that once the convention gets going, he will:

Offer a resolution asking Mr. Truman to step down.

Place Eisenhower's name in nomination.

Here in the convention city, an unofficial Eisenhower headquarters broke out more banners.

In Chicago, Hugh Will, temporary chairman of the William O. Douglas-for-President clubs, said the campaign for the Supreme Court Justice is marking up "great gains" as a result of Eisenhower's statement that he is not available.

But the politicians gathering here for preliminaries generally were saying that Mr. Truman would get the nomination in a walk if he didn't stub his toe.

Most of them were men assigned to carpentry jobs on the platform.

Associated Press WIREPHOTO

PERSISTENT—James Roosevelt, chairman of the California Central Democratic Committee, speaks to a sign-carrying crowd at Los Angeles as he and other members of the delegation leave for Philadelphia. Roosevelt said he was convinced General Eisenhower would "respond to a genuine draft"

Some samples of what they were saying, as picked up a reporter:

Senator Clyde R. Hoey of North Carolina: "I take Eisenhower as meaning what he says. The convention cannot do the impossible thing, nominate him and have him decline. I think if nominated he will decline and then we'd be in a devil of a fix. It would be damaging to the party. It looks like Truman on the first ballot."

O'Mahoney for Second Spot

Representative Michael J. Kirwan of Ohio: "Sure, the Eisenhower boom has collapsed. Sure, it will be Truman."

Representative Mike Mansfield of Montana: "There isn't much stop-Truman movement out our way, as far as I can see. Montana is for Truman and for Senator O'Mahoney of Wyoming as Vice President."

Senator Theodore F. Green of Rhode Island: "Ike is definitely out. So it's Truman or Dewey."

Former Gov. Chauncey Sparks of Alabama: "The South is not for Truman. Alabama can't vote for Truman. But I don't think Truman can be stopped."

Sparks dropped a hint that some Southerners might drop their grudge against the party if the platform framers "play smart." What the Southerners want is a platform strong for States' rights but not for civil rights.

Associates of James Roosevelt said the son of the former President had been suggested as a running mate for Mr. Truman by persons who want to appease some of the anti-Truman forces.

They said Roosevelt rejected the proposal.

It was Roosevelt who sounded the first formal call for a preconvention caucus to build up the Eisenhower draft.

While the White House said the President has made no arrangement to come to the convention, Presidential nominees ordinarily show up in person with acceptance speeches. And Mr. Truman is standing pat on his own prediction he will be the nominee.

Democratic Congressmen still in the Capital were wondering about a vice presidential possibility.

Representative Joe Hendricks of Florida suggested Representative John McCormack of Massachusetts. Representative John D. Dingell of Michigan likewise recommended "some outstanding and recognized Democrat" who would be acceptable to the great industrial areas of the East."

Hendricks said McCormack also would be acceptable to the South.

Both Hendricks and Dingell said in statements in Washington that nomination of Mr. Truman seems certain.

Signs began to show up that General Eisenhower's "I could not accept" statement over the weekend was causing some Democrats to make more friendly eyes at Mr. Truman.

Jacob M. Arvey, who runs the Cook County (Chicago) Democratic machine, arrived in New York saying: "I've never been anti-Truman." He said he has been "pro-Eisenhower."

Arvey was one of those who joined in a call for a caucus here next Saturday to try to line up an Eisenhower draft. And the meeting still may be held.

While Arvey told reporters Eisenhower ought to accept a "people's draft," he called the President "steadfast" and "courageous" and said Mr. Truman "submerged party politics for the public welfare."

Also in New York, Democratic State Chairman Paul E. Fitzpatrick, told a news conference Mr. Truman will get a "good majority" of the State's 98 convention votes. He said that "certainly" he thinks the President will carry New York State.

But Queens Leader Roe said in a statement that at least 8½ votes will go to Eisenhower. He said the Queens organization will fight for the general's nomination at the convention "even if it means a split with the national and State Democratic committees."

Ohio's 50-vote delegation is expected to go full strength for Mr. Truman.

An Associated Press check of the 60-vote Illinois delegation showed more support for Mr. Truman than for anyone else. It listed 19 1/5 votes for the President, 6 4/5 for Eisenhower, 2 for Douglas, 2/5 for Senator Scott W. Lucas of Illinois and 31 1/5 on the fence.

At a late afternoon conference at convention headquarters here, McGrath said a group of Truman supporters decided at a White House meeting yesterday that Eisenhower had said "the last word that needs to be said" to make it "definite and final" that he is not in the running for the Democratic nomination.

McGrath made no pretense that Mr. Truman would be nominated unanimously. In fact, he said, "some of the delegates don't intend to vote for the President on the first ballot or on any ballot." But he added:

"I think the President can and will win in November, when he takes his campaign to the country. I think he will find a tremendous response from the plain people who think of him as one of them."

Sitting in on yesterday's White House political meeting, McGrath said, were:

Attorney General Clark, Secretary of Commerce Sawyer, Secretary of Agriculture Brannan, Secretary of the Navy Sullivan, Secretary of the Army Royall, Joe Blythe and Oscar Ewing of the Democratic National Committee, Samuel I. Rosenman of New York, Biffle, Presidential Secretary Matthew Connelly and himself.

That could turn into the Truman strategy board for the campaign.

While McGrath was talking, "National Eisenhower for President Headquarters," a few blocks away, said that William W. Shayne of Miami, a Florida delegate to the convention, has agreed to be treasurer of "the draft Eisenhower movement."

That was the announcement from press representative Gene Rose.

"Like a group of us," Rose told a reporter, "he pretty well believes there still is the best of opportunities to put this man over."

ADA Crowd of 5000 Serenades Eisenhower

New York, July 7 (U.P.).—A crowd of some 5000 persons gathered tonight outside the Columbia University campus home of Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower where the Americans for Democratic Action staged a torchlight parade and shouted until the general appeared.

Eisenhower came out on the balcony twice and, the second time, he told his ADA presidential supporters that "All I have to say I have already said in a previous letter."

Reuther Indorses Douglas as Nominee

Detroit, July 7 (AP).—Walter P. Reuther, president of the United Auto Workers (CIO), today threw his support behind Supreme Court Justice William O. Douglas for the Democratic nomination for President.

The red-headed leader of almost 1,000,000 auto wrokers described Douglas as "a man whose universal appeal can unite the Democratic Party and the independent vote."

Teamsters Head Refuses To Address Convention

Indianapolis, July 7 (AP).—Daniel J. Tobin, president of the International Brotherhood of Teamsters, refused today to address the Democratic National Convention in Philadelphia.

Tobin, who said earlier he could not serve as a delegate-at-large from Indiana, made public a telegram to Senator J. Howard McGrath, national chairman, saying that, "Because of the position taken by the International Brotherhood of Teamsters to remain absolutely neutral on the election of candidates until the conventions of both parties have been held, I cannot possibly accept your invitation to address the Democratic National Convention."

MAN'S GREATEST GIFT TO WOMAN

Interior Department Urges Civilian Rule in Pacific Isles

Undersecretary of Interior Oscar Chapman yesterday urged the end of Navy rule and the establishment of civil governments in Pacific island possessions and trust territories.

Chapman

In a statement sent to a joint congressional committee studying American interests in the Pacific, Chapman also urged extension of United States citizenship to the people of Guam and American Samoa.

"Naval administration has necessarily emphasized the strategic value of the islands first, with secondary consideration of economic, social and civic questions," Chapman said.

But even if this were not the case, he added, "naval administration, on a permanent or semi-permanent basis, would be taken as evidence that we have little concern with the civilian populations and regard them merely as appurtenances of military establishments."

The islands in question include not only American possessions but islands which have been assigned to United States protection under an agreement with the United Nations.

Woman's Rebuff Leads Man to Take Life

Detroit, July 7 (AP).—Emma Balog, 36, told police today that she had refused to date her 42-year-old married suitor just before he rushed out to his car and burned himself to death.

Detective Lieut. George Kimball said Leo Dixon, a former Marshalltown, Iowa, football star, locked himself in the car, soaked his clothes and the seats with gasoline and calmly touched them afire.

Ike Plans to Teach, Live Americanism

Miami Beach, Fla., July 7 (U.P.).—Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower wrote a former GI here that he has avoided the "partisan strife" of politics because "I hope . . . I may devote the time left to me to preaching, teaching and living Americanism."

Louis B. Bush said he had received a letter from Eisenhower in reply to his own letter urging the general to accept the Democratic nomination for President.

"I have studied your thoughtful letter long and earnestly," Eisenhower replied Bush. "Much of what you say is nonarguable and certainly your whole letter evidences a broadly national and human aproach to some of the critical issues of today.

"My own position of abstention from partisan strife was taken as a result of sincere and objective reflection.

"I decided, and I still believe, that as a part of a great and influential university I could do more than anywhere else to promote clear thinking as to the problems facing our democracy.

"For whatever it may be worth, I hope that free of any slightest suspicion that my views are colored by partisan approach, I may devote the time left to me to preaching, teaching and living Americanism.

"By that term I mean to include, among other things, devotion to the concept of human freedom and the dignity of man; adherence to the system of free enterprise, and recognition that a positive program of supporting freedom both at home and abroad is essential to our future well-being. That is Columbia's aim and I hope to participate in it.

"I am touched and flattered by your overgenerous estimate of my own qualifications, and I trust you will realize the sincerity of my convictions."

Dixie Bloc Due to Open Fight Today on Civil Rights Plank

Southern members of the resolutions committee didn't let out a peep when one witness—Miss Helen Hall—slipped her request for a strong civil rights stand into her statement for the National Federation of Settlements.

Later, however, all four of the Southerners told reporters they wouldn't stand for anything stronger than the 1944 civil rights plank and wanted that offset with a flat States' rights pledge.

One of them, former Gov. Dan Moody of Texas, said he is opposed even to the 1944 language, which said merely:

"We believe that racial and religious minorities have the right to live, develop and vote equally with all citizens and share the rights that are guaranteed by our Constitution. Congress should exert its full constitutional powers to protect those rights."

Governor Sparks said he would stand on the 1944 plank only if the last sentence is erased and a State and local autonomy clause added. He told reporters that only a major States right concession will mollify the South.

Compromise in Works

"I'm not going to walk out," he said. "I'll stay here and scrap. If it comes to the worst, I'll take my medicine. But my State (Alabama) has now fixed it so we can never vote for Harry Truman."

Senator Clyde R. Hoey of North Carolina and Charles Shepperd of Florida, the other two Southerners on the resolutions unit, agreed the 1944 plank sounded about right to them, but only if accompanied by a strong States rights stand.

The four appeared headed for an almost inevitable clash with Northern and Western liberal members of the group unless the Administration leadership pulls a compromise out of the hat.

Democratic National Chairman J. Howard McGrath (R. I.) has one in the works but it will be hard for the liberal wing to swallow. It involves retaining the 1944 civil rights wording and interlarding elsewhere in the platform a Southern States rights mollifier.

Teachers' Plea Issued

But the Southerners say they don't want their States' rights shots scattered—they want it written right into the civil rights plank.

Mayor Humphrey and other Democratic liberals have been holding out for an indorsement of the report of the President's Commission on Civil Rights. At a minimum, they say they take nothing less than a clear FEPC indorsement, and a call for antipoll tax and antilynching legislation.

For today at least, Chairman Myers steered the hearings into other and less controversial fields.

Among today's other witnesses:

Frank Bass, of the National Education Association, told the group Democrats can win the support of "millions of teachers and their friends," and lift educational levels in the poorer States, by an unequivocal call for Federal aid to education.

John Thomas Taylor, legislative director of the American Legion, said the recently enacted draft act disrupts more youthful careers than universal military training ever would, and urged a plank for superseding the draft with UMT.

Mrs. Percy Madeira of the National Health Foundation and Dr. Lawrence Smith of the Pennsylvania Hospital staff urged a plank calling for more psychiatric training center funds to implement the recently enacted National Mental Health Act.

H. E. Slusher of the American Farm Bureau Federation presented a 14-point farm program stressing mandatory farm price supports, soil conservation and "noncrippling" extension of reciprocal trade agreements legislation.

Another farm witness, however, Charles W. Holman, of the National Cooperative Milk Producers Federation, clashed with Slusher on his Reciprocal Trade Act stand. Holman said the dairy farmers want congressional controls restored over tariffs and international trade.

White House's 'Sistie' Weds; Granddaughter of Roosevelt

"SISTIE" (15 YEARS LATER) AND HUSBAND . . .

Phoenix, Ariz., July 7 (AP).—Anna Eleanor Boettiger, eldest granddaughter of the late President Roosevelt, and Van H. Seagraves of Oregon City, Oreg., were married today at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Boettiger.

The bride, now 21 years old, lived and played at the White House 15 years ago, during the early days of the Roosevelt administration. She and her brother, Curtis R. Boettiger, were known then throughout the Nation as "Sistie" and "Buzzie."

The Episcopalian wedding service was held before a flower-decked altar looking out on the patio of the Boettiger home from the living room.

The couple were unattended. The bride was given in marriage by John Boettiger, who returned from a European writing assignment to attend the wedding.

Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt, grandmother of the bride and widow of the President, was present. Only members of the family and close friends attended.

The bridegroom is the son of Dr. and Mrs. Charles Seagraves of Oregon City. He is a Republican. The couple will establish a home in Portland after a short wedding trip.

The bride was christened Anna Eleanor Dall. After her mother was divorced from Curtis Dall and remarried to John Boettiger. The children took the Boettiger name.

Larson, Head of WAA, To Resign, Reports Say

Friends said yesterday War Assets Administrator Jess Larson plans to resign at the end of the year.

Larson intends to reenter private law practice either in Washington or in his home State of Oklahoma, they said.

Reports have been published repeatedly in recent weeks that Larson would be brought into the White House as a special assistant to President Truman.

Larson authorized the reply that no such proposal has been made to him.

10c a Week Hike in Electric Rate Is Likely

Kosh estimated how their proposals would specifically affect electric rates, their plan probably will raise the average home owner's electric bill a lesser amount, but still in the neighborhood of 10 cents a week.

Pepco Attorney James F. Reilly said that if PUC decides to boost rates by the $2,633,000 a year proposal, and uses up the full amount of $713,311 in the "buffer" fund, Pepco in the calendar year of 1948 will still fall $150,000 short of a 5½ per cent basic return.

A CIO representative yesterday joined the opposition to all the rate increase proposals. Leonard D. Nierenberg, speaking for the Washington Industrial Union Council (CIO), declared that "Pepco's present earnings are adequate, and its prospects phenomenally bright."

Said Nierenberg:

"The record capital expansion planned by the company should be financed by bond and equity issues, and not by taxing the consuming public."

Since 1944, when the 5½ per cent rate of return was established by the PUC as "fair and reasonable," said Nierenberg, Pepco has exceeded this rate in every year but 1947.

Replying to a charge made at the previous day's hearing by J. C. Turner, of the Washington Central Labor Union, AFL, who said Pepco has discriminated against union construction members and engaged in inefficient cost-plus contracts, J. H. Ferry, Uepco's executive vice prsident, declared:

"The labor rates stipulated in these contracts (Pepco contracts with nonunion contractors) are, in our judgment, reasonable . . . and they are substantially less than the AFL rates which must be paid by union contractors."

Pepco, he said, has in effect, two cost-plus contracts for general underground construction, furnishing half the heavy equipment used, and "practically all" the special materials.

PUC took the rate case under advisement, as Pepco asked for a favorable order to enable it to take meter readings at new rates by July 21.

but we couldn't do business without him!

When you take your car to an Esso Dealer Station for gasoline, motor oil, or a complete lubrication job – you're not really "doing business" directly with Esso Standard Oil Company, even though we make the fine products you get.

Instead, these 25,000 Esso Dealers from Maine to Louisiana, are local, independent business men. You deal with the owners themselves – men who have invested their money and their initiative in building their own futures on serving you.

From many competing brands of gasoline and oil, these local business men have chosen Esso products. Year after year, they have seen first-hand evidence of the satisfaction to the buyer that Esso quality stands for.

As of today, these able business men have, on the average, handled Esso products for 12 years each. Many have bought from us for 35 and 40 years.

Obviously, we couldn't do business without these men. And naturally we're proud of them – just as proud of them as we are of the 28,000 workers who are on our company payroll.

Both groups – our own employees and these "partners" in their independent businesses – express this company's basic belief that individual enterprise, given its fair chance to earn fair rewards – is the best way and the American way to make progress with and for all the people of this country.

Walsh Urges Greater Voice For Thickly Populated Areas

Baltimore, July 7 (AP).—Representation in the Maryland Legislature already is out of line from a population standpoint but unless something is done it will be even more so within two years, the Legislative Council was told today.

Walsh

William C. Walsh of Cumberland, former attorney general, appeared before the council to explain the latest proposal for solving the old question of how political units shall be represented.

Walsh, who headed a commission named by Governor Lane last year, admitted the solution wasn't easy.

He urged the council, however, whether it approved the commission's plan or not, to work out some system whereby Baltimore city and the three biggest counties—Baltimore, Prince Georges and Montgomery—will get a better break.

He listed eight counties, which after the 1950 census will be entitled to a total of seven to nine additional members of the House of Delegates. Under the present constitution, adopted in 1867, Baltimore City and the three big counties will get no additional representatives.

The Walsh committee's report proposed that representation from the State's smaller counties be "frozen"; that Baltimore City be redistricted into seven legislative districts with six delegates and one Senator from each; and that Prince Georges, Montgomery and Baltimore Counties be allowed seven delegates each.

Any other county whose population after 1950 exceeded 100,000 also should be entitled to seven delegates.

The committee submitted its plan for a constitutional amendment during the last weeks of the 1947 session of the Legislature, but it failed of action.

As the constitution now stands, all counties have two delegates each, in addition to a State Senator. If the population is over 18,000, another delegate is added automatically, but the limit from any county or legislative district is six. The population limit is 55,000.

States' Rights Candidate Is Predicted

Birmingham, July 7 (AP).—A leader of the Southern revolt against President Truman forecast today nomination of either Gov. Fielding L. Wright of Mississippi or Gov. Ben Laney of Arkansas by States' rights Democrats July 17.

Former Gov. Frank M. Dixon, member of the South-wide States Rights Committee campaigning against Truman, made the prediction.

States' righters have agreed to meet in Birmingham July 17, provided President Truman is nominated at Philadelphia, or if the civil rights plank in the party platform is unsatisfactory to Southern delegations.

The Birmingham meeting would suggest to Southern presidential electors that they cast their States' votes next November for the man chosen in Birmingham, and not for the Philadelphia nominee.

Alabama's 11 electors already are pledged not to vote for Truman.

Basketball Equipment Stolen From Armory

A thief, who broke into the athletic room of the National Guard Armory, 20th and E. Capitol sts., stole virtually everything needed for a basketball game except the players.

Humphrey Decola, athletic director, reported to police yesterday that the intruder made off with five pairs of red basketball trunks, five pairs of orange trunks, and a dozen pairs of basketball shoes.

Md. Officials Meet Today on Resources Plan

Annapolis, Md., July 7 (AP).—Maryland's top conservation officials set sail Thursday in search of an idea—a plan to rejuvenate the State's dwindling natural resources.

Some 35 department heads and their assistants will embark on the State yacht Potomac at noon for a 30-hour cruise down Chesapeake Bay to Solomons.

Before their return Friday night, they hope to sketch the outlines of a revised "six-year conservation program." The program was first drawn up in 1946 "for the restoration of those natural resources which have declined to a fraction of their potential yield."

Dictator Rule Seen in West For 250 Years

By Howard W. Blakeslee
Associated Press Science Editor

New York, July 7 (AP).—A law of growth of nations, that predicts dictators for the next 250 years, was published today by the Foundation for the Study of Cycles.

This same law indicates that after the dictators there will come a fixed, or "frozen" civilization, probably a happy one, which will slowly deteriorate.

The predictions are for the present Western powers, but without naming any. The end of the happy but "frozen" civilization is foreseen when younger peoples, eager for spoils, rise to end the reign of enfeebled Western powers. The younger peoples are not identified.

The title of this publication is "Cycles in History," and the author, Edwin Franden Dakin.

The scientific authority for the law of growth is the late Raymond Pearl of Johns Hopkins University. He found that rats, pumpkins, yeast cells and nations all trace the same kind of curve in their growth.

The predictions about Western powers are those made by the German, Oswald Spengler, 20 years ago. Dakin says Spengler's ideas were considered almost monstrous, but that now they appear prophetic.

Spengler predicted that one surviving state would emerge as supreme victor and impose peace on the world.

Coroner Delays Verdict In Miss Chabot's Death

Dr. A. Magruder MacDonald, District coroner, yesterday withheld issuance of a death certificate for Miss E. Chabot, 34, Government worker, pending reports on chemical tests. Police said a quantity of sleeping potions was found in her room.

Miss Chabot, employe in the administrative division, Federal Works Agency, was found dead across her bed Tuesday evening at Scott's Hotel, 2131 O st. nw. Police listed her former home as Lake Linden, Mich.

They Won't Take No

One of the strongest movers in the campaign to draft General Eisenhower against his will is, curiously, Senator Claude Pepper, generally regarded as among the more ardent New Dealers. Senator Pepper has admitted that he does not know how the general stands on housing, civil rights and other domestic issues. He feels, however, that national security is the paramount consideration and that the general could be drafted on a nonpolitical basis to meet the twin threats of war and depression. For this he has suggested that General Eisenhower be given carte blanche to write his own platform and make "bipartisan" appointments in a coalition government.

This is really astonishing doctrine from a person who has so often stood on principle. What he is saying, in effect, is that the man is everything and that nothing else counts. This certainly is incompatible with American political traditions, let alone Mr. Pepper's personal convictions. Indeed, the search for a strong man makes it apparent that many Democrats are looking not so much for a President as for a Messiah. Perhaps it is this very absence of principle and willingness to toss basic issues to the four winds that has led General Eisenhower to turn a cold shoulder to the enticement. For he must realize, even if Senator Pepper does not, that the Government of the United States cannot be a one-man affair.

Collectivization

Of all the aspects of the Tito-Stalin rift, the one that has had the least attention is the issue over collectivization. We have already dealt with it. But the subject is worth fuller treatment because, in the general stress on the issue of power, the collectivization issue is regarded as a red herring. It is far from being so. The issue goes to the root of one of the chief dilemmas which one after the other are confronting the Kremlin. (Another that is coming to a head is Soviet vs. satellite policy toward Germany.)

The Muscovites when they started to turn their periphery into satellite states had either to put up the lot of their peasantry to the satellite level or to reduce the lot of the satellite peasantry to the Russian level. The former being impossible, the latter has been policy. The depression of the satellites could come only by a course of collectivization in the interest of the proletariat. But it was less difficult to collectivize Russia than to collectivize outside Russia, for there is not the same individualistic tradition in Russia as in eastern Europe. Till the '60s the Russians were serfs, and then were allowed to establish communes, the so-called mir. It was not until 1906 that Stolypin encouraged the individual proprietor to buy land outside the mir and collectivize it. This was how the class of kulaks arose. They were so wedded to their property that wholesale extermination had to be practiced before collectivization in Russia became effective.

It was thus quixotic and an invitation to suicide to expect the Communist regimes in eastern Europe to follow suit. Country after country, indeed, has gone out of its way to assure the peasants that there will be no collectivization, the Hungarian regime having made such an assurance just before Tito was excommunicated. In Yugoslavia 75 per cent of the population is peasant. And there is a tradition of sturdy independence in the country which would make short shrift of any regime that pushed collectivization. Most of the peasants, too, are armed. To be sure, there are a few state farms in Yugoslavia. But the trend in Yugoslavia as elsewhere in eastern Europe is toward the cooperative instead of the collective—a means, it was said, to the end of collectivization. No wonder Moscow was alarmed. As has been demonstrated in Scandinavia, the farmer cooperative is the way to an increase in rural living standards, not the way to decrease them, and is an end in itself. The fear of more rural prosperity on Soviet borders (in run view, moreover, of the Red armies) was as lively with the Kremlin as displeasure over this ideological deviation.

The implications of the Belgrade-Moscow break cannot yet be grasped in their entirety. Doubtless the external policies of Tito were mainly responsible for it. But internal policies cannot be excluded, and they must be kept in mind in appraising the extent of the intra-Communist imbroglio.

Berlin Express

The three-power communication to Moscow is to be published after the Russians have had time to ponder it. It is apparently a pointed demand for the lifting of the siege of Berlin which just falls short of an ultimatum. The hint has come out of Moscow that the first response may be a request for a Foreign Ministers' conference. Such a meeting is clearly desirable. But the situation in Berlin has reached such a pass that there can be no formal meeting till the blockade has been raised. Nor can a meeting be held till an agenda has been agreed upon, together with a preliminary understanding. Thus the situation has degenerated into a stark test of strength which the three powers, presumably, intend to win by, if necessary, reprisals.

Into the struggle the Western powers have thrown an impressive air express for feeding the Berliners. So far the express service appears to be successful. But the task is no mean one, for, in order to succor two million Germans and three garrisons, a minimum of 2000 tons of food a day must be delivered. Eventually much else besides food must be shipped in in order to keep the Berliners well and working. In view of the plain fact that the job had not been anticipated, one is left to wonder about the estimate of the situation, as the military call it. Secretary Marshall used to say that no commander indulges in strategical hazards. But, if, as is said, the express had to be assembled hastily, it is reasonable to suppose that the strategy has not been thought through. The three-power communication will acquaint the Russians with the Western powers' intent, at any rate, to see it through.

Certainly Stalin would not invite war for the purpose of defending his right to starve the Berlin populace. In these circumstances a Russian climbdown would seem to be inevitable. In any case Stalin, it is our belief, does not want war. He is no Hitler. If he had been a Hitler, the whole of Europe by this time would have been a Cossack camp. When hostilities came to an end, and the United States was in process of demobilization, western Europe lay at Stalin's mercy. Yet he did not move. Even the close-to-war grips upon which the Western powers have now embarked are not likely to bring on shooting, barring incidents and man-on-the-spot mistakes. However, if Stalin does not want war, he, as John Foster Dulles says, does not want peace, either. His policy is best expressed in the German hinausekelen, meaning to make an opposite number so disgusted that he quits. Russia must now know that America has not the slightest intention of quitting Europe—nor of quitting Berlin, or any place, under fire.

What then? Perhaps the three powers have accompanied their demand for raising the blockade with a promise to consider a request for a Foreign Ministers' conference. We hope so. If we decide to stay in Berlin, some arrangement, obviously, has to be effected, a modus vivendi to carry out the common task of running Berlin, if not of running Germany. For, even if the blockade of Berlin is lifted, a currency war still has to be liquidated, and the municipal administration restored. What is the good of feeding the Berliners and then letting them try to live in the midst of a currency war and no local government?

We had thought that a modus vivendi with Soviet Russia on Berlin or Germany had been rejected as impossible to achieve. That seemed the reasoning by which the six powers undertook a month ago to set up a German government at Frankfurt. The fact that the Western powers are riding two policies at the same time is disguised by the present tug-of-war over Berlin. It will become apparent when the smoke has been cleared away as a result of the diplomatic and military pressure. A choice may then have to be made. For our own part we would rather see the Frankfurt experiment abandoned than Berlin, though you can't make the Russians cooperate, even if you do make them lift the blockade of Berlin; and possibly the best solution, in all these circumstances, is for both sides to quit Berlin.

Miners And Steel

The refusal of steel companies owning captive mines to sign the new wage agreement with the UMW because of inclusion of a union-shop provision has resulted, as expected, in a prolongation of the vacation shutdown of these mines. In other words, the captive-mine workers are now on strike.

Unless these pits are reopened promptly, the output of the steel industry will be severely curtailed and our domestic defense and foreign-aid program will be seriously hampered by aggravated steel shortages. Owing to coal losses the U. S. Steel Corp. has already banked eight blast furnaces and 28 open-hearth furnaces. And its Bessemer output at Youngstown has been cut by 50 per cent. The root cause of the trouble is the refusal of John L. Lewis to sign the anti-Communist oath—required by the Taft-Hartley Act—as a preliminary to asking the NLRB to conduct an election to determine the wishes of the miners in regard to the union shop. If General Counsel Robert N. Denham of the NLRB decides to prosecute the charges of unfair labor practices filed by the captive mine owners, he is expected to ask for a court order directing the miners to return to work while hearings on the complaint are in progress.

If the owners of the captive mines are eventually upheld in their contention that it was illegal to include a union-shop clause in the contract they were asked to sign, then the contract concluded by the commercial operators with the UMW is likewise illegal. And the parties to that agreement may be confronted by similar charges of engaging in unfair labor practices. The final result might be an order to drop the union-shop clause from all contracts, followed by the issuance of more injunctions to avert a Nation-wide strike.

All of this trouble, actual and threatened, could have been avoided if John L. Lewis had been willing to obey the law of the land. For captive-mine operators are quite willing to sign the new contract, even with the union-shop clause, provided the procedures laid down by the Taft-Hartley Act are followed. This newspaper believes that the captive-mine operators have performed a public service in refusing to become parties to an agreement that certainly seems to the layman to violate the provisions of that law. It is unfortunate, to be sure, that the result of their refusal to sign will almost certainly compel further resort to injunctions to keep the mines operating. But in the long run the country stands to gain from their firm refusal to play Mr. Lewis' game according to rules of his own making.

Richard P. Strong

Dr. Richard P. Strong, who died Sunday in Boston at the age of 76, and who was well known in this city, probably knew as much about the problems of tropical medicine as any man alive. He entered upon his career just as the late Maj. Walter Reed was combating the menace of yellow fever during the Spanish-American War, and in a sense Dr. Strong superseded Major Reed as the Army's foremost expert on tropical diseases. Dr. Strong served as an Army medical officer during three wars, in itself a considerable accomplishment, and there is no question that his researches in military medicine contributed substantially to the improved methods by which the Army was able to prevent and treat the afflictions encountered in wide areas during the Second World War.

Shortly after Dr. Strong entered the Army, in 1898, he was sent to the Philippines, where he headed the board which investigated tropical diseases there. He stayed on to direct the Army Pathological Laboratory and to become professor of tropical medicine at the University of the Philippines. Later he returned to this country to teach tropical medicine at Harvard, where he was a member of the faculty from 1913 to 1938. During the First World War he served with the American, British and French forces. Even though over retirement age when the Second World War broke out, he went on active duty as a colonel at the Army Medical School after serving as consultant on tropical medicine to the Secretary of War. His career was by no means confined to the military field. He was the author of a medical textbook on tropical diseases as well as many scientific publications. In 1915 he was medical director of a Red Cross sanitary expedition to combat the typhus scourge in Serbia, and in 1919 he was chosen medical director of the League of Red Cross Societies.

Dr. Strong received many honors while alive. One of the most significant was the dedication in the book, Global Epidemiology, by Simmons, Whayne, Anderson and Horack in 1944: "(His) untiring and productive labors in this field since 1899 . . . have contributed richly to the health of our troops, to the sanitary improvement of the tropics and to the future welfare of mankind."

Charter of Free Labor

Conventions on human rights devised by the representatives of many nations and submitted to national governments for acceptance or rejection are a long way from being world law. Yet they unquestionably look in the direction of world-wide recognition of basic rights protected by law. They reflect the better conscience of mankind, and thus make it more difficult for any nation to ignore the rights so set forth.

The latest convention of this kind to be offered is a sort of Magna Charta for labor adopted by the International Labor Conference at San Francisco. It will guarantee to both workers and employers in all countries adopting the convention the right to establish and join organizations of their own choosing, without previous authorization. Such organizations would also be guaranteed full freedom to draw up their constitutions, elect officers of their own choosing, and to formulate their programs without official interference. They would not, however, acquire under the convention authority to carry out any sort of program that they might initiate. They would be required, like other individuals and groups, to obey the law of the land. In other words, governments could still regulate the activities of unions and employers' organizations while according them complete freedom of association and organization.

The joint congressional committee which is acting as watchdog over the operation of the Taft-Hartley Act may well scrutinize this convention to see if United States adherence to it will require any modification of our own labor legislation. It seems improbable that acceptance of the convention will add anything substantial to the rights of labor in this country, but we hope that it will be ratified in any event. The prestige it would be given by American approval would certainly be an important factor in securing adoption of this charter of liberty for labor in other parts of the world where human rights are accorded less respect.

Public Service

With clarity and great force, The Washington Post has pointed up the Government's difficulty in getting good men to take jobs. It is pretty well agreed by now that we are not going to get top-flight executives at $10,000 a year. The sole remaining motive for this type of man to serve his Government would be a desire to contribute his share of public service.

In discussions of this problem, to which The Washington Post has made frequent references, including a bang-up cartoon some time back, we have failed to place in proper focus the treatment accorded some of the executives who have made personal sacrifices to come to Washington. No case, I believe, is more shocking than that of Nathaniel Dyke, jr., to prove this point.

Dyke is an Arkansas business man. He first came to Washington in 1942 in connection with priorities for his lumber business. They persuaded him to take a job with the War Production Board at a dollar a year. Later, he was an industry advisor to the Director of War Mobilization and Reconversion. Then, he served as a consultant to the Smaller War Plants Corporation, and after that, as a consultant to the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation, all without compensation.

In the summer of 1947, Dyke was appointed a member of the board of the Federal Home Loan Bank, receiving for the first time a Government salary. He was dismissed from the board after six months' service, without explanation and without a word of thanks from the White House for his many years of service.

In his recent address at the University of Virginia, Mr. David E. Lilienthal appealed to executives to serve in Government as a public service. He was talking about the hundreds of Dykes in this country who want to serve their Government. But they want some assurance that they are not going to be treated in the shabby way that Dyke was.

Businessmen in the higher income brackets are working for the Government anyhow. However, they and their experience are desperately needed in Government positions which I am sure they will accept if guaranteed proper treatment.

How can they be guaranteed this proper treatment? Can The Washington Post point out some definite and concrete plan to insure such treatment? If The Washington Post can come up with such a plan, it will have performed a great public service. READER.

AWVS Food Parcels

Apropos the new Government regulation in reducing postage on food parcels abroad, may I take this means of advising users of American Women's Voluntary Services food packaging service that, while the price of these parcels will remain at $3.50 the lower postal rates will permit a greater amount of food to be included in each parcel.

To those unfamiliar with AWVS food packaging services, the details are as follows:

The AWVS takes orders to pack and send from nine to 10 pounds of food to persons in all war-torn countries for the sum of $3.50 including postage. The work is done entirely by volunteers—there is no profit to anyone. The food is purchased in wholesale lots, the boxes are packed with attention given to the special needs of the different countries, the donor's card is inserted, these parcels are wrapped and mailed direct to the person indicated by the donor. The parcel goes to the recipient's door-step—no need for him to call at some oftimes distant bureau to claim it. Call DUpont 1481, or drop in at 1800 Connecticut ave. nw., for order blanks and further information. RUTH S. DELANO, Publicity Chairman, American Women's Voluntary Services.

Wire Tapping Evidence

On July 2 you published a dispatch from New York concerning a proceeding before the Women's Court of that city involving an alleged $100 "call girl," the evidence in which was based entirely on conversations which two policemen claimed to have had heard by virtue of tapping the girl's telephone. You published the girl's picture, and stated who her father was.

There have been a lot of rapes and murders lately. Even little girls and elderly women! And rather widely over the country. Could not the energies and the great abilities of some of these police officers be better employed in thwarting the rapist-killers in the parks than by tapping telephone wires to find out who is making dates with whom?

But perhaps the whole idea of the wire-tappers is educational. Perhaps the word has gone forth that a totalitarian United States is inevitable, and the police are just trying to introduce it to us by degrees. If so, it is, of course, most considerate of them

H. S. GOOLD.

Hoover's Misfortune

It may interest reader James Richards (letter published July 2) and others like him, to know that Mr. Hoover was not responsible for those breadlines. It was the misfortune of President Hoover that his years in the Presidency were marked by a disastrous crash in securities markets and prolonged business reversal. The Administration program to combat the depression did not produce results quickly enough to save the President from repudiation at the polls. The depression was inevitable, and as stated above, it was just Mr. Hoover's bad luck to be in the Presidency at the time.

Smoking Nuisance

A. L. A.'s letter of June 29 on smoking hazards was one of the letters in that issue. I fight these hazards all the time, on the trains, in stores, in office and agree that smokers are the most inconsiderate folks living.

I travel on trains quite a bit and it certainly is annoying, especially when you see a large sign at each end of the train, "No Smoking," for them to sit right under the sign or looking right at it and light up.

They allow smoking in the offices now at Southern Railway at 10:30 a. m. and 3:00 p. m. for a five-minute period but most of the time the men smoke continuously, and if one brushes the fumes away they look daggers at you; it's an insult to let them know you do not like it.

"Coal Eclipse"

This questions that conclusion in your editorial, "Coal Eclipse" of June 30 which "portends the abandonment of coal as a source of power for the railroads." Obviously there is a remarkable trend to diesel-electric locomotives in new motive power on order, and in recent years the diesel-electric has been making notable inroads for main-line service and switching. The conventional steam locomotive continues to be the workhorse of the rails on medium and short-haul traffic.

Your editorial might have mentioned the gas turbine development, which probably has a great significance to the future of railroad motive power, stationary and marine power.

In 1947 the Class I railroads consumed about 100 million tons of bituminous coal as locomotive fuel, or one third more than the 1935-39 average.

Gas turbine locomotives are coming. The first ones on the rails may be oil burners, but significant researches are under way to adapt powder-fine bituminous coal to the gas turbine. Foremost is the $2,800,000 program of the Locomotive Development Committee of Bituminous Coal Research, Inc., which is supported by nine major railroads and four coal producers. For some months full-scale operational tests of the coal handling equipment have progressed, and in due course two experimental coal-burning gas turbine locomotives will be built.

If the gas turbine fulfills expectations, we in the coal business believe that it will eventually defeat the challenge of the diesel-electric. If the gas turbine will burn coal—which we believe is indicated—it may be expected to preserve coal as the dominant railroad fuel.

The gas turbine is essentially a superheated air device. Its working fluid is superheated air and it is not to be confused with the steam turbine.

In principle the windmill is the simplest form of gas turbine. The gas turbine employs the jet-thrust of superheated air. The coming of the practical gas turbine power plant is due to the wartime development of jet-propelled airplanes which brought the metal alloys which can stand up to the 1300 degrees Fahrenheit temperature at which the gas turbine must operate to be an efficient power producer. Ordinary steel at that heat softens like putty, but modern technology has developed metallic alloys which imbue the gas turbine with unusual promise.

The gas turbine requires no water. Thus it avoids the costly, bulky auxiliary equipment of steam power, and thus appears to be a natural for regions where water is scarce or alkaline. It is simple, compact, has low maintenance, labor and lubrication needs. It will operate smokelessly. Its thermal efficiency will approach that of the diesel internal combustion engine, while its fuel economy will have a marked advantage.

If it burns coal successfully, the gas turbine will have a much cheaper fuel in terms of heating energy per dollar of cost. Moreover, coal is abundantly available, especially to the railroads of the East. It is in point that coal constitutes the largest single category of railroad freight, and so many of the big railroads have a self-interest in maintaining coal's dominance as railroad fuel.

Please note the comments of the president of Westinghouse Electric Corp. that the gas turbine "has exciting possibilities." General Motors Corp. recently announced a revision of its engineering setup at La Grange, Ill., where the diesel-electric locomotives are made, with a view to "new developments in motive power." General Electric Co. should be road-testing a gas turbine locomotive soon. The Swiss built a gas turbine locomotive (oil burner) which has operated for several years in Europe.

We dispute The Washington Post's imputation of "Coal Eclipse" as railroad fuel. Moreover, electricity consumption is undergoing a phenomenal expansion, which augurs greatly for the future of bituminous coal. In fact, the electric utilities will be coal's largest market within a few years.

What other major American industry faces such significant prospects as the gas turbine power plant, the manufacture of synthetic gasoline and the expansive electricity outlook?

Public Relations Staff, Bituminous Coal Institute.

Youth Goes To Work

By Malvina Lindsay

Job Initiation

THIS IS THE month of that difficult first day on the job. A great wave of young people fresh from school is rolling into store, office, factory. Its adjustment to the workaday world is likely to be an economic foretaste of things to come.

It has been a little harder for many young men and women, especially those not thoroughly trained, to get jobs this summer. It will be harder to hold them. There is sharper competition from adults. And employers are demanding more in performance. The managerial counterrevolution against sloppy and hoity-toity workers is under way — though there are still many places where the public can't yet notice it.

This situation gives youth now coming on the job one advantage. Many present employes are hangovers from the easy, careless war days when a seller's market held sway. In stores and other places that serve the public, wartime inefficiency and discourtesy still prevail to an incredible extent. Owners and managers insist this is owing to lack of available help. It is probably also due in some industries to management's refusal to hire, train and pay adequately the help needed—a procedure that would cut the high profits to which many a firm has become accustomed and now takes as its due.

THE NUMBER of new workers now available from high school and college should give the businessman who really wants to improve service a chance to give the public at least prewar consideration. It should give the beginner who has a few Alger boy traits, such as industry, initiative and courtesy, a chance to start a future for himself—or herself—against intrenched competition.

Unfortunately many young men and women will enter the job world lacking understanding of what they face. Some will have the grandiose ideas about salary and advancement that the easy-money legends of wartime developed. Others, especially young women, will still be victims of the glamour cult. They will expect to become head buyers in stores, political commentators on the radio, partners in advertising agencies, editors of magazines, within six months after they start to work. Still others will be bewildered, disorganized, frustrated, unable to make the adjustments demanded in a new and challenging environment.

A recent survey in New York of young workers' deficiencies in offices listed the following: lack of simple spelling and arithmetic; lack of interest in achieving permanent status with the firms that employ them; clock watching and regarding their jobs as necessary evils.

The jump between the sheltered, juvenile world of high school and college to the aggressive, competitive, adult one of industry is difficult for youth to make. Adequate bridges across it have not as yet been built on a wide scale. The schools are doing the best they can through vocational guidance. The employment services, both national and local, are working effectively with them in many places. But neither the schools, the communities or the National Government are helping youth as it needs to be helped with its labor problem, especially in finding and adjusting to the lifework for which it is best fitted.

NOR ARE employers generally aware of the human adjustments young workers face, nor of how these may affect their future attitudes as workers and as citizens. The science of human relations in industry, as everywhere else, is just beginning to grope its way.

A large part of the one and a half to two million youth that enter the labor force annually will be starting on jobs—or looking for them this summer. In addition, thousands of younger vacation workers—their numbers swollen by the inflated cost of living—will be pounding pavements, ringing doorbells in search of jobs. Add to this the great number of youth that left high school to work during wartime—and that is continuing to do so, and that is now drifting downward in the job market—and the youthful labor force becomes an influence about which political candidates and the makers of party platforms will soon have to be doing some thinking.

Facts On Strikes

Mr. P. Haensel of Hinsdale, Ill. in his letter of July 2 called strikes a Communist tactic and a menace to society.

On the contrary, in Russia strikes are unknown. Workers do not dare to halt production no matter how intolerable their working conditions may be. By contrast, in all democratic countries it is recognized that, human nature being what it is, there will be occasions when management and labor will not be able to agree.

Sometimes the workers are responsible. Perhaps equally often the blame must be placed upon management as in the General Motors strike of 1945 when the workers asked for a fair share in the increased profits of the companies but agreed to drop their demands if the companies would open their books to public examination and prove that they could not afford the salary increases.

To a critic of strikes, President Lincoln once said in all reverence: "Thank God, we live in a country where men are not forced to labor against their will!" Fairminded people take some strikes for granted in a democracy even while regretting the curtailment in production. When a strike occurs in their community, instead of immediately blaming the workers, they attempt to learn the facts. If management happens to be responsible, they refuse to cross the workers' picket line even at the expense of some personal inconvenience. OBSERVER.

Today And Tomorrow

By Walter Lippmann

The Case For A German Treaty

NOW THAT we have the Russian bear by the tail, the immediate alternatives are both impossible. It would be a political disaster to let go; it is a technical absurdity to hold on very long.

LIPPMANN

To surrender Berlin to the Russians would invalidate all the guaranties of security on which we have invited the western Europeans and the western Germans to stake their future. But to supply the Allied sectors of Berlin by air is obviously only a spectacular and temporary answer to the ground blockade. The operation can be carried on for a while in the summer months.

But in the long run, especially in the fog and rain of a Berlin winter, the cost of lives of pilots and crews, of planes which would have to be replaced, and of money, would be exorbitant.

THE CRITICAL aspect of the situation is that even if the Russians relax the blockade, as they have indicated that they may, our position in Berlin will still be as precarious as it was before. The Russians will still control access to Berlin. As long as they occupy Germany east of the Elbe River, Berlin is surrounded by their troops, and they can, when they deem it expedient, restore the blockade.

Therefore, in order to maintain the position in Berlin, we should have to keep our fleet of air transports with all their pilots and crews and ground personnel waiting, but always ready. For that reason, among many others, General Clay ought to be directed to amend his declaration that we are staying in Berlin; he should be told to say that we are staying in Berlin as long as the Russians stay in Berlin and around it, but that when they withdraw, we can withdraw. Then Berlin cannot be blockaded and Berlin will not have to be supplied by air.

WE CANNOT afford to continue to ignore the fact that the Soviet government is publicly on record as favoring "the swift conclusion of the German peace treaty" and "the swift withdrawal of the occupying forces from Germany." This declaration was made at the Warsaw conference which ended less than two weeks ago. It marks a radical change in the Soviet position, foreshadowed for the first time I think—I think I am right in this—in Stalin's reply to Henry Wallace. As recently as November at the beginning of the last Council of Foreign Ministers in London, M. Molotov took an exactly opposite position, insisting upon a prolonged and indeterminate military occupation of Germany.

There are now very strong indications that the purpose of the Berlin blockade is to bring about a four-power negotiation for a German peace treaty. I do not see how we can fail to consider this proposal very seriously, to explore it slowly, carefully, and thoroughly, and to take the appropriate measures in western Europe. For a German peace treaty followed by the swift withdrawal of the Russian armies is a wholly different proposition from a German peace treaty, as M. Molotov envisaged it last November, with the Russian army still occupying Germany.

IN WEIGHING this proposition we may begin with the objections which will be raised. It will be said that the withdrawal of all the occupying forces, including our own, will deprive France and western Europe of the protection which exists because they cannot be attacked without first attacking the American army. But if the Russian army had been withdrawn 500 miles to the east, can it be denied that it would be very much more difficult for the Russian army to invade western Europe? I do not see how it can be denied.

Nevertheless, positive measures to make the west secure against Russia and against a resurgent Germany will still be necessary. An American military guaranty, implemented with American rearmament, with military lend-lease and even with skeleton American forces based on western Europe, should be arranged, signed, sealed, and ratified by Congress before a German peace treaty is agreed to.

There is no doubt that with the Russian army withdrawn from the center of Europe the military value of an American guaranty would be much greater. For the time it would take the Red army to cross Poland and Germany would be time gained for the American reinforcements to fly and to sail across the Atlantic.

Moreover, full-scale German rearmament is conceivable only if Germany is allied with or protected by a great power. It should therefore be a paramount aim of our policy to separate the Germans from the Russians.

THE NEXT objection is that though the Red Army were withdrawn, there would remain behind the German Communists, the Soviet agents, and an underground German army, trained and indoctrinated in the Russian prisoner of war camps. There is, I am told on the best American authority, no evidence that such a German army now exists. But it would be prudent to assume that it could exist.

If it does exist, or if it did, its mere existence would be a downright breach of any peace treaty which was made with Germany. The treaty should, therefore, authorize the neighbors of Germany, and commit Britain and America explicitly, to take swift measures of reprisal. Since Germany will have no air force, since the Ruhr is highly vulnerable, and since Germany has no navy and can easily be blockaded and her imports embargoed, that means for reprisal exists.

WITHOUT the Red army and without a German army, a Communist seizure of power in Germany would not be easy. It might be attempted. But if we are lucid and firm, we can obtain powerful internal guaranties against a Communist or a National Socialist seizure of Germany.

The Russians are proposing the swift conclusion of a German peace treaty. Since no German government exists, since none can be agreed to and established swiftly, the obvious thing to do is to sign the peace treaty with the German leaders, restoring German sovereignty to them, and authorizing them to form a government for the whole of Germany after the treaty is ratified and the armies withdrawn. The separatism and the vested interests of the German states should provide strong centers of resistance to any totalitarian coup in the whole of Germany.

THE AFFIRMATIVE case for a peace treaty and withdrawal in the near future, that is to say within the next year, is very, is very strong indeed.

Such a treaty would mean that, except for the aid supplied under the European Recovery Program, and subject to the military guaranties of a treaty, the Germans would become responsible for their own reconstruction before their constitutional structure was rebuilt and before their economy was restored.

This is, I submit, desirable. For no constitution and no government formed under military occupation can be durable. The Germans would be almost certain to overthrow it when the occupation ended as a symbol of their independence.

Moreover, a German government operating under military occupation will always blame the military occupation for its failure. It will never accept responsibility or learn from it. Yet the condition of Germany will be bad for years to come. This will generate grievances which will find their outlet not in the solution of Germany's problems but in intrigue and adventure abroad. With the Russians still in eastern Germany the temptation to make a peace with them at the expense of Poland and against the west will be overwhelming. With the Russians withdrawn, the Germans will have to deal with their neighbors, particularly the Poles, who cannot countenance another Molotov-Ribbentrop pact.

THERE IS an equally compelling reason for making a peace treaty before the German economy is restored. For if we restore the Ruhr while the Russians are still on the Elbe, we shall make it immensely worthwhile for the Russians to take over the assets of the Ruhr, and we shall leave them in a position to do it.

Western Germany is now a liability. It depends on the American subsidy. That is one of the reasons why the Russians are not likely to risk a war to conquer western Germany. They would acquire an expensive liability. But with western Germany fattened up by General Draper, re-created as the workshop of Europe, it would be a prize justifying great risks.

It is, therefore, imprudent to restore Germany before the Russians have withdrawn. For how could it be defended? Only by a rearguard action which destroyed all that we had rebuilt. What is the sense of that? The time to rebuild Germany is when it is separated from the Russians and surrounded by European nations which are themselves no longer under the direct pressure of the Red army. Then not merely a Western Union, which, is an economic impossibility, but a European union may be feasible.

ALL IN ALL it seems to me clear that the case is very strong for examining seriously and sincerely the new Russian proposition. We cannot afford to refuse to consider a proposition which, if it would be negotiated successfully, would serve so well our real interests in Germany and in Europe.

For if a settlement can be reached, the peak of the world crisis will have been surmounted, and if it cannot be reached because the Russians are playing a devious game, negotiations will expose the plot and strengthen greatly our own position for whatever is to come.

Too Soon For The Funeral

ALREADY the obituaries are being written for the Democratic Party. The funeral clothes are being brought out and carload lots of sackcloth and ashes are on order for Philadelphia.

Childs

Historical parallels are cited to show why the party is through. The quarrel over civil rights is compared with the battle over slavery which tore the party in two in 1860.

There seem to be good and sufficient reasons for calling in the undertaker. It is hard to see how the utterly dissimilar elements that are yoked together can ever again be reconciled behind a ticket that has a chance of victory.

The dissident Democrats who promoted the Eisenhower draft certainly have not helped their party in this crisis. They could scarcely have believed that General Eisenhower would yield to the draft strategy. His record was too clear and positive for that even before his latest refusal to accept any nomination for public office.

There was something almost pathetically childish in the way in which both in the Southern wing and in the liberal-labor wing some leaders clung to the hope that the war hero would resolve their dilemma. They were asking for a miracle, and miracles in politics are all but nonexistent.

THE SOUTHERNERS, in particular, cherished the delusion that Eisenhower could be forced to run. They were inclined to be indignant at hints from Northern liberals that he would serve in any event as a useful stalking horse.

Apparently James Roosevelt, Jacob Arvey, the Chicago political boss, and others of the stop-Truman faction thought it would be possible to use Ike to sidetrack the President. Then they would come in with Supreme Court Justice William O. Douglas. But the Southerners will not accept Douglas, whom they put down as a New Dealer of deepest dye.

So the outlook is dismal. A quarrel over the civil rights plank is in prospect. Any effort now to cast Mr. Truman aside seems bound to end in failure, and the effort will only further darken the outlook for November. Q. E. D.: A party sunk under overwhelming defeat and with no hope of ultimate unification.

But it is much too early, in my opinion, to call in the crepe hangers. The very fact of the present factionalism is proof of a vigorous life within the party. And there are historical parallels to substantiate it.

In 1924 the Democratic Party seemed bent on destroying itself. In the Madison Square Garden convention the Southern Bourbon wing and the urban wing based on the powerful city machines fought it out in public for 106 noisy ballots. The candidate finally chosen, John W. Davis, was a respectable compromise, but he was little known to the country, and the La Follette third party tagged him with the Wall Street label.

IN THE 1928 convention the city ring won out, and Al Smith was the nominee. He went down under the worst defeat suffered by a candidate for President up to that time, carrying only eight States for a total of 87 electoral votes. For the first time the solid South was split, with Texas, Virginia, Florida and North Carolina going for Herbert Hoover.

Then, too, the obituaries were trotted out. The Democratic Party had once and for all demonstrated that it was an impossibible combination, half horse and half alligator, that could not survive.

Four years later, with Franklin D. Roosevelt as the candidate, the dead party staged a remarkable comeback. It has remained in power for 16 years.

A great deal has happened since those obituaries of 1928 were written. Progressive forces in the South have modified the party there to an even greater extent than may appear on the surface, where the older leaders cling to position and power.

In the North, labor-liberal forces have come to play an increasingly important role. They use their political strength often naively and crudely, but it is nonetheless a reality.

The obvious lack today is a powerful leader who could unify these latent forces. Such a leader would combine true conviction with political skill and sincerity of purpose with an understanding of the forces to be reconciled. No sign of such a leader is on the horizon today. It is quite possible, however, that events of the next four years may call such leadership into being. No one could have predicted in 1928 that Roosevelt would lead a disorganized and leaderless party to victory four years later.

Eaton Urges House Voice in Foreign Policy

Representative Eaton (R., N. J.) yesterday called for continuation of bipartisan foreign policy with the House becoming a full partner of the Senate in consultations.

"No foreign policy can be successful unless it has the support of both parties, all branches of Government, and the people," the chairman of the House Foreign Affairs Committee told a news conference.

Eaton said there was an imperative necessity for the House to become world-minded under present global conditions. He continued:

"My one objective is not to create a diversion between the branches of Government. The House must be moved up to its proper place in the front line of world affairs alongside the Senate."

Sees Further Cooperation

Further, Eaton predicted that if a Republican Administration is elected this fall, Democratic leaders will be consulted on foreign policy, just as the Democratic Administration has been consulting Republicans.

Eaton called the news conference to review work of his committee during the current Congress and to outline what he sees as the main foreign policy jobs ahead. He told newsmen:

"The world is in economic ruins and it is to our own interest to help the world back on its feet economically. Under our rules, economic legislation must originate in the House.

"We must relate our economic actions to a sound foreign policy. This lays on the Appropriations Committees the new and grave responsibility of safeguarding our efforts to rehabilitate the world economy."

Policy Review Slated

Eaton said policies of the Economic Recovery Administration will be reviewed in January when the new Congress meets. His committee staff will be ready with information on the first year's operations.

He said the ECA law "has such vast potentials for world peace that it is one of the most important bills ever drafted by the committee and enacted into law."

ECA's authority must be renewed and more money must be made available by next April 1 if the first funds are spent in the 12 months allowed by this year's law, Eaton said.

A high priority also will be given, he added, to legislation setting forth United States recommendations for strengthening the United Nations.

A comprehensive bill to do this and to lend the U. N. 65 million dollars to build its headquarters in New York was approved by Eaton's committee this spring. It failed of passage before Congress quit last month.

Aid From U. S. Won't Mean End of Austerity, Bevin Says

Whitley Bay, England, July 7 (AP).—Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin pledged today that Britain is "not going to have a night's debauch" with European recovery funds.

"If we take Marshall aid today, we take it in the spirit that we are going to use it wisely," Bevin told the annual conference of the National Union of Mineworkers.

"We are going on with austerity because we are determined to hand over to our children a free, independent and up-to-date nation."

Bevin's new pledge came less than 24 hours after he signed an economic cooperation pact with the United States. In this pact Britain accepted aid under conditions laid down by the United States.

Commons Ratifies Pact

The House of Commons overwhelmingly ratified the pact last night by a vote of 409 to 12.

(The French National Assembly approved a similar agreement today. The vote was 336 to 183 with 79 abstentions. Communists opposed the agreement.)

Bevin said the belief that diplomacy must be carried on over the heads of the people is "all moonshine."

Says Churchill Talks "Nonsense"

"Foreign affairs is common sense people hoping to talk to other common sense people," he said.

Bevin said former Prime Minister Winston Churchill blamed Britain's need of aid on "the bad management of the Labor government."

"This is nonsense," Bevin said. "The Conservative Party has nothing to teach the Labor government about the handling of affairs. The fundamental reason we are in these difficulties is that we spent our all in the war."

Elliott Roosevelt Buys Tract Near Father's Shrine

Hyde Park, N. Y., July 7 (AP).—Elliott Roosevelt's Val-Kill Co., has purchased 258 acres of the estate of the late Franklin D. Roosevelt.

The tract fronts 3960 feet on the east side of the Albany Post rd., directly opposite the Roosevelt library and homestead. The acquisition is reported to be part of Elliott's plan announced last spring to provide tourist accommodations and other facilities for persons visiting the Roosevelt shrine. At that time he announced that he and his mother planned to open the Val-Kill Inn this fall in a remodeled farm house.

The latest purchase was announced yesterday by Bernard P. Day, president of Joseph P. Day, Inc. He declined to make public the terms, but said the price paid was "substantial."

Elliott Roosevelt personally owns an adjoining tract of 342 acres.

Peron Would Side With U. S. In Soviet War

Buenos Aires, July 6 (Delayed) (U.P.).—If war comes between the United States and Russia, Argentina will line up with the United States, President Juan D. Peron said today.

He told a group of visiting Brazilian students in a 90-minute talk that he believes war can be averted and that Argentina does not want to throw more coals into the fire.

Defending Argentina's peacetime "third position" as between United States capitalism and Russian communism, Peron said:

"We maintain that there should be peace; that fighting solves nothing and that we must think of what comes after war. We are trying to influence our friends into forming this third position rather than joining those who desire to fight."

Obviously answering critics in Brazil and elsewhere who have charged his government with imperialist designs in South America, Peron said:

"It is ridiculous to talk of the imperialism of a nation of only 16 million inhabitants . . . I place at your disposal all transportation facilities that you may see anything you want in Argentina—our military factories, our barracks, our naval bases . . ."

Sharp Slump In May Sales Of Appliances

By S. Oliver Goodman

Sales of electric appliances in Washington and two nearby Maryland counties declined sharply in May as compared with the corresponding month last year.

Only 2 of 11 categories recorded gains during the month, according to a retail sales compilation by the Electric Institute of Washington.

Television-set sales totaled 1041 during the month as compared with 84 last year, while radio receivers sales amounted to 5404 against 4412.

Sales were reported as follows in other categories:

| | May, 1947 | May, 1948 |
|---|---|---|
| Ranges | 642 | 197 |
| Refrigerators | 2275 | 1578 |
| Oil burners | 308 | 141 |
| Ironers | 135 | 72 |
| Washers | 1861 | 1356 |
| Water heaters | 370 | 179 |
| Radios | 4412 | 5404 |

| Television sets | 84 | 1041 |
| Vacuum cleaners | 940 | 432 |
| Roasters | 372 | 185 |

Despite the slump in May sales, volume for the first five months this year remained substantially higher than in the same period of 1947, according to William Hills, managing director of the Electric Institute. For this period, sales gains were recorded in 8 of the 11 categories as follows:

| | 5 Months 1947 | 5 Months 1948 |
|---|---|---|
| Ranges | 1568 | 2009 |
| Refrigerators | 6287 | 9996 |
| Oil burners | 1704 | 700 |
| Ironers | 570 | 685 |

| Television | 571 | 5822 |
| Vacuum cleaners | 3767 | 6257 |
| Roasters | 855 | 1162 |

The above figures are based on retail sales data filed by members of the institute and cover the District of Columbia, Prince Georges and Montgomery Counties.

3 Unionists Refuse Red Question Reply

New York, July 7 (U.P.).—Three CIO union officials refused to state today whether or not they were Communists at a tumultuous hearing by a congressional subcommittee into alleged leftist domination of certain New York unions.

The three witnesses, all officials of Local 65 of the United Retail, Wholesale and Department Store Union of America, defied the fourman investigating body despite a warning by its chairman, Representative Charles J. Kersten (R., Wis.) that it would press contempt proceedings.

Following the same line as the Hollywood writers and directors at the House Committee on Un-American Activities hearing in Washington last spring, Arthur Osman, union president; David Livingston, vice president, and Mrs. Esther Letz, director of the wholesale department, told the committee that a query about their political affiliation was a violation of their constitutional rights.

Two Are Ejected

The hearing today was marked by ejection of Osman and Livingston from the committee room at the opening of the session and by shouts and boos from the audience. Some 250 pickets from CIO unions marched four abreast around the Federal courthouse shortly after noon, chanting:

"Boo Hartley, you can't bust our union."

Representative Fred Hartley (R., N. J.), coauthor of the Taft-Hartley law, was one of the subcommittee members. He is chairman of the House Education and Labor Committee and he appointed the present subcommittee investigating charges that pro-Communist elements in New York department store and other unions held a dominating influence.

Kirsten asked all three witnesses point blank whether they were members of the Communist Party. Livingston replied that the committee had no right to ask him such a question.

One Witness at a Time in Room

"I understand," he said, "that a citizen of the United States has a right to his own political opinion."

Mrs. Letz and Osman, too, said constitutional guarantees gave them the right not to answer if they desired.

As the hearing opened, Kirsten ruled that witnesses to appear could not remain in the room until they were called to the stand. Osman and Livingston jumped to their feet shouting objections.

Livingston said that when the subcommittee held a similar hearing in Washington last week at which executives of Macy's Gimbels and Oppenheim-Collins department stores testified, there was no sequestration of witnesses.

Then Osman yelled:

"What are you afraid the witnesses might hear?"

Mum on Affiliations

A United States marshal led the two men, still shouting, from the room while the audience booed lustily.

The three union officials, who were the only ones who testified before the hearing was recessed until 10 a. m. Thursday, also were asked about their affiliations with Communist-front organizations which Attorney General Tom Clark has listed as subversive. They declined to answer those questions, too.

Introduced as evidence was a sheaf of pictures from the Young Communist League magazine. One was of a "David Livingston." Livingston was asked if it was his picture.

"This is the picture of a smiling young man," he said, "and although it bears some resemblance to me, I can't say for certain that it is me."

Hartley Charges "Evasion"

As the hearing was ending, Osman attempted to introduce as evidence a telegram from Gov. Thomas E. Dewey which commended his union for providing the type of leadership which has brought peaceful labor relations to New York State. Kirsten ruled that the hearing had already been adjourned.

Osman jumped to his feet and shouted:

"We will run people like you out of Congress."

Other members of the subcommittee, besides Kersten and Hartley, were Representative D. Kearns (R., Pa.) and Representative John S. Wood (D., Ga.).

After the hearing, Hartley issued a statement.

"I have never attended a hearing in my 20 years in Congress," he said, "where witnesses were more evasive or where evasion was so deliberately and clearly planned to withhold information to which the committee was entitled."

Police Fire on Man in Park

Brill, 11, whose murder in Baltimore Tuesday closely resembled the murder here of Carol Bardwell.

Baltimore 'Break' Is Due

Baltimore authorities said they believed "a break" in the case was imminent as they continued to grill a 31-year-old janitor.

The suspect has a record of knife attacks on women. He was viewed at a police lineup in Baltimore by Allen and Barbara Sapperstein, who were riding with Marsha Brill when she was attacked and slain.

Another development yesterday was the finding of a celluloid souvenir badge bearing the inscription "S. S. Mount Vernon, Washington, D. C.," 75 feet from where the Brill girl was stabbed.

The badge, sold aboard the excursion boat, which plies between Washington and points on the Potomac, was found by John Gardner, a Baltimore newspaper carrier, as he browsed about the scene of the knife-slaying of Marsha, near the Pimlico racetrack.

The badge appeared to be almost new. It bore no marks of having been on the ground any length of time. The lapel pin was missing, leading investigators to believe it may have been torn off by the knife victim as she fought her assailant.

Officials of the line pointed out that such badges were not worn by employes but were sold to pleasure seekers as souvenirs.

Here in Washington, Captain Murray who went to Baltimore to study the Brill case said he was "extremely interested" in the report of the badge finding.

However, neither Captain Murray nor Inspector Bryant had been officially informed about the badge angle. Bryant said he will order detectives back to Baltimore if there is any sort of break indicating a link with the Bardwell case.

Washington police yesterday cited an additional startling similarity of the Baltimore and Washington murders.

The Bardwell girl's bicycle was found 75 feet from her body. Police said this indicated the child had leaped off and fled, pursued by her attacker.

This was true in the case of the Baltimore girl who tried to run, was caught and knifed in the stomach.

In the meantime, Washington police released an AWOL soldier who had been picked up for questioning in the Bardwell case yesterday. He offered an air-tight alibi.

The soldier, garbed in white, was first believed to be a Navy man.

Police discounted as the work of a crank a phone call received by Bethesda police two days ago. The caller, apparently drunk, said she knew the identity of the murderer.

cases; Virginia had 19, and Maryland had 12. For this year, Virginia's record last Saturday stood at 21; Maryland had but 1 reported case.

The North Carolina outbreak was termed by Foundation officials as the worst in the State's history for this time of year. The polio season usually starts in the Southern States in May or June and moves northward as the weather becomes hot and dry.

Foundation officials said reports to them showed that few cases of bulbar-type polio have struck. This type affects the nerves leading to the brain and is generally fatal.

Suit Against Campbell On Zoning Continued

A suit charging Arthur F. Campbell, former Alexandria Democratic chairman, with violating the city zoning ordinance was continued to July 13 yesterday in Alexandria Civil and Police Court.

Campbell was charged jointly with Charles Shepherdson, his partner in the Potomac Coal Co., and the Washington & Old Dominion Railroad with rebuilding a 50-year-old railroad trestle in a residential zone.

FM Permit Issued

The Federal Communications Commission yesterday issued a construction permit to the Cumberland Broadcasting Co., Cumberland, Md., for a new FM radio station. A standard station grant was awarded to the Northern Neck & Tidewater Broadcasting Co., Warsaw, Va., 690 kilocycles, 250 watts, daytime only.

declared the child had suffered the bruises in a fall from her bicycle, but admitted she had also spanked the child.

On the stand yesterday, Mrs. Majerska said she had spanked the girl to discipline her after she refused to take a nap. After the mother, a dark brunette of slight build, had been excused, Janet was called as a witness.

To qualify the child as a witness, Assistant United States Attorney Robert E. Short asked her:

"You know what happens to little girls who tell fibs, don't you?"

"Uhhuh," she replied, "they get spanked."

She told the court that her mother had beat her but added loyally, "She only spanked me when I was bad and she did it to make me be good."

Child Follows Mother to Cell

Before declaring Mrs. Majerski guilty, Judge Neilson said:

"Everyone will acknowledge that a parent has the right to discipline a child and perhaps to spank a child with moderation. But there is a difference between discipline and assault."

After the sentencing, Janet followed her mother to the cell block. She was crying and didn't want to leave her mother. Her mother finally persauded her to leave with the bribe of a cookie.

According to court records, the whereabouts of the child's father is not known. The Board of Public Welfare will take charge of her while the mother is in jail.

Harry Ahearn, the mother's attorney, said he will file a motion for a new trial.

Garrison Revolt Squashed in Peru

Lima, Peru, July 7 (U.P.).—A three-day rebellion of Army garrisons at Puno and Juliaca, in southern Peru, has been put down completely, telephone reports from Cuzco satid tonight.

Described unofficially as a right-wing totalitarian movement, the revolt has ended with the flight of its leaders and the surrender of mutinous troops.

Injured Marylander Aids in Crash Rescue

Batavia, N. Y., July 7 (AP).—Two passengers on a Greyhound bus were killed last night when it skidded into a power pole along Route 5, near Pembroke, overturned and burned to its frame.

Eight of the 13 other passengers and the driver were injured.

The bus was bound from Buffalo to New York City. The injured included Leigh Tallman, 28, and his wife, Margaret, 23, of Severn, Md. Two children of Mr. and Mrs. Tallman, Theodore, 2, and Michael, 10 months, escaped harm.

Tallman and another passenger used a fire extinguisher and a rock to shatter the windshield of the bus, enabling others to escape.

Decision Due Today On Coal Strike Writ

By John W. Ball
Post Reporter

General Counsel Robert N. Denham of the National Labor Relations Board will decide today whether to ask a court injunction to halt the strike of 52,000 miners in the steel industry's so-called "captive mines."

Meanwhile officials of the United Mine Workers were busy urging employes of commercial mines, who had struck in sympathy with the captive mines, to return to their jobs.

Last night the number of "sympathy strikers" had fallen to 37,000 from a total of 49,500 who had refused to work Tuesday.

Denham and a score of aides spend yesterday studying a complaint by the steel industry that the new contract signed by John L. Lewis and his United Mine Workers with the owners of commercial mines last month is illegal.

Charged T-H Violation

The steel companies, who agreed to all other terms in the new contract, charge that its provision for a closed shop was in violation of the Taft-Hartley Act.

The Taft-Hartley law requires that 51 per cent of all employes in each plant must vote in favor of a union shop under supervision of NLRB. To seek such an election all officers of the union must sign affidavits that they are not Communists. Lewis has refused to sign such an affidavit.

Yesterday's developments in the coal situation included:

1. The strike of workers in the captive mines, plus the sympathy strikers, totaled 89,000 men—almost one of out every four of the 400,000 soft-coal miners in the UMW.

Some Extend Vacations

2. UMW field officials denied that employes of commercial mines were on a sympathetic strike. The miners annual 10 days' vacation with pay, which usually ends on July 4, this year ended on July 5. Many miners are just extending their vacation, UMW officials said, and predicted all covered by contract would be back at work in a day or so.

3. Hard coal price increases ranging from 50 cents to $1.10 per ton were announced by the Lehigh Coal & Navigation Co. at Philadelphia. The company said the increases reflect the wage boosts granted UMW workers last week. It also covers increased costs of materials, it said.

All segments of the coal industry are now operating under the new contract except the captive mines. The contract calls for an increase of $1 a day for each miner, plus a doubling of the Miners Welfare Fund assessment—from 10 cents to 20 cents for each ton of coal mined.

If Denham decides the complaint of the steel industry mine owners is valid, he can issue a formal complaint against the union. Once he signs such a complaint he can ask a Federal court for an injunction halting the strike until the unfair labor practice charges can be aired by the NLRB.

Lewis had made no answer to the steel industry's charges. At UMW offices yesterday it was stated that he has been "taking a rest" since the close of the agreement with the anthracite mine owners in New York last week.

J. R. Lewis Named Chairman of U. S. Petroleum Board

James R. Lewis, 47, Deming, N. Mex., was appointed chairman of the Federal Petroleum Board yesterday by Secretary of Interior Krug.

The board administers the Connally Hot Oil Act, which prohibits interstate shipment of oil produced in violation of State laws.

The board, a branch of the Interior Department's oil and gas division, has headquarters at Kilgore, Tex., and branch offices at Midland and Houston, Tex., and Lafayette, La.

Lewis has been a member of the board's oil inspection staff since 1933, and a member of the board since 1946.

He succeeds Chairman Ray O. Armstrong, 59, who has resigned because of ill health.

Krug appointed Jack Peterson, 45, Covington, Tenn., as the member of the board. Peterson has been examiner in charge of the Kilgore office.

Tuck to Get Session Plea By Fairfax

The Fairfax County Board of Supervisors yesterday agreed to petition Governor Tuck to call a special meeting of the General Assembly to provide funds for school construction.

Wording of the resolution was left to Commonwealth's Attorney Hugh B. Marsh and County Executive R. M. Loughborough, but it was agreed to include the following requests:

1. Levy of a general sales tax to produce 10 million dollars a year to "maintain a uniform school system" throughout the State.

2. Revenue from this tax to be earmarked for school construction, and any that is left over for school operation and maintenance.

3. Funds from the tax to be disbursed over the State on a formula based on population, area and school attendance.

4. Immediate creation by the State of a fund from which communities may borrow for school construction at an interest rate of no more than 2 per cent and within certain limits.

5. The State board of education would certify when a community has adequate school buildings. Sales tax funds could then be used for operation of schools.

The resolution was substantially the same as one adopted last April by the board of supervisors of Franklin County. It was at their suggestion that Fairfax acted yesterday.

Action by the supervisors followed publication of a report by the county school board Tuesday which said it will take $7,500,000 to meet county school needs in the immediate and forseeable future.

The school board cited the need of 10 new elementary schools at Hollin Hall, Weyanoke, Simm's Corner, Bailey's Crossroads, Tyson's Corner, Fairfax (Negro), Tyler Park, Penn Daw, Floris-Herndon (Negro) and Gum Springs (Negro).

It reported the need of additions to existing elementary schools at Burke, Fairview, Annandale, McLean, Groveton, Oakton, Franconia, Forestville, Dunn Loring, Lorton, Chesterbrook, Woodlawn, Oak Street (Falls Church), and to high schools in Mount Vernon, Falls Church and Herndon.

The Board of Supervisors yesterday also:

1. Agreed to meet with the County Planning Board within two weeks to start work on revising the 1941 county zoning map.

2. Appointed a committee from the board to consider construction of an addition to the county courthouse, or a seperate building, to provide more space for county offices.

Franklin Station To Resume 24-Hr. Postal Service

The Benjamin Franklin Station postoffice at Pennsylvania ave. and 12th st. nw. will return to a 24-hour schedule of business after almost a year of shorter hours, Acting Postmaster W. G. Bell has announced.

Beginning 8 a. m. Monday, the station's post windows, registry windows, stamp windows and the box section will be open 24 hours a day, 7 days a week. Money order, postal note and postal savings windows will be open from 8 a. m. to 8 p. m., Mondays through Saturdays.

Bell said his office had received numerous requests for such service in the downtown section. Another reason for the return to round-the-clock service is the steady increase in postal receipts in the past 10 months, he said.

'Vita Vision' Is Step Toward 3-Dimensional Photography

By Ollie Atkins

THIRD dimensional photography has been sought after since the early days of picture making. Today there is a new process called "Vita Vision" which presents a remarkable effect of depth in pictures.

A post-war development, this life-like photography is being used in Washington by Lee Salsbery in his studio at 608 4th st. nw. At present the main usefulness of "Vita Vision" is for commercial displays which present in still photography somewhat the same dramatic effect you see in those life-like show cases at Union Station and National Airport.

Last weekend Salsbery and Ken Adams, chief photographer for the Vita Vision Corp., photographed President Truman with the elaborate camera necessary for the process in the first "one shot" third dimensional pictures ever made of any Chief Executive. The finished pictures will be displayed to boost Truman nomination possibilities at the Democratic convention.

The principal of this photography is based on multiple exposures on regular photographic plates but through a lined screen between the film and lens. The camera rests on a tripod which is motivated in a short arc around the object being photographed in synchronization with vertical movement of the film behind the linear screen. To put all this in a paragraph is nigh impossible—you must see it happen to appreciate just what the operation is.

Cameras used for this work are leased out by the Vita Vision people. Some 50 machines are in use today. Several department stores are using them for third dimensional portraits and report a brisk business. Most of the cameras are in the hands of commercial lensmen who photograph commercial products used in displays.

Unlike stereoptic, pictures no special viewer is necessary to "see" the third dimension in Vita Vision. Pictures produced by this method must be back-lighted when viewed. Colors pictures either natural or artificially tinted, present the most dramatic effect.

THE Graflex Diamond Award, one of photography's highest honors, will be presented to Boston news photographer Francis Cushing over a Nation-wide radio broadcast tonight by Howard A. Schumacher, vice president of Graflex.

Fred Marchionna, Woodrow Wilson High School Student, of 4816 47th st. nw., won $10 for this picture entitled "Jefferson Memorial" in the Third Annual National High School Photographic Awards

Washington high school snapshooters took six cash awards in the 1948 National High School Photographic Awards sponsored by the Eastman Kodak Co. First prize and $600 went to Bailey Donnally, 18, of Deatsville, Ala. Local winners were: Fred Marchionna, Woodrow Wilson High School, of 4816 47th st. nw.; DeAnne Hays, Bethesda-Chevy Chase High School, of 7815 Stratford rd., Bethesda; Hugh Everett 3d, St. John's College High School, of 5604 Sonoma rd., Bethesda; Buddy Combs, Sidwell Friends School, of 10 E. Saul rd., Kensington; Anne Chadwick, Woodrow Wilson High School, of 3723 Albemarle st.; William G. Collier, Central High School, of 1764 N st. nw.

An exhibition of pictorial photographs from the Fourteenth Bell System traveling salon is showing this month in the United States National Museum, Smithsonian Institution.

A new flasholder—the Kodak Flash Syncronizer, Model 2—designed for use with cameras having nonsynchronized shutters, has been announced by the Eastman Kodak Co. This synchronizer may be quickly and easily attached to any camera having a tripod socket and cable release socket.

Lily, Not Orchid, For Olney Show

By Richard L. Coe

THE OLNEY'S "Hand in Hand" is, I regret to report, one for W. W. Chambers and his mortuary colleagues.

This is too bad, for it's an obviously well-meant little charade with music, but the summer breezes, let alone the blasts of a Broadway winter, are too much for even gentlest intentions.

By completely occult reasoning, I had had the impression that the Olney's musical was to be a revue. It's perfectly possibly I might have been reading my own mind, poor thing, but the fact remains I had not expected a plot at Olney and was shaken to discover a long list of people named Stacey, Grandma, Danny, Skippy, Mary, Bunny and Bessie, the way one always will on musical comedy programs.

However, I think it was the intent of Leonard Gershe, the author, to be satiric in his treatment of the usual high school romance which is opposed by a conservative papa. But the Gershe vocabulary has long since been spent in other people's films starring the haggard adolescents of the West Coast. There is little that is fresh in the Gershe approach to Young Love, and what there is he seems to have been forced to leave as dangling ideas, unable to tie them into anything more than a few welcome guffaws, presumably from patient friends.

All this is the more unfortunate because so far the Olney season has been a fruity thing, inspired by past successes; a new play, particularly with music, always whets the appetite, let alone is a welcome thing per se.

The attempts at satire—the hero's brothers are all exact replicas of their box manufacturer-father—are there, but the author hasn't been able to develop his idea. The music of Dean Fuller—with the composer at one of the two pianos—is equally lacking in invention, the tunes being all too reminiscent of lesser college musicals, derivative, wanly pleasant, nothing more.

A Cheerful Chorus Girl

If anything, this "bright new musical," as it's programmed, only goes to illustrate the immense complexity of doing a successful musical show. That once in a while an "Oklahoma!" or an "Annie Get Your Gun" does come along seems the more miraculous; everything about the ideal musical has to hit right on the nose: book, lyrics, music, timing, comic interludes, casting. This one bears all the signs of being turned out by inexperience, resulting in considerably less than some of Catholic University's annual song-dance fetes.

The cast is chiefly remarkable for a delicious little chorus girl whose heart-shaped face is topped by a fetching halo of red thatch. This minute creature, I assume from the program, must be named Ginger Kinney. If I weren't conscious of having doggedly pursued my habitual search for a silver lining, I would boldly predict the Kinney future. As it is, Miss Kinney must at least have Something.

Lenore Lonergan, who has scored in brattish roles in "Junior Miss" and "Dear Ruth," have a pivotal role in the plot, into which I refuse to be further budged. She is now playing a sort of grown-up "Fuffy" of the Benson play, and while she is occasionally amusing, she appears to have spent some months watching Nancy Walker. The veteran Viola Roach has little to do as Grandma and Leonard Claret does the hero's much well in a limited way.

The locale of "Hand in Hand" is supposed to be an uninspired Jersey town named South Grape and the resemblance is all too true.

FUNNY WEEK THIS . . . Two new pictures arrive today, "Dream Girl," with Betty Hutton as the Elmer Rice day-dreamer at the Warner, and "The Gallant Legion," with Western star William Elliott, at the Columbia . . . Which would be all for the week except that the Pix, by some legerdemain, has two "first runs" set for Friday: "A Scandal in Paris," with the late Carole Landis and George Sanders, and "Who Killed Doc Robbin?" which seems to be a Hal Roach comedy with George Zucco and Virginia Grey starred.

THE CAPITOL has a new stage bill opening this morning, though it's continuing "On an Island With You" for a second week starring Esther Williams, her swim suits, Xavier Cugat's rhythms and Jimmy Durante's chansons a piano . . . Heading the stage bill will be Sue Ryan, that lively singing comedienne who needs no introduction to F st. . . . The Palace continues "The Street With No. Name," Keith's holds on to "The Best Year of Our Lives," the Metropolitan takes over "Romance on the High Seas" from the Warner . . . The Little has the unusual H. G. Wells double bill, "Thing to Come," and "The Man Who Could Work Miracles" . . . The Playhouse holds on to "Anna Karenina" and the Du-pont sticks with "The Idiot" . . . The Hippodrome revives two Eddie Cantor musicals, "The Kid From Spain" and "Kid Millions."

HMMMMMMM: Betty Hutton and MacDonald Carey, who seem pretty expert in the make-believe that goes into "Dream Girl." The screen version of Elmer Rice's comedy success opens this morning at the Warner

Postlude

Sunset Symphony Provides Concert of Uncommon Appeal

By Paul Hume

Last night's Sunset Symphony was one of the most enjoyable evenings with music I have ever had.

No soloist lent fireworks to the occasion, but there were musical skyrockets and flares a plenty. Howard Mitchell directed an all-orchestral concert of uncommon appeal and heightened his stature at every point.

Beethoven's Fifth Symphony dominates any program on which it finds place, even after 140 years. Last night the symphony began with due deliberation, mounting throughout the first movement to a fine climax. The slow movement received one of the finest interpretations in this writer's history. It was an unfailing song, moving from mood to mood in perfect serenity. The scherzo, with its tricky lower strings, came off smoothly, and the finale was paced to perfection. It was a performance to resuscitate a score too often beaten to death.

Aaron Copland's Fanfare for the Common Man opened the program, played in virile fashion, though the brass did not always prove themselves masters of the music. One rehearsal is scanty for such works as this. Bach's familiar Air from the third orchestral suite was played impeccably in both tempo and style, a notable achievement in these days of inflated Bach.

American music came again to the fore in Paul White's fanciful miniatures. Running about a minute each they are skillful portraits of vivid imagination. In these and the closing Spanish Caprice of Rimsky-Korsakoff the audience had an opportunity to note the mettle of the summer players. There were excellent moments from solo violin, cello, flute and piccolo, as well as from trumpet and harp. New men on clarinet and English horn showed themselves worthy of praise.

Darius Milhaud's astringent harmonies and masterful scoring make his Suite Provencal sheer delight. Its playing, like that of the Rimsky-Korsakoff masterpiece, was handled with the finest conducting craftsmanship. In fact the Rimsky was so well played and the orchestra sounded so brilliant that it was hard to realize the players were a summer ensemble.

Howard Mitchell is making summer music come alive. The symphony and Board of Trade may be well satisfied with their choice of director.

Friday night: the Gershwin memorial, three soloists, the Rhapsody in Blue, Porgy and Bess, and more. Get your tickets early.

Tentative Report On X-Ray Survey To Be Made Today

A tentative report on results of the recently completed Washington Chest X-Ray Survey will be made today at 4 p. m. at a meeting of survey officials in the board room of the District Building.

As far as possible, survey figures will be broken down in a preliminary analysis of probable results of the five-and-a-half-month campaign against tuberculosis.

Officials pointed out that because of the long period needed to observe and diagnose probable or suspected cases, it cannot be finally determined this early how many active new cases were disclosed by the survey.

D. C. Absolves Pamphleteer

The corporation counsel's office yesterday dropped a charge of distributing political pamphlets against Jack Kutner, 41, of 1208 Evarts st. ne.

"This man should never have been charged," said Assistant Corporation Counsel Clark King.

King said the Supreme Court has ruled it unconstitutional to deprive an individual of the right of distributing political circulars.

Kutner, a union business agent, was arrested June 30, at 13th and F sts. nw., while handing out pamphlets for the Veterans for Eisenhower organization. The policeman who arrested him said he did so because the streets were being littered with the pamphlets.

King ruled you can't be charged with littering the street unless you do it yourself. The $5 collateral posted by Kutner at the time of his arrest will be returned to him.

Draft Called Supplemental To Recruiting

Philadelphia, July 7 (AP)—The director of recruiting for the Army and Air Force said today that the new draft was only a supplemental action and that the forces will continue to rely heavily on three-year volunteers.

Maj. Gen. T. J. Hanley told the eighty-fourth grand lodge meeting of the Benevolent and Protective Order of Elks that the Army and Air Force have no intention of stopping their recruiting programs.

"Selective Service provides a means for the armed forces to fill the gap between their volunteer recruiting intake and their manpower requirements. We will draft only as many men as are needed to make up shortages."

The recruiting service, said General Hanley, was more successful than many people believed possible.

"More than 1,500,000 men have volunteered since 1946," he said.

"It is more than any other nation has ever been able to do."

Pocatello (Idaho) Lodge 674 won the convention's ritual contest in competition that saw 24 teams participate. It was the largest field since the national contests started 18 years ago.

Lodge 37 of Columbus, Ohio, won the band contest.

British Women Copy Bergman

London, July 7 (U.P.).—Ingrid Bergman accomplished in two weeks what fashion dictators have been trying to do for six months—get British women to cut their hair short.

Among the world's slowest women to take on the long-skirted "new look," Britons rushed for the short hair within a few days after Miss Bergman landed here June 22.

"Before Miss Bergman's arrival, we had to bully our women into having their hair cut short. Now we've scarcely enough scissors to go around," said Raymond, swank hair designer.

Escaped Navy Prisoner Still Sought by FBI

One of two Navy prisoners who escaped from the Anacostia receiving station brig Tuesday remained at large yesterday and the object of a search by local police and the FBI.

He is Apprentice Seamon Hiram Hubert, 23, who was awaiting a court-martial on a charge of desertion.

Aviation Machinist's Mate 2/c Clifford D. Rhoads, 21, who with Hubert overpowered a guard Tuesday morning and escaped over the receiving station wall, gave himself up to authorities Tuesday night after he and Hubert had eluded a day-long search throughout Southeast Washington.

Navy authorities said Hubert is believed to be armed with a .38-caliber revolver wrested from the guard during the escape.

They also asked that the Negro driver of a dump truck commandeered by the pair on Good Hope rd. se. come forward.

Realtor Civil Suit Up Thursday

Arguments on a motion to throw out civil charges of antitrust law violations lodged against the National Association of Real Estate Boards and the local board will be heard in District Court next Thursday, it was announced yesterday.

Arguments will be heard by Associate Justice T. Alan Goldsborough.

The motion to dismiss was filed Tuesday by the Washington board at the same time a companion motion containing the same material was filed by the national organization. Both motions are consolidated.

In their pleas for dismissal, the real estate organizations cited the judgment in their favor by Associate Justice Edward M. Curran in criminal proceedings several weeks ago.

The boards also pleaded that the Washington board had rescinded the "code of ethics" which had bound members to abide by certain regulations, one being advocacy of standard rates of commissions.

Mother of 8 Found Garroted Near Home

Providence, R. I., July 7 (AP).—The nude body of a 33-year-old mother of eight—a brassiere knotted tightly about her neck and her legs tied to bushes with her stockings—was found today a short distance from her home in the Roger Williams housing project. The body of Mrs. Evelyn Burns was discovered by two children.

Police Chief Charles A. Higgins quoted the woman's husband, John H. Burns, 37, a baker, as saying he did not report his wife missing when she failed to return home because she "frequently remained away from home at night."

Wallace to End Work For New Republic

New York, July 7 (AP).—New Republic magazine today announced the resignation of Henry A. Wallace as a contributing editor. Wallace said in his final article that "the strenuous three months ahead will require my full energies."

Wallace has been contributing editor of the weekly magazine since he resigned its editorship to seek the presidency on a third party ticket.

His final article will appear in the July 19 issue.

Nats Get Tough, Score 5 in 9th, Beat Bosox, 7-6

This Morning

With Shirley Povich

AT LONG LAST Satchel Paige is in the big leagues and high time, too, according to his admirers, one of whom is Joe DiMaggio. It was back in 1937 that DiMaggio, on a post-season barnstorming tour, came back to the bench and said of Satchelfoot, "The best pitcher I ever faced."

POVICH

Paige says he's 39, but his exact age always has been a vague item. The pity is, as far as his major league future goes, that he beat the bushes in the Negro leagues and the Central American circuits for almost two decades before he got his shot at the majors. He still retains those size 14 brogans that gave him the name of Satchelfoot, but he left a lot of good pitching back there in the bush parks.

Even Jackie Robinson, the first Negro to crash the major league racial barriers, couldn't take rank as the most famous Negro ball player with Paige still around throwing perhaps the fastest ball this generation of hitters ever knew. Jeff Heath once said of Paige, "Satchel's fast ball comes up to you and you think you're swinging at an aspirin tablet; better make that a young aspirin."

Paige had everything to throw a fast ball with, including tremendous leverage from his 6-foot-3-inch frame, and a deep-dip delivery with which he cranked up before letting loose.

HIS POPULARITY among colored fans lapsed at one point a few years ago when he took a stand against admission of Negro players to the major leagues, asserting it would wreck the colored leagues. That was called selfish on Paige's part, and it was pointed out that while he was commanding big appearance fees in the Negro circuits the other players performed for meager salaries.

Satchel never was keen in former years about getting a chance to play big league ball. He could pitch four or five times a week and make himself $30,000 a year, more than any major league club would offer him. In recent seasons he limited his appearances to four or five innings, but in his younger days he would pitch three or four full games without feeling overworked.

The hitters used to complain that Satchel's out-sized feet made him doubly tough. He'd go into his intricate wind-up, described as a one-man melee, and the last thing the batters saw was Satchel's big No. 14 shoe looking down their throat, concealing the ball until it was halfway to the plate.

PAIGE'S strikeout feats are now legend. In his bush-town appearances, he used to guarantee that he'd strike out the first nine men to face him, and most of the time he did. It's documentary, though, that he out-pitched Dizzy Dean four straight times on barnstorming tours, and one one occasion after he was in a scoreless tie with Dean for 10 innings he did say, "Hey, Diz, I'se gonna keep you out here all night iffen you don't give us a run."

The most superfluous thing that ever happened to Satchel was the "try-out" the Indians gave him before signing him the other day. He may like to clown it up but when he's serious about his pitching, he probably has more know-how than Bob Feller or any other pitcher on the Cleveland club. A try-out for a guy who has been a great pitcher for 19 years is some kind of nonsense.

With the Indians, Satchel will embark on a new routine—traveling on Pullmans and staying in the first-class hotels. Those two items never concerned him before. He was always content to travel in fast red cars which he equipped with a pull-down bed, and as like as not he would take his day's sleep outside the park where he was scheduled to pitch that night.

BILL VEECK'S motive in signing Paige at this time will be questioned, of course, and regarded in some quarters as purely a box-office move. Paige does figure to draw the crowds and Veeck is always attendance-conscious, but there is evidence that is not Veeck's prime motive in this case. There is a well-founded idea that Paige could help his ball club.

The Indians are holding a shaky lead in the pennant race with the A's, Yankees and Boston threatening to overhaul 'em, and Veeck's pitching is considerably frayed. Bob Feller went in the other day as a relief pitcher and flopped, losing the game, and the Cleveland strategy doubtless is to unveil Paige as a relief man, at least until he qualifies for a starting job.

At least, Paige will not embark on his new job in the majors with any inferiority complexes. He's pitched against and beaten All-Star teams that are tougher than any lineup he'll face in the American League, and the kind of ball they use is the same. And as for his control, which always was wonderful, Satchel says, significantly, "the plate's the same size, ain't it?"

Triple and Homer

Hank Majeski Slugs Macks To 4-3 Victory Over Yanks

New York, July 7 (AP).—Hank Majeski knocked in three runs with a home run and a triple to lead the Philadelphia Athletics to a 4-3 victory over his former New York Yankee teammates tonight. Dick Fowler spaced nine hits to register his seventh victory against one loss.

A crowd of 61,163 saw the second-place A's make the most of their four hits off Tommy Byrne and Frank Shea to hand the Yankees their fourth straight defeat and remain 10 percentage points behind the pace-setting Cleveland Indians.

Majeski climaxed a three-run first inning for the A's by belting a home run with one aboard. Eddie Joost had opened with a walk, raced to third on a single by Barney McCosky and scored on a fly by Don White.

Majeski drove in what proved to be the winning run in the fifth with a long triple which chased in White who had walked.

Coaches Vote Walkout in D. C. Schools

Washington's pay-seeking high school athletic coaches struck back at the Board of Education last night by voting a walkout at the beginning of the next school term.

In a move that leaves the teams of the city's 12 high schools coachless in all sports unless their demands for pay are met or emergency coaches engaged, 42 of the 45 members of the physical education staffs balloted to relinquish their coaching roles.

Twenty coaches attended last night's special meeting and announced the result of the poll taken of all the teacher-coaches. Spokesman Rolland Lund, baseball coach at Eastern High, issued the following statement:

"Inasmuch as the board of education and the superintendent of schools agree that coaching duties are matters of purely voluntary decisions by teachers, and that no down-rating will follow our decisions not to volunteer to coach interscholastic sports during the 1948-1949 terms, we . . . agree that we will not coach during the next school year.

Continue Other Duties

"We will give to our regular teaching duties our best professional ability and in every other phase of school life will do our utmost to advance our respective schools."

Their action follows a decision by the board of education on July 1 that the coaches are not to be paid for their extra coaching duties. It was pointed out by Superintendent of Schools Hobart M. Corning that "no funds available to provide such compensation and there is no legal authority for such payment."

Lund last night declared Mr. Corning's decision based on the unavailability of funds was "unfair to the coaches, who apprised the Board of Education 18 months ago of its request for compensation and the Board of Education made no attempt to ask Congress for money that would provide it."

The coaches, complaining that their athletic duties with the teams after school hours approximated four hours extra teaching each school day, pointed out that the cost of extra compensation in all schools would require "less than $50,000 a year."

"It isn't a strike," said Lund.

Gosh, Foul Ball

By Gene Jones—The Washington Post

HE HAD IT IN BAG—Joe Smith, 10, of the Alexandria Boys Club, starts a slide into home in a game yesterday at Griffith Stadium. But Teammate Billy Morton, 13, attempting to squeeze Smith home, fouls the pitch. Catcher is Ken Falk, 13, of the Trinidad Boys Club. Umpire Joe Tereshinski calls it a foul ball (see arrow) and little Joe has to trot back to third. The game was won by Alexandria, 92. (Story an Page 19.)

Preacher Roe, who pitched scoreless relief ball for six and two-third innings, was credited with the victory. Warren Spahn went all the way for Boston to be charged with his sixth defeat.

National Uses Only 6 Hurlers But Picks Four Third Basemen

New York, July 7 (AP).—The National League named only six pitchers to its All-Star baseball squad today but picked four slugging third basemen in hopes of overpowering the American League in the annual game at St. Louis next Tuesday.

Customarily eight pitchers are selected, none of whom may hurl more than three innings.

The streamlining of the hurling corps enabled the senior circuit to select four third basemen instead of the usual pair. The extra hot-corner men are Sid Gordon of the New York Giants and Bob Elliott of the Boston Braves. Gordon has walloped 18 home runs and Elliott 10.

From the usual bunt-minded crew, the National League, still smarting under the sting of 10 beatings in 14 clashes with its rivals, will be a home-run hitting aggregation from stem to stern. With the exception of the pitchers, the 25-man squad already boasts 146 home runs.

The six-man pitching staff with the unenviable task of stopping Ted Williams and Co. will consist of righthanders Ralph Branca (10-6), Brooklyn; Johnny Sain (10-6), Boston Braves; Elmer Riddle (9-3), Pittsburgh; Ewell Blackwell (5-5), Cincinnati, and Southpaws Harry Brecheen (9-3), St. Louis Cardinals, and Johnny Schmitz (7-9), Chicago Cubs.

Leo Durocher, manager of the Dodgers, who will pilot the All-Stars, must use the starting lineup designated by the fans for the first three innings.

Among the regulars will be Eddie Stanky, former Dodger infielder, who was traded to the Braves last spring. The scrappy second baseman has played a whale of a game for his new club and is hitting over .300 for the first time in his big league career.

Following his trade, Stanky said that Durocher had "stabbed me in the back." It will be interesting to watch how the two function as teammates again.

Here is how the rest of the starting lineup will shape up:

Miller Loses 2 at Laurel, Is Suspended

William E. Miller, wealthy Washington furniture dealer, generally regarded as one of the best amateur harness drivers in the country, last night had defeat dealt him in bitter doses at Laurel Raceway.

Not only did the 69-year-old expert fail to win the feature 1-mile seventh pace for a $700 purse with his heavily backed Henry Volo and the fourth, a mile and one-sixteenth pace with his favored Major Rosecroft, but the District sportsman was suspended by the Laurel stewards for 15 days.

Miller, who has one of the best stables on the scene, was banned for failure to control Major Rosecroft.

Wayne Groves, presiding steward representing the Maryland Racing Commission, announced Miller's suspension after conferring with Associate Judges George Cook and Glenn Rublee.

It was the second suspension of the night as Groves later announced that Louis Rapone of Caledonia, N. Y., was suspended for 10 days for pounding his 7-year-old black gelding, Theron Hanover, excessively at the finish and after the feature race.

More than 10,000 fans were on hand and they were responsible for a record handle of $200,839.

Judge Groves said that Miller's horse, Major Rosecroft, was sidereining as the horses rounded the turn in the fourth. By that he meant that the horse's head was cocked over to one side, a fault that is often corrected by use of a head pole. Miller's horse was not wearing a head pole.

Major Rosecroft was leading at the time, but Miller cut in short, causing Winnie Direct, driven by Bob Browne, of Baltimore, to strike Miller's sulky wheel, resulting in the break. Both Major Rosecroft and Winnie Direct slowed down, and the rest of the field slid past, with In Command, driven by Willie Myer, winning to pay $15.00, $7.20 and $4.20 across the board.

Earlier Frank Hanna, 70-year-old veteran, scored his third straight success with 19-year-old Hanover Express.

Gillenwater, Coan Deliver Timely Hits

By Morris Siegel
Post Reporter

Boston, July 7.—The Nats dealt Boston's drive toward first place a crushing blow tonight, scoring five runs in the ninth inning to whip the Red Sox, 7-6.

Just when it appeared that the Nats had run out of base hits and were about to be tagged with their third straight loss, the Red Sox ran out of pitchers and their four-game winning streak halted.

The Sockers used four hurlers, including Starter Dave Ferriss, in the climatic ninth, and the Nats improved with each new arrival to the mound.

The lad who sent Boston sprawling was Carden Gillenwater. He socked a double to chase in Eddie Yost with the run that brought Washington its triumph.

Gillenwater There in Pinch

To Gillenwater's bat the Nats owe their last three triumphs. His homer in New York Friday night beat the Yanks, 2-1, and his circuit wallop against the A's Monday won that one, 3-1.

Ferriss was only two outs away from what looked like an easy triumph, which would have been his fifth, when the Nats reared up and got rid of him.

Most of the 3,957 were on their way to the exits when Mark Christman singled to left and very few became greatly alarmed when Ferriss lost control and walked Al Kozar and Jake Early to fill the bases.

But when Ferriss also passed Pinch Hitter Tom McBride to force in one run, the customers quickly reoccupied their seats, and what they saw wasn't good—for the Bosox.

Winning Hit Off Dobson

Ferriss came out after walking McBride, and Eddie Yost saluted Ellis Kinder with a single to score Kozar. Out came Kinder and into the breach stepped Mel Parnell, a southpaw. Gil Coan disposed of him on one pitch, a single, which scored Early and McBride. That tied the score.

Joe Dobson then took over and Gillenwater banged his first offering against the wall in left, Coan scoring with the fifth and winning run of the inning.

Ted Williams saved Dobson from additional embarrassment when he made a fine catch of Ed Stewart's short fly. Vernon was purposely passed to load the bases and Christman, up for the second time in the inning, skied to Stan Spence to end the Nats' assault.

Tom Ferrick retired Pesky, Williams, who had two previous singles, and Spence in order in the ninth.

The Nats moved in front 1-0 in the second, but the Red Sox broke Scarborough's delivery with two in their half of the inning.

Stephens, who got three hits, banged his homer with Spence aboard in the third to make it 4-1.

The Nats whittled their deficit

Old Satch Paige, Great Negro Pitcher Signed by Cleveland, Says 'Batters Can't Scare Me—I've Been Around Too Long'

Last Fall He Beat Feller, Fanned 16

CLEVELAND, JULY 7 (AP).—The newest member of the Cleveland Indians summed it all up:

"Im starting my major league career with one thing in my favor, anyway. I won't be afraid of anybody I see in that batter's box. I've been around too long for that."

That was Leroy (Satchel) Paige speaking, the famous Satchel of Negro baseball fame, who has fogged his "hurry up" ball and "bat dodger" past major leaguers in many an exhibition game for years, who today was signed by the Cleveland Indians.

Just how long he has "been around," or how many games he has won, isn't very clear.

"Born in Mobile," he said. "September 18, 1908." His age has been estimated variously in the 40's and even 50's, but he says he was eligible for the draft to, Bill Veeck signed him up to-all through the Second World War.

But whatever age he admits day in the hope his right-hand relief pitching could bolster the Tribe's drive for a pennant.

SATCHEL PAIGE

Veeck bought Paige's contract from the Kansas City Monarchs of the Negro American League. How much Satchel will be paid wasn't told. But his recent earnings have been estimated at upward of $30,000 annually.

In the past two decades the Satchel has made most of the major leaguers admit he is one of the all-time great hurlers. Babe Ruth and Ted Williams are about the only sluggers who haven't faced him on the exhibition circuit.

And how does he size them up? Of the present crop, Joe DiMaggio is the toughest.

Last fall Paige faced Bob Feller's All-Stars in Los Angeles to win an 8-to-0 decision in which he struck out 16.

Back in 1934 he faced Dizzy Dean at his peak, and took a 1 to-0 win in 13 innings, a game which Veeck calls "the best I've ever seen."

That was a big year for Satchel. He was pitching for Bismarck, N. Dak., a team which won 104 of the 105 games it played.

"And I pitched in every game, I guess. I know there was one month when I started 29 games," he went on.

His strikeout record for a single game is the same as Feller's —18. That was back in 1932, for the Monarchs and against the Baltimore Black Sox, in Yankee Stadium.

He got into baseball in 1925 with the Chattanooga Black Lookouts and in 1928 joined the Birmingham Black Barons. He has been with the Baltimore Black Sox, Chicago American Giants, the Pittsburgh Crawfords and the House of David.

Veeck and Manager Lou Boudreau had him down at the stadium yesterday for a "secret try-out." It was the first time Boudreau had seen him in action. He threw 50 pitches, "and only three or four of them were wide of the plate," said Veeck.

Boudreau managed a few line drives, but said "now I can believe some of the tall stories they tell about his pitching."

Up Beat Put Second in 'Graw Race

By Walter Haight
Post Reporter

Havre de Grace, Md., July 7.—It took the camera, a magnifying glass and some long deliberation to separate two horses at the end of the featured Union Avenue Purse here this afternoon. The judges finally came to a decision some eight minutes after the race.

R. E. Carter's Oriole was declared the winner with Greentree Stable's Up Beat judged second. There was no question about Foxcatcher Farms' Manyunk being third for he was five lengths behind the ardent struggle for top money and two lengths ahead of the Bobanet Stables' King Midas.

It was over a muddy track and under threatening skies that the pair of 3-year-olds almost finished as a team. Despit the soggy going, Oriole was clocked in 1.11 4/5. The race was a wide-open betting affair. The 7222 (paid) customers finally installed Up Beat a light favorite. Oriole paid $19.40.

Last Outings Dull

Oriole, winner over Vulcan's Forge and others at Pimlico last spring, had proved a rather dull performer in Delaware Park racing although he was second to gate mills in his last outing at that track.

The race was between Up Beat and Oriole from start to finish. Jockey P. McLean had the mount on the ultimate winner and appeared to outfox C. Erickson aboard Up Beat. The pair went to the far turn head and head but Erickson elected to ease along and wait for Oriole to weaken.

Oriole failed to toss in the sponge, however. Erickson roused Up Beat in the stretch but the Greentree hope hung after all but getting to the son of Swing and Sway.

As if business around here wasn't bad enough, the track had to make a $20,000 refund on the second race.

Double Pays $492.20

W. T. Leatherbury's Tacaro Milkman, the heavily played favorite, was found to be lame at the post and ordered scratched by the veterinarian. It was a tough break for those who had daily doubles riding on the son of Milkman. There is no provision for a consolation double pay-off here so they got their $2 back.

After Mrs. F. D. Christmas' Friendly Miss won the second race, at a $32.20 mutuel, there was a $492.20 daily double return for those who had this horse coupled with L. J. Stephans' Silk, the $13.80 winner of the first event. Before Tacaro Milkman's withdrawal, the double was displayed at $519.60.

Askins Upset By Dreyer in D. C. Tennis

Nate Askins, the Baltimorean who ousted top-seeded Jim Thackara in an early round, yesterday was upset by Art Dreyer, 8—6, 6—4, in quarterfinal play of the District of Columbia tennis tournament at the Edgemoor Club.

Dreyer, who had earlier toppled fifth-seeded Bill Gifford, swept through the eighth-seeded Askins with a blistering forehand drive that broke the Baltimorean's steady service.

Willie Herbert took an easy 6—2, 6—1 match from Sosie Girgosian in a quarterfinals women's test, the only other match played.

Four matches are scheduled for today, two each in the men's and women's divisions. Dr. Dave Johnson will face John Curtiss at 5:30 p. m. and Don Leavens will oppose Grady Frank at 6 p. m. Both are quarterfinals matches.

Charlotte Decker will play Sarah Moore and Pearl McCoy will meet Willie Herbert in women's semifinals at 6:30. Finals in both divisions are scheduled for Saturday.

Six Boys Qualify for National Play

Stanley Mouser, Dennis Bolster, Eugene Wolfe, Billy Wolfe, Bob Halcombe and Don Dedrick joined Medalist Marvin (Bubby) Worsham as Washington area qualifiers in the National Junior Golf Tournament yesterday as the result of match play competition at Georgetown Prep.

Bubby, brother of the 1947 National Open Champion Lew Worsham, automatically qualified for the National August 13-15 at Lincoln, Nebr., with his 69 medal score Tuesday over the Prep School course.

The Wolfe brothers and Mouser and Bolster hurdled two more rounds in the area Junior Board of Commerce Tourney yesterday and will compete in the semifinals today at 10 a. m. The finals will begin at 2 p. m.

Paired off in the semifinals will be the Wolfe brothers for the first time in tournament match play. Eugene, the elder at 16, will be slightly favored despite the fact that 14-year-old Billy won The Washington Post's Schoolboy Tournament last May.

Both were easy victors yesterday in each of their two tests. Eugene, a Montgomery Blair High student, downed Jim Bogley, 3 and 2, and Halcombe, Anacostia High captain, 6 and 5. Billy, a senior at Montgomery Hills Junior High, whipped John Shilling, 5 and 4, and Don Dedrick, Wilson High captain, 6 and 5.

Bolster, captain of Gonzaga High's team, disposed of Francis Price, 6 and 4, and Charlie Janssen, 6 and 5. Mouser, captain at Bethesda-Chevy Chase High, trimmed Frank Kyne, 6 and 5, and John Eisinger, 3 and 2.

Today's semifinals pairings—Eugene Wolfe vs. Billy Wolfe; Dennis Bolster vs. Stanley Mouser, 10 a. m.; finals at 2 p. m.

Yesterday's first-round results—Mouser defeated Frank Kyne, 6 and 5; John Eisinger defeated Bob Wolfe, 5 and 4; Bolster defeated Francis Price, 6 and 4; Charles Janssen defeated Eddie Reagh, 1 up; Billy Wolfe defeated John Shilling, 5 and 4; Don Dedrick defeated Richard Wolfe, 1 up, 19 holes; Bob Halcombe defeated Fedie Bohlen, 6 and 4; Eugene Wolfe defeated Jim Bogley, 3 and 2.

Second-round results—Mouser defeated Eisinger, 3 and 2; Bolster defeated Janssen, 6 and 5; B. Wolfe defeated Dedrick, 6 and 5; Wolfe defeated Halcombe, 6 and 5.

West Juniors Beat East, 7-3

A tremendous triple by 14-year-old Paul Weinstein in the first inning paced the West to a 7-3 victory over the East yesterday in a junior all-star Boys Club of Washington baseball game at Griffith Stadium.

Weinstein's blow went over the leftfielder's head and rolled to the bleacher wall 405 feet away, and came with one aboard.

Yale Crews Dominate Olympic Tryout Heats

By Hugh Fullerton, Jr.

Princeton, N. J., July 7 (AP).—Yale's oarsmen dominated the first day's trial heats in the second division of the Olympic rowing tryouts today, winning three of four events and finishing a close second in another.

Beaten in the eight-oared trials last week, the Eli sweepswingers came back to qualify for the semifinals in the events for four-oared crews with coxswain, fours without coxswain and doubles.

After 12 heats in four events, Princeton and the Vesper Boat Club of Philadelphia shared the runnerup spot behind Yale. Each qualified a finalist in the pairs without coxswain—the one event in which Yale was beaten—and a semifinalist in one other event. Princeton's four with coxswain turned in one of the day's outstanding performances to go into the semifinal against the favored University of Washington crew. Vesper's doubles pair also reached the semifinals.

Princeton Fastest

The Washington-Princeton duel, a possible repeat of the Washington-California meeting in last week's eight-oared tryouts, promises to be the big event of Friday's semifinals. Princeton, the fourth and last qualifier, turned in the day's fastest time in this event, 7:04.4 for the 2000 meters course.

Washington, the smoothest looking crew in the big field and the advance favorite, won in 7:26.5 without being pressed.

Semifinals in most of the six events included in this section of the Olympic program are scheduled for Friday. Tomorrow will be devoted to the "repechage" heats, the second trials granted to crews beaten in the first tests. Winners of these heats qualify for the semifinals just as today's winners did.

The opening round of the single sculls competition, which drew only five entries, also will be rowed tomorrow. Only five entries were listed for pair-oared shells without coxswain and as a result today's winners went directly into Saturday's final. The sixth event, pairs with coxswain, is confined to a three-boat final.

At the end of the long first day, here's how things stood:

Fours with coxswain heat winners qualifying for semifinals: Yale, 7:26.2; Shrewsbury, Mass., Rowing Club, 7:09.9; Washington, 8:26.5, and Princeton, 7:04.4.

Four without coxswain, heat winners qualifying for semifinals: Fairmount Rowing Association, Philadelphia, 7:07.6; Yale, 6:46.7; West Side Rowing Club, Buffalo, N. Y., 7:07.8.

Doubles heat winners qualifying for semifinals: Arthur Gallagher, Penn A. C., and Joe Angyal, New York A. C., 7:13; Charles and Joseph McIntyre, Vesper Boat Club, Philadelphia, 7:10.6; Richard Krumenta and Harry Payne Whitney, Yale, 7:16.

Pairs without coxswain heat winners qualifying for finals: Aloysius Lawn and Charles Colgan, Vesper, 7:41.1; Stephen Halsey and James Schaefer, Princeton. (Heat stopped, restarted because of collision.)

Leg Injury May Keep Dodds From Qualifying for Olympics

Chicago, July 7 (AP).—The American Olympic financial prospect brightened today but the team outlook was overcast by injury to Gil Dodds, king of America's milers.

Dodds, the only United States distance runner with a real chance to score, has a strained Achilles tendon in his left leg.

If this forces him out of the 1500 meter final tryout in Evanston Saturday the Olympic committee will be compelled to leave him off the team.

In Boston, however, Dodds said he would run in the Saturday tryouts despite his leg injury.

The "Flying Parson" jogged through a 45-minute workout under the watchful eye of Coach Jack Ryder.

Afterward, newsmen asked Dodds how his leg felt.

"All right," he replied laconically.

He worked out with a 2-inch rubber-cushioned heel. His leg was encased in plaster half-way to the knee.

Ryder said Dodds had everything to gain by running in the final 1500 meter Olympic tryouts and explained a bit grimly:

"If he doesn't compete all chances of gaining a place on the team will be lost."

Earlier, Tug Wilson of the Olympic track committee said in Chicago that Dodds must qualify in the tryout at Evanston or be left off the team—"regrettable as it would be."

The injury that threatens to rob him of an Olympic spot ironically is the first in his long racing career—a career that has seen him win six AAU championships and set three indoor world records for the mile.

On the bright side today, Owen Van Camp, Olympic treasurer, reported that $28,000 was received overnight, bringing the total on hand to $358,000 against a budget of $500,000. An additional $80,000 is pledged.

Cranford After Walcott Bout

Washington's Jackie Cranford may meet Jersey Joe Walcott in Griffith Stadium September 13, Promotor Gabe Menendez announced yesterday.

Menendez added that Walcott's handlers are agreeable to the bout, provided a large enough gate can be assured and provided Cranford passes his test with Jackie Lyons Monday night at the ball park.

Laverne Roach, Plainview, Tex., middleweight, will oppose Washington's Aaron Perry in the best of the four. Ken Stribling will face Randy Brown of New York and Jimmy Cooper, a fourth Washington fighter, will meet British Joe Kay.

Reds Thump Cubs, 10-3

Chicago, July 7 (AP).—Andy Pafko, newly named as the National League All-Star third baseman, made three errors as the Chicago Cubs floundered to a 10-3 defeat at the hands of the Cincinnati Reds here today.

Heading for Show Down

Big 7 Meets on Kansas' Defiance of Eligibility Rule

Kansas City, July 7 (AP).—A Big Seven conference eligibility rule was heading for a showdown tonight.

The conference faculty representatives will hold a special session here Saturday to consider University of Kansas' defiance of a new interpretation of the rule which bars five Jayhawker athletes.

Chancellor Dean W. Malott of Kansas threw a bombshell into the conference last Saturday by announcing the five would play for K. U. "if they choose."

Reaves Peters, the conference's executive secretary, said Saturday's meeting had been called for the sole purpose of taking up Kansas' position on the matter. He said six schools had asked for the meeting "with the approval and good will of Kansas."

The rule reinterpretation came at the May meeting of faculty representatives. It set out that athletes entering school before May 1, 1947, must count both junior college and freshman competition as one of four years of competition. that athletes entering after that date could play three years exclusive of freshman or first year junior college play.

Malott called the reinterpretation "discriminatory and retroactive" and announced he would not break faith with former service athletes affected.

Kansas players affected are Don Fambrough, guard; Tom Scott, quarterback; Marvin Small, end; Gene Sherwood, tackle, and basketball forward Jack Eskridge.

Coach Blaik Also Takes Over As Athletic Director at Army

West Point, N. Y., July 7 (AP).—Earl H. (Red) Blaik, head football coach at Army since 1941, was given the added duties of athletic director today under a new athletic setup at the United States Military Academy.

Under the revision of the Army Athletic Association, Col. Orrin C. Krueger was named graduate manager of athletics.

The changes were announced by Maj. Gen. Maxwell D. Taylor, superintendent of the Academy, who said the new organizational plan was made in view of the increased importance of sports.

Krueger succeeds Col. Lawrence (Biff) Jones, who reaches retirement age this summer. The academy has had no athletic director.

Jones, an Army grad, became graduate manager of athletics at Army February 2, 1942, after holding head football coaching jobs at Louisiana State University, Oklahoma University and the University of Nebraska.

Blaik, named coach of the year by his colleagues in 1946, is now in his eighth season at the Army helm.

COACHES—From P. 17

Coaches Vote to Walkout

"We are simply declining to volunteer for coaching duties at the start of the next term. We are protected against down-grading. The complaint that the Board of Education does not have the money to pay us for extra duties is weak. In the past they have found funds for other special activities."

The coaches turned down an alternative offered by the Board of Education—"staggered hours" that would give the coaches time off to compensate them for hours spent with the teams.

"We couldn't accept that proposition," said Lund. "Our absence from classes would increase the teaching load among other teachers in the schools and be unfair to the students who would get a split-teaching personnel."

Lund pointed out that a recent survey of cities of more than 100,000 population showed 58 of those 81 cities gave extra compensation to physical education teachers who coached teams in addition to their other duties.

down by one in their half of the fifth only to have the Sox bounce back with another run in their half to make it 5-2.

Doerr's homer against Welteroth, which opened the eighth, upped Boston's lead to 6-2 and set the stage for the Nats' big rally.

The loss was pinned on Kinder, who pitched to only one batter. The victory went to Rookie Welteroth, who pitched the seventh and eighth for the Nats.

Retired Plumber Acquired Diplomacy Under 96 Senators

Leonard Benjamin Jay, 61, can look back on hundreds of skirmishes and diplomatic encounters with august Senators who wanted to have something "fixed."

Jay is not a lobbyist or a political "fixer," however. He retired last week as head plumber and principal mechanic of the Senate Office Building, after 42 years with the office of the Capitol Architect.

"When you work for 96 Senators, as I have been doing," he said yesterday during a visit and presentation of a wrist watch by his fellow employes, "you have 96 bosses. You have to handle the requests or complaints of these Senators very diplomatically."

Born and raised at 420 Seward sq. se., where he still lives, Jay started working at the Capitol some three years before the Senate Office Building was occupied in 1909. Since 1944, he has been in charge of maintenance, plumbing and heating, and taking care of any fires in the building.

"The thing to do is to try to do your work without annoying them," he declared yesterday. Extremely reticent about his work, Jay admitted he started the Capitol Hill bowling team in 1920 and played on it during its several "championship years."

Unmarried, he plans to "take it easy" and visit friends.

Hospital Fund Drive Short In Arlington

Arlington Hospital's services "may have to be curtailed" and some parts of the hospital closed down if the present $85,000 fund drive continues to fail, Gilbert L. Hall, president of the hospital board of trustees said yesterday.

Begun May 10 the drive thus far has raised only $26,865. Nearby Alexandria Hospital, however, already has received $167,628 toward its $200,000 target after only three weeks.

Hall emphasized that Arlington Hospital "will not close" if the fund campaign fails. But he said services would have to be cut, rates adjusted, or some other source of revenue found unless the quota is met.

Hospital officials said their chief stumbling block in the campaign has been the lack of volunteer workers to canvass Arlington homes.

'Truth Serums' Flayed

Paris, July 7 (NYHT).—The Paris bar association unanimously condemned today the use of "truth serums" in legal proceeding. Employment of drugs to make accused persons talk deprived them of their "right of determination," the association decided.

ERP Aid Treaty Is Ratified by French Assembly

Paris, July 7 (NYHT).—The French National Assembly today ratified the bilateral treaty fixing the conditions of United States aid under the European Recovery Program. The vote was 336 against the Communist bloc of 183.

There were 76 abstentions, all or almost all of them Gaullist. Followers of General De Gaulle did not accept the Communist protests that ERP was "American imperialism." But his rightist champions agreed with their leader's criticism that there were strings attached to the accord.

This happened on the eve of a session of the Council of the Organization for European Economic Cooperation, which meets here Thursday.

by Jerry Klutz

Proposed $330 Raise For GPO Developing Opposition in Congress

GPO: Opposition has developed to a proposed pay raise of $330 to each of the 1000 annual employes of the Government Printing Office. Several members of the Joint Congressional Committee on Printing, it seems, take the view that salaries of these employes are higher than those of classified employes in similar work in other Federal agencies.

The Public Printer has the authority to fix rates of pay for his annual workers. He tries to keep the salaries in line with classification rates. Since classified employes are to get a flat $330 increase, GPO hopes to do likewise and make it effective as of July 11.

A study is now being made on comparable annual salary rates in GPO and other Federal agencies. GPO officials seem confident that it will prove their annual salaries aren't out of line; that the opposition will collapse, and that the $330 raise will be ordered.

WHERE'S ELMER? Agriculture officials are asking themselves that question and they aren't trying to be funny. They have in mind Elmer Wene, a New Jersey Democratic power, whom the President named Assistant Agriculture Secretary.

A week ago everything was set for Elmer to take the oath of office but he failed to appear. The chairs and decorations are still in the patio of the Administration Building. But officials now doubt if Elmer will appear because Frank Hague, the New Jersey Democratic boss, has joined the dump-Truman drive.

WAR ASSETS Administrator Jess Larson is reported ready to resign to join the White House staff. White House Press Secretary Charley Ross refused comment on the report yesterday.

POLITICS: You can look for the Democratic platform to pledge adequate salaries to Federal workers. Also, Uncle Sam's workers will be referred to in kindly terms in the platform. Senator Myers (D., Pa.) chairman of the platform committee, is an outspoken friend of Federal workers.

LABOR: Wendell Lund who was chief of the labor division at the War Production Board, has support to be Labor Secretary. He is now a Detroit attorney.

UP: Federal employment took another jump during the month of May. The net increase was 12,854 to bring total Federal employment in this country and abroad to 2,061,342. Employment here rose 432 to a total in the executive agencies of 202,782.

All of the overall increase was in four agencies—Army, Navy, Air Forces and Postoffice. The only sizable reduction was 416 in the Veterans Administration.

And Federal employment will continue to go up for the remainder of this year. The Congress approved funds to hire upward of 100,000 new workers.

JOBS: The Army has openings for 500 additional civilian employes in its Signal Corps installations at Fort Monmouth, N. J. Needed are instructors in radio, electricity, and radio. Also wire experts, physicists, laboratory technicians, technical writers, electrical engineers, typists and stenographers. Those interested should write or apply in person to the civilian personnel office, Room 308, Russel Hall, Fort Monmouth, N. J.

STORY: Many of the anti-Truman Democrats are turning to Supreme Court Justice William O. Douglas as a possible candiate for the Democratic presidential nomination. However, this is an inside Douglas story:

The President had Douglas to a secret White House luncheon not so long ago. Democratic politics were frankly discussed. Douglas told the President that he was happy on the court and that he had no desire to enter the political arena. Further, that he would do everything he could do in a dignified way to discourage the linking of his name to political talk.

Incidentally, it's entirely possible that the President had Douglas in mind for his running mate until the justice took his strong stand against entering the political field.

NOTES: The President has exempted Frank H. Wang, executive secretary of the Panama Canal, from the 70-year compulsory retirement . . . The Public Housing Administration is mapping plans to close most of its field offices. Some of the employes will be transferred here . . . Civil Service has open an exam for nautical scientists. The jobs pay from $3397 to $5905 to start. Vacancies are in Navy's Hydrographic Office and Commerce's Coast and Geodetic Survey.

COMMERCE is adding about 275 employes here in its Office of International Trade. Most of the new jobs are in the Export Control Division.

The department has given Treasury's Customs Bureau $1,350,000 of its new four-million-dollar appropriation for export control. Customs will use the money to hire about 300 new employes to police exports. All new Customs jobs will be in the field.

Civil Aeronautics Administration has funds to hire about 1500 new employes. Likewise, the vast majority of these jobs will be outside this city. Other Commerce agencies slated for expansions are the Weather Bureau and the Census Bureau. In all, Commerce has funds for about 3000 additional workers.

Some Hike Favored on Transit Fares

Two Organizations, However, Object To Increase Sought By Company Here

Two Washington organizations last night went on record in favor of a fare increase, but not one as high as the Capital Transit Company is seeking.

The North Washington Council of Citizens' Associations called the transit companies fare proposal "unconscionable."

The second organization, the Federation of Businessmen's Association approved a "fair and equitable" increase in fares.

After hearing E. D. Merrill, CTC president, discuss the proposed fare boosts, the citizens' council unanimously passed a resolution which puts the ceiling at 12½ cents for an individual fare, 55 cents for five tokens, and $1.65 for the weekly pass.

Capital Transit Request

Capital Transit has asked the Public Utilities Commission to raise fares to 15 cents a ride, 25 cents for two tokens, and $1.85 for the weekly pass. The present three cent school ticket would remain the same.

The council's action came on the heels of a flat prediction by Merrill that unless PUC grants the increases it asks, the company "will very soon be in the hands of receivers."

Merrill said the company expects a $335,000 deficit for the year ending June 30, 1949. The fare increases, he said, would bring in around $1,800,000 additional revenue, which would still be less than the $2,500,000 deemed "fair return" by the PUC.

Council Chairman Benjamin Striner named a committee composed of Leverett A. Meadows, Vernon V. Baker and O. Ellsworth Rue to draw up a formal resolution on its stand. The committee will appear before PUC fare increase hearings at 10 a. m. next Tuesday in the District Building boardroom.

Special Meetings Held

The special meeting, called for the purpose of discussing the proposed fare boosts, was held at the Sixth Precinct stationhouse, Nicholson st. nw. between 13th and 14th sts. Representatives of 11 citizens' associations were present.

The action of the businessmen, also taken at a special meeting, followed a speech by C. H. Giddings, special assistant to Capital Transit's president, who spoke in behalf of the company.

The Federation, however, did not favor the proposed increased rates asked by Capital Transit.

"The group is in favor of fair and equitable increases as may be determined by the Public Utilities Commission," Louis F. Frick, Federation secretary, said.

The special meeting was held in the Board room of the American Security and Trust Co., 15th and Pennsylvania ave. nw.

Court Weighs Griffin Stay Of Execution

The United States Court of Appeals held a special session late yesterday to determine whether a stay of execution should be granted for Baxter Griffin, 42, condemned to die Friday.

After oral arguments were presented, the court suspended further action until today.

Griffin was condemned to death in the District Jail electric chair for the murder last February of Lee Hunter, 25.

Meanwhile, Griffin filed suit in District Court for $150,000 damages from his defense attorney and two members of the United States attorney's office.

Through his new attorney, John M. Holtzworth, Griffin charged that his trial lawyer, Robert I. Miller, did not competently defend him. Griffin also charged that United States Attorney George Morris Fay and his assistant, Grace Stiles, withheld evidence of a knife in Hunter's pocket and thus caused an illegal conviction.

Long Missing Museum Pilot, Head Found, Slated for Duty

Harris & Ewing

BACK IN THE PILOT'S SEAT—Paul Garber (left), museum curator, and Danny Dever, posed for this picture on a routine flight through the Smithsonian before Danny was reported missing. Danny will soon be at the controls again

Danny Dever, long missing pilot of the Smithsonian Air Museum, may soon be returned to inactive duty, it was reported yesterday.

Danny, who sat in the pilot seat of this Nation's first military plane, lost his head early in World War II when museum officials took steps to safeguard Americana. He became a victim of war fears of enemy bombing of Washington.

Danny next lost his hands and finally even his excelsior stuffed body disappeared. No one seemed to care because his plane was not on display in its wartime storage in Luray Caverns.

Danny's job was to indicate which way the 1909 plane, first ever purchased by a military unit, flew.

Apparently no one missed Danny until Paul Garber, the museum curator, returned from war duty in the Navy. And by then, no one knew what had happened to the missing pilot.

Last week, said Garber, Danny's head turned up in another division of Smithsonian Institution. His uniform, a composite of the military garb of 1919, was found in the section devoted to military uniforms.

By last night, his whittled wood hands and his rigged-up body were still missing. But new ones will be made up soon.

That answers everything but how the dummy got his name. Garber said that came about when the dummy was first "hung" so that he could be moved into the pilot's seat. Someone began whistling the air of Kipling's poem, the closing chorus line of which goes:

"Ho! the young recruits are shakin', an' they'll want their beer today,

3 Men Here Face Numbers Charges Today

Three alleged numbers operators will be arraigned today, after their arrest yesterday by vice squad detectives under command of Lieut. Roy Blick.

One man, Leroy Jamison, 39, of 2117 10th st. sw., was taken into custody at Union Station after, police said, he had accepted a bet from a vice squad detective posing as a Washington Terminal employe.

Blick said Jamison had been under observation for 10 days and that he had been taking bets from Terminal employes. Police said marked money and numbers slips were found on him. Jamison was charged with operating a lottery and possessing slips, and was released in $1500 bond for appearance today in Municipal Court.

Two other men, Elton F. King, 37, of 441 Kenyon st. nw., and Robert T. Hill, 39, of 39 P st. nw sw., were arrested when detectives raided a grocery in the basement of 525 15th st. ne., shortly after 3 p. m. yesterday.

King was charged with operating a lottery, possession of numbers slips, and permitting gaming. He was released in $2000 bond for arraignment before the United States Commissioner today.

Hill was charged with operating a lottery and possession of slips, and was released in $1500 bond to appear before the United States Commissioner at the same time.

Youth's Drowning Held an Accident; Funeral Today

A certificate of accidental death by drowning was issued yesterday for Donald Dasher, 21, Fairfax Station, Va., whose body was recovered from the Potomac River just above Great Falls late Tuesday.

Dasher drowned during an outing Monday when a boat capsized. Married only two months, he was a truck driver for a Falls Church firm.

Funeral services will be held at St. John's Lutheran Church, Fifers Corner near Waterloo, Md., today at 2:30 p. m. Burial will be in the church graveyard.

Russian Wife Seeks Decree, GI Here Learns

Sergt. William V. Phillips, 28, of the Bolling Air Force Base, learned yesterday from a routine wire service dispatch that his Russian wife has filed suit for divorce.

The unofficial notification climaxed a series of unhappy events for the young couple, who have a 5-month-old son, whom Sergeant Phillips has never seen.

The Air Force supply clerk met his wife, Antonina, during the war while he was on duty in Russia as a personnel clerk for the Army. He returned to Moscow on duty again in July, 1946, and they were married five months later.

They kept the marriage a secret until a month before he returned to this country where Phillips hoped to establish a home with his family in Pen Argyl, Pa.

A year ago Phillips reenlisted in the Air Forces, hoping that he might get back to Russia, or that he might bring his wife here. But so far he has failed.

Some time ago he wrote his wife to suggest, unwillingly, that a divorce might be the best solution. Six weeks ago she replied that she did not want a divorce.

Since then, except for yesterday's press dispatch, he has had no word of his wife.

10 Shirley Homes Families Driven To Other Quarters

At least 10 Shirley homes families in Arlington were in different quarters temporarily yesterday until water and fire damage from the lightning bolt Tuesday night could be repaired.

Fourteen units of two Shirley homes buildings in the 2400 block of S. Scott st., were affected by the lightning, which struck a chimney during an electrical storm and started a fire under the roof.

Although flame damage was slight, Shirley homes officials said much personal property had been damaged by water from fire hoses. They said three or four families were back in the damaged buildings, while the others were staying with neighbors or relatives in the area. Contractors estimated the damage would be repaired in two weeks.

Park View Playground Plan Scored

3 Speeches Voice Objection to Split In Its Use Between Whites and Negroes

Three speakers yesterday objected to a Recreation Department proposal that the Park View Playground, Warder and Otis sts. nw., be used during school hours as a white playground and at other times as a playground for Negroes.

George F. Stanton, representing the committee on the Park View Playground of the Southern Conference for Human Welfare, and Mrs. Lucille Freeman of the Pleasant Plains Civic Association, asked at a Recreation Board hearing that the playground be made available to "all children without regard to race or color."

John H. Connaughton, president of the Federation of Citizens Associations but appearing at the hearing as a representative of the Petworth Citizens Association, declared the proposal would "aggravate" racial relations already tense in the area. He asked that the playground continue for white use only.

Announcement Here Tuesday

The board met in executive session after the hearing but said its decision will not be announced until its regular monthly meeting on Tuesday.

Transfer of the playground was proposed by Recreation Superintendent Milo C. Christiansen, who reported school census figures showing that in the 5-year period from 1942 to 1947 the number of white children in the area has decreased from 1036 to 351 while the number of Negro children has increased from 427 to 576.

Christiansen said the Raymond Playground two blocks away can adequately take care of white children. He proposed that Park View be used by white children during school hours because it is adjacent to the white Park View Elementary School.

James E. Schwab, vice chairman of the board, said activities for white children at Park View have been curtailed because of the inability of playground employes to keep Negro children off the play space. The wading pool was closed for this reason, he said.

The hearing twice flared up into arguments between board members and speakers.

Board Chairman Harry S. Wender ruled Stanton out of order when the Negro speaker from the Southern Conference for Human Welfare called for opening the playground to all children.

"We will not consider at this time anything other than rejection or approval of the recommendation," Wender said. "What you are asking would require a change in the rules of the board and in the law."

Stanton, who said he would not express a view on the proposal, told Wender:

"I do not concur in the assumption that the law would have to be changed."

Connaughton cited the recent murder of 11-year-old Carol Bardwell as a reason why the playground should not be turned over to use by Negroes.

Board Secretary Objects

Mrs. Alice Hunter, secretary of the board, said Connaughton was speaking off the subject and declared:

"As a Negro woman I resent that every time someone has been murdered the immediate thought or intimation is that a Negro committed it."

When she asked Connaughton how playground employes were to keep Negro children off the white playground, he said:

"You mothers can help. You can control your child and I can control mine. If not, we have a Juvenile Court that can help us both out."

Wender read into the record a letter from Fred S. Walker of the Park View Citizens Association, which said that the Negro population is adequately served by Howard, Banneker and Monroe playgrounds. He asked that Park View continue in use for white children.

'Lung' Presentation Today

A portable iron lung purchased with contributions from District residents will be presented to Emergency Hospital at 11 a. m. today by the District Department of Amvets. Presentation of the medical equipment, which was exhibited for two weeks at 14th st. and New York ave. nw., will be made by George B. Kennedy, jr., department commander, to Hospital Superintendent James G. Capossela in Capossela's office.

7 More Trees in Area Found With Dutch Elm Infection

BLIGHTED TREE—This once magnificent elm tree has been infected with the Dutch Elm disease. Its branches have withered away. Picture is from an encyclopedia

Seven new cases of Dutch elm disease, which withers trees in a jiffy, were reported yesterday by George W. Harding, Interior Department horticulturist.

This brings to 13 the total number of cases which have cropped up in the Washington area recently. The latest outbreak, over a period of two months, led Harding to predict that Washington may see hundreds of instances of the disease next year.

He urged residents to report signs of withering branches and leaves, pointing out that immediate care is essential to save the blighted tree and stall spreading of the virus.

Treatment consists of spraying with DDT, in some cases pruning branches and in serious instances removing the entire tree. Beetles serve as carriers.

Locations of the latest victim-trees follow: George Washington Memorial hwy., between the railroad bridge and highway bridge; Lincoln Park, east side; a District street tree at 1st st. and Virginia ave. sw.; Delaware ave. at B st. sw.; Hazen Park, on the Tilden st. side; opposite 1122 1st st. se.; National Gallery of Art, northeast corner of grounds.

The first two verified cases of elm disease around the Capital were reported late last summer in the park near the Lincoln Memorial. Four more appeared early this year, one near the Jefferson Memorial, two on streets in the area and one in the back yard of a private house.

The Dutch Elm disease was first observed in The Netherlands in 1919 and thus received its name. It was first noticed in North America in the vicinity of New York about 1930. Since then the disease has killed stately elms as far west as Ohio, where it was first seen in 1940.

Attorney Hit By Auto, Both Legs Broken

David R. White, 48-year-old attorney of 4418 S. 9th st., Arlington, Va., was injured seriously yesterday when struck by an automobile at Columbia pike and S. Buchanan st., Arlington.

Police identified the driver of the auto as Leland F. Keller, 30, of Niagara Falls, N. Y. Keller, police said, admitted he was going 40 miles an hour on Columbia pike in a 35-mile-an-hour zone. He saw White standing in the center of the pike, but was unable to stop in time.

He was released under $500 property bond to await outcome of the victim's injuries. Physicians at Arlington Hospital said the lawyer suffered fractures of both legs and multiple cuts and bruises.

Parking Ticket Is Adjusted For Vardaman

James K. Vardaman, jr., former naval aide to President Truman and now a governor of the Federal Reserve System, was warned last week on a traffic ticket he received for parking in a zone marked "no parking from 4 to 6 p. m."

He was one of 95 motorists for whom traffic tickets were adjusted during the week by the police department.

According to the list of adjustments, Vardaman was warned because he had a clear record, showing no former traffic violations.

Two persons were granted warnings for traffic violations after they explained they had accidentally locked their keys in the car. They were Lee C. Wrenn, of 2308 Ashmead pl. nw., and Peggy S. Miller, 6360 31st pl. nw.

Wrenn said he parked his auto on 9th st. between F and G sts. nw., and locked the keys inside. By the time he could get home and back again with a second set of keys, a ticket had been placed on his car. Now he carries two sets of keys with him, he said.

Tickets were canceled for five motorists because of diplomatic immunity. They were: Charles Schlumf, of the Swiss Legation, parking overtime; A. H. Khannak, Embassy of Iraq, parked in a "no parking anytime" zone; Yuan Chao Wang, Chinese Embassy, parked less than 40 feet from the intersection; Carlos A. Valenzuela, Argentine Embassy, parked in a "no parking at anytime" zone, and Ruth H. Kuo of 3601 Connecticut ave. nw., parked less than 40 feet from the intersection.

Keleher's Reply Cites New Laws Since Hammurabi

John B. Keleher, 2400 16th st. nw., filed an answer yesterday to his wife's suit in Municipal Court to compel him to pay $486 back rent on her apartment at the Woodley Park Towers.

The wife, Mrs. Anna T. Keleher, who has also filed divorce proceedings, based her rent suit on what she called the law since the Code of Hammurabi that a husband must pay his wife's rent.

The answer, filed by the law firm of Newmyer & Bress, said: "Plaintiff fails to cite any authority in support of her claim more recent than the Code of Hammurabi, a Babylonian King. Without discussing the law of that ancient day, it is sufficient to state that there have been some changes made."

Battle Observance Set

Union Sons and Daughters of the Civil War will hold their sixteenth annual observance of the Battle of Fort Stevens, at 6:30 p. m. Saturday at Fort Stevens Park, 14th and Quackenbos sts. nw. Representative Hubert S. Ellis (R., W. Va.) will speak on "Lincoln and the World Today." The program is sponsored by the Ladies of the Grand Army of the Republic, Department of the Potomac.

Cut in Funds Slows Work Of Jobless Aid Board

$75,000 Slash Hampers Efforts To Uncover Fraud, Director Declares

Cuts in funds are crippling operations of the District Unemployment Compensation Board and hampering efforts to detect fraudulent compensation claims.

This was disclosed yesterday by C. A. Wharton, board director, who said a continuous investigation "indicates that fraud does exist" in compensation claims.

At the same time, Wharton announced a new reduction in the operating funds of the board for the next six months.

21 Employes Laid Off

"Twenty-one employes have been laid off since July 1," said Wharton, "and more will have to be laid off, due directly to the Social Security Administration having reduced by $75,000 the funds which were estimated to be the absolute minimum to operate from July through December, 1948.

"The operation and functioning of the board will be very seriously crippled due to such reduced personnel."

While publicity given to fraudulent claims leads the public to believe fraud is widespread, said Wharton, "actually, the extent to which fraud is committed is largely a guess." Social Security Administration surveys, he said, show the proportion of fraudulent claims ranges to 1 or 2 per cent of unemployment compensation applications.

"It is of prime importance," he said, "that a careful distinction be made between deliberate dishonesty and innocent mistakes made by claimants as a result of the complexities of various laws."

Deliberate fraudulent claims, said Wharton, may arise through many ways. A claimant may state he is unemployed, when he was fully employed or had a part-time job.

Or, he may say he is "available for work," and refuse a job; say he was fired because of lack of work when he simply c[illegible] for benefits under more than one name or social security number, or even conspire with an employer to supplement his wages.

Board Has 167 Employes

"With adequate financial aid, which should come from the Federal unemployment fund established for administrative expenditures," said Wharton, "our board could intensify and expand its efforts to apprehend claimants who are seeking benefits by dishonest means."

The Unemployment Compensation Board, with headquarters at 451 Pennsylvania ave. nw., currently has 167 employes to handle claims arising from the 300,000 Washington employes for whom 16,000 District employers pay unemployment taxes.

At peak operation, just after the war, said Wharton, the board had 235 employes.

Employers pay two forms of unemployment compensation taxes. In the District, they pay from .1 per cent to 2.7 per cent of payrolls, depending on unemployment rates, directly to the District for exclusive use in paying unemployment claims.

An additional tax of .3 per cent is paid to the Federal Government, for administering the benefits.

Since 1936, said Wharton, one and a half billion dollars—including seven and a half million dollars from District employers—has been collected by the Federal Government for administering the compensation. "Only 590 millions" has been dispersed, he said, with the District getting three and one half millions of this for administration.

For District benefit payments, 54 million dollars has been collected, and only 14 million spent, he said. "Unfortunately," said Wharton, "this money cannot be touched for administrative purposes—which is our big need."

Wharton said he did not intend to imply that no "policing" of claim applications is performed. "The District law, and the policies of the board, though admittedly inadequate," he said, "do provide for testing the applicants' integrity."

$330 Pay Raise Spreads Thin in Family of 8

By Adrienne Tassler
Post Reporter

The new Federal pay raise won't mean much to Jim Flynn—not with six kids, rising rents and "those prices."

The $3640-a-year auditor for the Postoffice Department divulged some of his money woes yesterday in response to a reporter's query on what the $330 boost in Federal workers' pay holds in store for him.

The first batch of fatter checks should be along next week.

"It doesn't," the soft-spoken Federal worker began, "mean much. It comes to roughly $11 every two weeks and that spreads pretty thin."

Immediate results of the larger check, Flynn said, will be a boost in rent. He lives in nearby Greenbelt, Md., and there the Federal Government, as landlords, charges "according to family income." He thinks he's "mighty lucky" at that to have a three-bedroom apartment for $56 a month.

On the subject of food, which Flynn figures "takes all our money," he grew really eloquent. "I can't see where we have anything in the way of entertainment or clothing or much of anything else."

Flynn estimated the family eats $200 worth of food a month, "which seems preposterous . . . but it's true." The milk bill alone runs to $30 a month, "just like paying rent twice."

Back in 1940, when he was earning $1440 a year, Flynn said he managed to save $200. But in those days his family was smaller, and so were prices, he recalled.

And he touched on other things—how they haven't seen butter or steak for "two years at least"—how most weekly dinners consist of "vegetables or something cheap out of a can"—how he hasn't had a new suit for three years at least and his wife rarely gets a new dress—how he carries sandwiches to work for luncheon because it's cheaper that way.

Because he'd be 'way in the red otherwise (their war bonds went years ago) Flynn works Friday nights and until 10 p. m. Saturday as a cashier to supplement the family income.

"They don't like it much here," he observed, "but I know hardly any neighbors out in Greenbelt who don't have to do the same thing." That brings in another $12 a week.

"So you see," Flynn remarked, "that $11 won't buy the kids bicycles or fancy clothes for the little girls—or the vacations they don't ever get." And then:

"That's what hurts us most," he said, adjusting his glasses. "It's pretty hard to convince kids you aren't able to give them the same things some others get."

BPW to Ask Democrats for Equal Rights Plank

Fort Worth, Tex., July 7 (U.P.).—The National Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs convention here today decided to ask Democratic Party leaders to include an equal rights amendment in the 1948 party platform.

A voice vote carried on a motion to send a telegram to the Democratic leaders meeting tomorrow in Philadelphia to draft the party platform. Delegates to the convention here also agreed to send separate telegrams to the central committee members of every State.

The motion was placed before the convention by Judge Sarah T. Hughes, Dallas. The Republican Party was commended by delegates for its equal rights amendment stand.

A plan to set up a home for retired business women was abandoned by a vote of 499 to 329.

Meanwhile, representatives from Washington, D. C., Boston and San Francisco were at the convention in an effort to gain the 1950 meeting for their cities.

Delegates to Be Active In Public Affairs

Fort Worth, Tex., July 7 (AP).—The National Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs made it clear at its biennial convention today that its members intend to take an active part in politics, local, State and national.

To the accompaniment of cheers and rebel yells, delegates adopted a five-plank political action platform introduced by Mrs. Sara Sparks of New York City, chairman of the public affairs committee. It asked that:

1. Every member of the organization enroll in the political party of her choice.

2. Every member volunteer to do tasks at her party election, district or precinct office.

3. Every member be identified with a local political party club.

4. Every member be informed of her State election laws.

5. Every member vote in the primaries if primaries are held.

Mrs. Sparks told the delegates, "It is my conviction that we have taken a first fundamental step in making women influential in the selection of qualified candidates for public office.

"I do not feel we should vote for a woman for President or other high office for that reason alone," Mrs. Sparks asserted. "But all things being equal, if a woman is as qualified as a man, I would vote for her."

Summer Season's Jousts In Tennis and Sailing Keep Southampton Busy

By Mary Van Rensselaer Thayer

SOUTHAMPTON, N. Y., July 7.—Now that the holiday is over, Southampton has settled to summer's round of competitions—jousts of skill for every age and degree of physical activity. Saturdays in Shinnecock Bay yachtsmen have their innings. There is a weekly race until Labor Day when winners points are totalled toward capturing the Chester Dale Trophy. Teenagers sailing the same family craft struggle for the Morgan O'Brien Preston Trophy given in memory of the late Judge O'Brien's grandson who was killed in the war. There are only 24 racing boats, all 18-foot lightning class sloops. Most frequent victor is Paul Shields, Gary Cooper's step-pa-in-law, with yacht club vice commodore, Goodhue Livingston, jr., usually rounding the buoy second.

The commodore is Chester Dale, once owner of one of this country's most comprehensive and valuable collection of modern paintings. Before many of his treasures were sent to Washington's National Art Gallery, Chester, short of wall space, built covers over his spare room bath tubs, stacked Renoirs and Derains atop plumbing with terrifying nonchalance.

Water Skiing Is Launched

WATER skiing is more a sport for placid tropical waters but it is being launched here this season. Over in Peconic Bay three speed boats are set to tow skiiers. So far the chief local enthusiasts are Lucille, former wife of George Vanderbilt, and her perpetual squire, Roonie Balcolm, who was once married to Millicent Rogers.

Racquet wielding kids have been hopping around the Meadow Club courts in a junior doubles tournament. Tennis week high spot of Southampton's season starts in August. The smooth grass courts are pampered for the occasion and most of the ranking amateur stars turn up. Among the famous tennis personalities due for the festivities as well as the tournament will be Frank Parker, Bob Talbert, Bob Falkenberg, Pancho Gonzalez, the new West Coast marvel, his fellow Californian, Edward Moylan; Miami's Gardner Mulloy and Don McNeill from New Jersey.

Laundry Hamper Discloses Jewels

NO Southampton summer could be complete without a sensational jewel robbery. Usually a mess of glittering baubles is picked up in a beach club cabana, but occasionally a more ambitious theft is engineeered. This season's robbery came early—the dawn after the Fourth. Mrs. William Gaynor, hostess at the summer's most decorative party, retired at 5 a. m., tossed her jewels on a dressing table. When she woke some hours later they had vanished. Late at night the valuables were discovered in the laundry hamper wrapped in a soiled towel. Obvious deduction was that they were to be retrieved later from the laundry truck. The jewels included an enchanting, fabulously expensive diamond necklace, fringed with perfectly matched graduated pear-shaped pearls which had belonged to Mrs. Gaynor's mother, the beautiful Mrs. William K. Vanderbilt.

Most desirable property hereabouts is obviously ocean front, but the Bill Greves, successfully contrary, attract the resort's most entertaining set to their pool. The pool, plus a handsome dressing room and play house, is built well inland a few hundred yards from their Halsey Neck Lane house. It is salt water-filled with the temperature kept cosily at 73.

The Greves, old Riviera hands, once became citizens of tiny Lichtenstein. The tiny principality has no income tax and makes a handy resident spot for those living permanently in Europe. During the war the Greves returned and, for obvious patriotic reasons, gave up their adopted country.

Staying with them is Stanton Griffis, former ambassador from Poland, who will probably pick up his new Cairo post before autumn.

Down the road Marshall Field, jr., has been relaxing between convention journalistic chores with his mother, handsome Mrs. Diego Suarez. Diego Suarez, a Colombian citizen, will be counsellor of his country's embassy in Paris during the approaching United Nation's session. Winthrop Aldrich, lord and master of the Chase National Bank and possible Secretary of the Treasury should Dewey be elected, flew in in his private plane for a more or less incognito visit over Bridgehampton way. Minor excitement is the radio performance scheduled for August 1 by Al Smith's popular son-in-law, John Warner. John, who once headed New York State's constabulary, is an accomplished pianist and will play a half hour on WNYC's keyboard masters' program.

Women, With Balance of Power, May Elect Next President

By Herb Altschull

Philadelphia, July 7 (AP).—"Women hold the balance of power and will elect the next President of the United States."

That view was expressed today by Mrs. India Edwards of Harwood, Md., executive director of the Women's Division of the Democratic National Committee. She said she is "convinced women will cast more ballots than ever before."

"And remember," she added, "there are 1,700,000 more women voters than men."

"There are eight Democratic women running for Congress," she continued. "It may be wishful thinking, but I believe all of them will be elected."

Mrs. Edwards said the increased interest of women in politics is "amazing."

"Women are interested in issues now," she added. "They have very definite opinions on such important issues as housing and inflation. They just plain don't like the refusal of the Eightieth Congress to do anything to curb the high cost of living."

Power for Peace

Mrs. Edwards added:

"Women now seem to realize they really wield a great power in building for peace. They feel that if they had taken more of an interest in politics in the early 1920's when they first were entitled to vote, they might have made a different and better shape in the pattern of events."

Women have had a significant part in shaping the program of the Democratic convention. Mrs. Edwards has been working on arrangements, Representative Mary T. Norton of New Jersey is the chairman of the powerful credentials committee and Mrs. Dorothy Vredenburgh is secretary of the convention.

In all, 509 women will be delegates and alternates to the convention—the greatest number of women delegates in the history of United States political conventions.

Mrs. Boone in Hollywood

Mrs. Isabelle Boone, formerly of Washington, is now living in Hollywood, Calif., where she is finishing a manuscript. During her 10-year residence in Washington, Mrs. Boone was active in art and educational circles. Before her departure, farewell parties were given for her by Mrs. Huron Lawson, Mrs. Riley Moore, Mrs. Bertha Ann Murray and others.

Mme. Bonnet Hostess At Embassy Tea

By Elizabeth Maguire

Mme. Bonnet received her tea guests yesterday on the terrace at the French Embassy. The hostess, in a Dior creation of embroidered shantung, was assisted in receiving by the Military Attache, Gen. Maurice Mathenet, and the Counselor, Jean Daridan. The Ambassador was unable to attend, as he had been felled by too much air-cooling, mixed with tropical breezes of the District.

Mme. Bonnet's party had the same chic touch her costumes have. A large silver bowl of polished red cherries centered a table of petit fours and cheese puffs. Champagne and orange juice were served with other refreshments.

The coolest room in Washington, decoratively speaking, is Mme. Bonnet's solarium. French windows from floor to ceiling are hung with white linen draperies on one side and white and pale green chintz on another. Walls and ceiling are whitewashed and the floors are covered with grass rugs. Pale yellow and gray striped material cover the furniture. Flowers placed around the room are red, blue and every other color. Mme. Bonnet made the draperies herself, and the slip covers were made by members of the household.

Among the guests at the tea was the Irish Minister, Sean Nunan, whose native wit makes him an oasis in the usual round of commonplace comment. The popular Minister of Syria and Mme. El-Khouri were also there, and the Ambassador of Russia, Alexander S. Panyushkin.

A strikingly pretty face at the fete was that of Mme. Pierre Rouliot, wife of the Assistant Naval Attache at the French Embassy. She was talking with Capt. Francois Thore, and her husband, Commander Rouliot.

Other guests included Sir Charles Medhurst of the British Air Mission and Lady Medhurst, Mrs. David S. Barry, Mme. Roger Leguay, who has just arrived from Paris and loves the climate here; Mrs. Raymond Clapper, Mrs. Harold Hinton, Senator and Mrs. J. William Fulbright, Mrs. John Steelman, Col. and Mrs. Curt C. # State of Israel Representative Gives Party

Washington's continuous entertaining was enhanced yesterday by a new host and hostess. The Special Representative of the State of Israel and Mrs. Elihu Epstein entertained for the first time in their new official capacity. A reception was given by them between the hours of 5 and 7 in honor of the Special Representative of the United States to the State of Israel and Mrs. James G. MacDonald.

Ambassadors, counselors and first secretaries and their wives from the 15 legations and embassies, which have given full recognition to the new country, were invited to the reception. These included diplomats of Guatemala, Nicaragua, Costa Rica, Panama, Venezuela, Uruguay, Finland, Czechoslovakia, Bulgaria, Hungary, Romania, Poland, the Union of South Africa, Russia, and Yugoslavia.

Dr. Epstein came to this country about three years ago as an observer of the Jewish Agency at the San Francisco Conference of the United Nations. The State of Israel has de facto recognition in the United States, and as such enjoys semi-diplomatic privileges.

The former office of the Jewish Agency for Palestine, at 2210 Massachusetts ave., is now the seat of the State of Israel Mission in the United States, and it was there that yesterday's party was held.

Among the guests were the Secretary of Agriculture and Mrs. Charles Franklin Brannan, the Postmaster General and Mrs. Jesse Monroe Donaldson, the Special Counsel to the President and Mrs. Clark M. Clifford, the Secretary to the President and Mrs. Matthew J. Connelly, the former Secretary of the Treasury, Henry Morgenthau, jr.; the Secretary to the President and Mrs. Charles G. Ross, and the Administrative Assistant to the President and Mrs. David K. Niles.

From the State Department came Mr. and Mrs. Joseph C. Satterthwaite, Mr. and Mrs. Fraser Wilkins, Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Fierst, Mr. and Mrs. Michael J. McDermott, Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Merriam, Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Maddison and John A. Waldo.

Norwegian Envoy Solves Problem of Flag Protocol

By Marie McNair

IF YOU WONDERED why the flags of some 60 foreign nations were flying all over town on July 4, go to the Norwegian Ambassador, Wilnelm Munthe de Morgenstierne, for the answer.

As acting dean of the Diplomatic Corps, Mr. Morgenstierne was called upon to settle a problem of international relations. The question which perplexed the Finnish Minister, Dr. K. T. Jutila, and a number of diplomats comparatively new to Washington was this: On which United States national holidays does a foreign nation do honor to the occasion by flying its own flag?

Ambassador Morgenstierne settled the poser with dispatch. At the Norwegian Embassy the flag goes up on Washington's Birthday, Memorial Day and the Fourth of July.

The dean of the Diplomatic Corps, because he has been here longer than any other Chief of Mission, is regarded as the "papa" of the group, gives counsel when it's asked for.

Actually Mr. Morgenstierne outranks in length of service the present dean, Dr. Juan Carlos Blanco, Ambassador of Uruguay since 1941. The Norwegian Ambassador first came to Washington as Minister in 1934. But because Norway was elevated to an Embassy only in 1942, Mr. Morgenstierne is second in line.

MRS. JOHN FARR SIMMONS, wife of our Ambassador to Ecuador, hasn't changed a bit since she was a Washington debutante. I caught a glimpse of her the other day in a blue summer chambray, her pale gold hair caught up on top of her head, not an extra ounce on her long, lithe figure. Here for a visit to her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Huston Thompson, Mrs. Simmons brought her two older sons with her, left blonde, baby Malcolm MacLaren Simmons with his father in Quito.

The boys, John and Huston, have been packed off to camp in upper New York State. But before leaving they attended a great family reunion in Pittsburgh to celebrate the 100th birthday anniversary of their great grandmother, Mrs. Samuel Thompson. For this special event Mrs. Thompson reversed the usual birthday present procedure and the youngsters came home, each with a hundred-dollar savings bond in their pockets.

From now until camp is over early in September Mrs. Simmons will be in and out of Washington, catching up with old friends.

TOWN TOPICS: Mr. and Mrs. Guy Martin are preparing to welcome an heir apparent in September. Mrs. Martin is the former Edith Kingdon Gould, daughter of Mrs. Kingdon Gould of New York.

Mr. and Mrs. Morris Cafritz are sailing July 30 on board the Queen Mary for Europe for a three weeks stay and no longer. It's quite possible that they'll fly down to Quito when they return for the inauguration on August 30 of the new President of Ecuador, tall, ruddy cheeked Galo Plaza, who was Ambassador to the U. S. A., a couple of years ago.

Lovely and lively Mrs. Edward Treglown, who suns herself at Nassau when she's not in D. C., has turned journalist for a Nassau newspaper. She covered the Republican National Convention, and is going back for the Democratic fracas on Monday.

Leila Marshall to Give Garden Party

The clubs and their presidents who will present brief programs are Omar Henry, Writers' League of Washington; Clara Manderschied, District Branch of the Pen Women; Anna Jesperson, Professional Writers; Parke Arnold, Free Lance Writers, and Leila May Taylor, Reader's Club.

Woman Is Astonished to Find This Column Miles Off the Beam, in Her Opinion, When Assessing Family Row Over Girl's Paycheck

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: You make such good sense ordinarily that I was astonished to find you miles off the beam in your reply of June 8 to the girl, 23, who registers "shock and horror" because her affluent parents made a scene, with father raving and mother weeping, when she banked her first paycheck instead of bringing it home to share with them.

You tell her (1) that there is valid cause for her answering outrage; (2) that they aren't interested in her earnings as such; (3) that their object is devious control of her life, which she cannot afford to permit, if she would develop normal adult personality health; and (4) conclude by advising her to break out of their clutches as best she can.

If she takes your advice and breaks away from family ties, she will learn that board and room elsewhere, in surroundings not nearly so pleasant, will cost considerably more than her parents ask, namely: one-third of her wages.

This girl speaks of herself as an ambitious responsible person, but she doesn't know the ABC's of simple economics. She is imbued with the philosophy that her parents owe her a living because she "didn't ask to be born." She is a parasitic individual, selfish to the nth degree. . . . C. R.

Man Takes Issue With Column, Too

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: Much impressed by your clear language, your fine discrimination, your keen analyses, I have been a great admirer of your writings; but I am compelled to disagree with your judgment expressed in your column of June 8.

To be sure, the parents' ranting was deplorably tactless and their severe censure of the girl unjustified; but even so, she seems to forget that she is an adult of 23, qualified to support herself, no longer entitled to feed on her parents' bounty without repayment.

Why should she continue to live at their expense, while selfishly banking all her earnings, thus showing no appreciation and no sense of obligation? It seems to me your counsel is unwise, in that it tends to endorse her grasping philosophy. J. B.

Brief Rebuttal Seems in Order

DEAR CORRESPONDENTS: Your letters are typical of many received since June 8, protesting my views expressed on that date, thus some further remarks seem in order.

These dissent opinions all insist that I should have counselled the girl in the fairness of making an equitable contribution to the family coffer, but in view of my limited space, I was obliged to deal directly with the essential conflict, in the hope of revealing to the whole family the real sore point implicit in the general hysteria.

The problem centers on the parents' unconscious drive to completely dominate (and keep infantile) their only child, who at 23 is unconsciously tensed to resist their purpose. She is fighting for the right to call her soul her own, though hardly aware of what she is fighting for, or against.

Parents' Stand Morally Unsound

THE PARENTS want strings on her wages to further their ends; and she counters by trying to hide out her earnings from them, much as a prisoner conserves rations, in the hope of making a break for freedom eventually. Not that she's figured this out, but it's obvious in her attitude, and just as obvious to her parents as to me, hence their wild uproar about her maneuver.

Ergo, I would have been missing the point entirely, led astray as most readers were by the parents' red-herring strategy, had I lectured in terms of economics and filial duty, as if the parents' purpose were morally valid. Confronted with a simple question of whether a young adult wage-earner should pay board while living at home, I would say, "Yes, as an exercise in responsibility, cooperation and self-respect,"—inasmuch as this arrangement generally prevails in middling-to-low income family groups. M. H.

Place cards may be made for the children's party by writing the name of each little guest on a cookie, using white icing and a pastry tube.

It is polite to give a reason when declining the invitation to an affair. It is a kindness being extended to you and should be answered with all courtesy possible.

Be on time for the party but do not come too far in advance of the time set that you inconvenience your hostess by being around when she is doing some last minute preparation.

Where to Sell Shoes

I have a number of pairs of excellent quality high heeled shoes. I cannot now wear high heels and would appreciate it if you can tell me of any place anywhere that would buy or handle such shoes. These are my very best shoes—some street and some evening shoes—and have had very little wear.
E. H. M.

Some second-hand clothing stores buy and sell shoes, but they say the demand for them is poor as compared with other type of clothing. These firms are listed under "Clothing—Bought and Sold" in the yellow section of the telephone book. You might check with them by telephone and find which stores are interested in buying shoes.

The bathtub in my apartment has a discoloration or ring which has defied my efforts to remove it. I have used household bleach, steel wool, scouring powder, etc. Any other suggestions?
N. M. C.

Have you left a chlorine bleach solution in the tub overnight in your efforts to remove the discoloration? Also, have you tried mixing kerosene with the household cleaner? Make a poultice of these two and leave it on the stain for several hours. Housewares sections of local department stores sell special preparations designed to remove stains from enameled plumbing fixtures. One of these might be successful. As a final resort, you might try a solution of oxalic acid, applied with a mop. Be sure to rinse it off well afterwards as it can be destructive to the finish if left on.

Can tile floors be painted satisfactorily? My bathroom floors are white tile, and need washing every day to keep their freshness. I would like to paint them black, then mottle them someway with gray and white? Can this be done? M. B. L.

An unsatisfactory color in glazed tile cannot be altered, for paint or similar finish will not adhere. Unglazed floor tile can sometimes be changed to black or darker color by staining with aniline dyes. One such dye called watersoluble nigrosine will produce a very dark blue. Tannic chloride in tincture of iron will produce black. Inquire about these through a large drug store or wholesaler of chemicals. Tests to show the effects of these can be made on an obscure corner of the floor before treating the whole thing.

Can you tell me how to remove the spots on my gray broadloom rug made when someone stepped on lipstick and then walked on the rug? The rug has been vacuumed a number of times since then. R. H. R.

If this stain has worked deep into the pile of the rug it will be difficult, if not impossible to remove it. However, you might lighten it by this method: First work clear vaseline into the stain to soften the lipstick. When thoroughly softened, sponge with carbon tetrachloride, being sure to change the cleaning area of the cloth frequently so it will absorb the maximum amount of stain.

Continue sponging until all vaseline has been removed. If some color remains, it may be removed by sponging with alcohol. Be sure to test the effect of the alcohol on an inconspicious spot before applying to the stain. One other thing: Unless the rug is brand new or has just been cleaned, the carbon tetrachloride will leave the cleaned spot lighter than the rest of the rug because the dirt will have been removed with the stain from the area.

Where can I purchase a cook book for institutional use? Something with quantities for 100 or more. R. M.

A large book store on F Street has "Food for Fifty," by Fowler, and can order for you "Quantity Food Service Recipes," compiled by the American Dietetic Association. You can reach this store by calling REpublic 3913.

Will you tell us in what order to place the following names on a tomb stone to be purchased for a cemetery lot? Our mother died in 1911 and was buried by her brother in a lot. He died in 1940 and his wife in 1942. Space is to be left for their two surviving daughters. We have contributed toward putting a stone where they are all three buried in the same lot but wonder what the order should be. M. C. H.

There does not seem to be any set rule to be followed in inscribing monuments. In your case, it would seem the most logical placing of the names, would be in the order of their deaths. If the stone had been put up in 1911, that is the way the names would have appeared. Since the trend these days is to get away from useless inscription on stones, you would probably not wish to try to show on the stone the relationship of those buried there. Just inscribing the name with the year of birth and death is considered sufficient.

Can you suggest how to make a rug out of worn out but still colorful socks for boys. Should they be cut in strips or what, for a braided rug? B. H. O.

Cut the socks in strips for a braided rug. To eliminate the necessity for sewing short pieces together, you can cut the socks in a spiral so that, when cut, each sock is one continuous strip. The width you cut the socks will, of course, depend upon the weight of the socks.

WAXING linoleum floors is a good way keep them shining, make cleaning easier, and preserve them. Self-polishing wax is a practical and easy-to-use kind for linoleum, and is the only type that should be used on asphalt tile flooring

For Pleasant Driving

SUMMER driving, especially on long trips, can be a pleasure or an exhausting experience, depending on whether you know how to drive in comfort. Valuable tips on how a woman can make summer driving a real pleasure and look pretty while doing it are contained in an article in the July issue of Good Housekeeping magazine, which states:

"When you drive, take it easy. Sit well back in the seat, so that your hips and back are comfortably supported by the cushions. Keep head up, spine straight, shoulders down in an easy, natural position. Don't strain your head forward to see the road. Don't hunch your shoulders, arch your back, tense every muscle. Don't take a long trip with three in a seat. A driver should have room to change position occasionally.

"When you stop for gas, get out and stretch, to relax taut muscles. Massage your hands, stiff from gripping the wheel, and shake them vigorously. And now and then it is wise to take time out for a soft drink or a snack. This rests you, renews your energy.

"Have your sun glasses and eye lotion with you in case of need. When you can, rest your eyes by cupping them in your palms and looking into darkness. Or do some simple eye exercises. As you drive, one arm and one side of your face may be exposed to the sun for hours. Take along sun-tan lotion to prevent a burn. Use a good oil lipstick, and, if lips are sensitive a pomade, to prevent sun-parched lips.

"Carry a separate case filled with your particular cosmetic needs, so that you can use them conveniently at any time. Don't forget toilet soap and towels, and you will find a miniature clothes and hairbrush handy. Be sure to have a supply of cotton balls and skin freshener. You'll need them for your face-cleaning routine, and it's always refreshing on hot, sticky days to swab neck, wrists and inside the elbows with a cool liquid.

"Arrange to have a warm bath and brisk cologne rub every evening before dinner. Take special pains to cleanse and cream your face thoroughly, to avoid a weather-beaten skin at journey's end."

Cooking Cues

When making jellies and preserves, keep a small saucer on the side of the stove to hold the spoon after stirring the mixture. If rested on the stove the sirup frequently bakes to the stove and this hardened mass is difficult to remove.

Even if you rarely bake and usually have the baker's bread, don't forget he has many varieties to offer and vary the meal by serving different kinds of bread during the week. Many dinners fairly cry out for rye bread and yet the housewife will stick to the same old white bread when the darker flours would be nutritious.

MERCOLIZED WAX CREAM

When used as needed by Blonde or Brunette will help keep your skin as pretty as your skin can be. For nearly 40 years Mercolized Wax Cream has been sold all over the world and each year the sales increase. This proves that those who use Mercolized Wax Cream are satisfied. Try it and be convinced. Use only as directed.

Be Your Charming Self

Follow Simple Posture Rules To Walk and Sit Grecefully

By Ida Jean Kain

WHAT'S wrong with the familiar advice "Be yourself"? It seems that two very important modifiers are missing. "Be your most charming self," is the way Phyllis Bell of Washington, D. C., puts it, and Miss Bell should know . . . she directs a self-improvement course as well as a modeling school in the Nation's Capital.

Our authority readily admits it may not be fair to judge a book by its cover—but, she says, it certainly isn't smart to have the cover unattractive. As she tells the girls who come to her for training: "Don't fall into the 'people like me once they get to know me' category. No one should have to carry on an excavation into your character before getting to like you. Make a good impression in the first place—make it pleasant for others to like you."

Developing this most-charming self involves many factors besides personality—figure, clothes, skin, etc.—but to Phyllis Bell posture comes before all the rest, because it tells so much about us. "In poor posture all kinds of complexes show up," she points out, "while good posture can banish many personality problems. The girl who is graceful and poised can be relaxed and self-confident—she need not nervously try to compensate for a lack of these essential qualities."

"In bad posture, anything can happen," declares Miss Bell. "Take walking. The most common posture faults are upper legs apart, head thrust forward. There can be no balance or ease in such a walk . . . Bad walks are really much more difficult than a beautiful walk," she explains. "There are so many things to do in a bad walk, whereas a good walk is simple—the body follows a natural, easy pattern: toes pointing straight ahead, knees almost brushing, legs swinging freely from hip joints, shoulders easy, hips firmly under, body in perfect alignment and quiet, not jogging up and down."

And when the time comes to be seated—"So many people sit down awkwardly," our authority laments. "They focus their eyes on the chair seat, approach it head down, take a straddle stance, and then come up for air and look at the other person.

"The right way is so much simpler, and easier on the eyes. Glance at the chair casually, walk over to it looking at the person to whom you're talking, cross your legs easily as you sit down. If you cross legs later, never cross them right at the knee—that makes the foot jut out. And if your skirt rides up over the knees, slide it down gently with a wrist motion—don't tug at it self-consciously. Remember that to be graceful you should use as few gestures as possible and avoid any unnecessary movements or fussy display."

Well, there you are. Experts tell us that the easy way to break a bad habit is to form a new one, so why not get started on the beautiful new ones Phyllis Bell has passed along?

Pearson Column Starts Political Controversy

Edgar H. Berry of Hagerstown, Md. gave me a hot hour's work with my reference books—all because he reads my colleague on the opposite page, Drew Pearson.

Pearson recently wrote that "no Democratic Vice President who became President because of death in the White House has ever been re-elected."

Ed immediately wanted to know who these men were, and assigned me to the task of finding out.

After diligent research, I'm convinced that Mr. Pearson was either kidding or trying to find out whether his readers were paying attention. Harry S. Truman is the first Democratic Vice President who ever moved into the White House because of his running mate's death.

If I'm wrong, I'll no doubt hear from you by return mail. But as far as I can ascertain, John Tyler and Andrew Johnson were the only other Vice Presidents who could possibly qualify under Pearson's terms—and then only by stretching a point.

Both men at one time belonged to the Democratic party, but both left it to run for the Vice Presidency under other labels. Tyler ran as a Whig, with William Henry Harrison; and Johnson deserted the Democrats to accept a position on the "Union" ticket with Republican Abraham Lincoln.

Whig Zachary Taylor was succeeded by Whig Millard Fillmore; Republicans Garfield, McKinley and Harding were succeeded by Chester A. Arthur, Teddy Roosevelt and Calvin Coolidge, respectively, and finally Democrat Roosevelt was succeeded by Democrat Truman.

Now that the Eisenhower boom seems to be collapsing, perhaps Mr. Truman will get a chance to put Pearson's theory to the test.

SUGGESTION

Al Small of 4109 Russell ave., Mount Rainier, Md., has a suggestion which I'd like to pass along to any interested institutions.

He points out that many Government and private offices get a constant stream of mail—and therefore postage stamps—from far-off places.

For the most part, the stamps are thrown away. But Al thinks that they might be of interest (or value) to worthwhile institutions like Children's Hospital or the Police Boys Clubs.

If they are, we could ask District Liners to send their stamps to groups which request them. So if any of these organizations want to start a stamp collection, here's their chance to speak up.

INFORMATION PLEASE

Mable N. Wright of 4659 Benning rd. ne. has my sympathy. She's been trying to remember the words to an old song—and you know how frustrating that can be.

The song has to do with the guy who took a gal out to chow, figuring that his 50 cents would be enough to pay the check (silly boy).

He starts by saying, "I thought two oysters sure, her appetite would stay; She said she wasn't hungry, but this is what she ate."

And then he goes on to enumerate "a dozen of raw, a plate of slaw, a fancy Boston roast"—et cetera. It's the et cetera that stumps Mabel.

But she does remember what the waiter did when he saw that 50 cents. "He tore my clothes, broke my nose" and in various other ways expressed his keen disapproval.

Anybody who can recall all the words is implored to set Mabel's mind to rest.

PERSONAL NOTES

Melvin Smith, Yellow Cab No. 786: Thanks for the book explaining sidereal time. I never realized that since "Lo equals Tg minus Tm; and Lo' equals Tg minus Tm; therefore Lo minus Lo' equals Tm' minus Tm." Now that this is all clear to me, you can have your book back, providing you recommend some equally interesting light summer reading to take its place.

TWIN BILL

Hal Feyling of 812 I. st. se. asks whether we noted the recent billing at the Leader Theater:

"The Daltons Ride," "Abroad With Two Yanks."

LIFE-IS-LIKE-THAT DEPT.

Harold B. Barnett of 6239 N. 19th st., Arlington, Va., was recently reelected president of the local New York State Society.

Under his administration, the society gave $2000 to the George Washington University Hospital. Two weeks ago, with Harold officiating, a plaque was unveiled in the "New York State Society Room."

And as fate would have it, the first patient in that room is none other than Harold Barnett.

Hospitalized with a minor ailment, Harold seems to be perfectly normal (according to my curbstone diagnosis). When I called to see how he was getting along, he greeted me with an enthusiastic:

"Boy, what a wonderful hospital this is—prettiest nurses in town!"

NEW YORK.—Jack Kapp, head of Decca Records, has been busy entertaining a record manufacturer from Belgium. Their conversation has been unintelligible, because the Belgian speaks French and doesn't understand English, while Kapp speaks English and doesn't understand French . . . Kapp manufactures the "How to Speak French" recordings, and the Belgian manufactures "How to Speak English" recordings. Both, however, have been too busy to spend any time listening to their own language-lesson albums.

Howard Hughes, who acquired control of RKO from Floyd Odlum, soon may merge his personal movie business with that of RKO. It may be arranged by a contract between Hughes and the RKO subsidiary which produces Radio Pictures. In determining the price to be set on Hughes' properties, including equipment and stories, Hughes would appoint one appraiser, Radio Pictures would appoint another appraiser and the two appraisers would appoint a third, impartial one . . . RKO stock has gone up since Hughes took control. And this increase, together with the sale of Hughes' own film properties, may be enough to have made the astute Hughes boss of RKO with but little additional money.

Pierre Monteux, the conductor, took his troupe to Holland recently. They were feted at court and had tea with Princess Juliana. A 19-year-old girl with the Monteux troupe mentioned Eleanor Roosevelt and one of Juliana's ladies-in-waiting suggested that Mrs. Roosevelt would make a fine President . . . "No," said the American girl, before she realized that this was the country ruled by Wilhelmina and Juliana, "I don't believe any woman should head a government."

Walter Reuther's family suspects that the malaria from which he is now recuperating may have come from a blood transfusion he received . . . Emil Jannings, the German film star who made some Nazi films and has been in exile in Brazil, has obtained Austrian citizenship and expects to be on the Viennese stage this fall . . . Lyda Baarova, who was barred from the Austrian stage because she was Goebbels' "friend," is back in Vienna. She fled from Prague after the Red coup there . . . Eleanor Roosevelt, who was mentioned this week as a possibility for the Vice Presidency, was invited to address the Democratic Convention. Mrs. Roosevelt declined because of the "pressure of business" at the U. N.

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

Porter Guest on Truman Yacht

By Drew Pearson

There was great excitement aboard the President's yacht on a recent trip down the Potomac when Paul Porter, former OPA boss, turned up among the guests.

Pearson

Anxiously, a White House aide asked Truman:

"Who invited him, Mr. President? Paul Porter is a spy for the Eisenhower people. He's a vice chairman of the Americans for Democratic Action, which is all-out for the nomination of Eisenhower."

"Oh, don't worry about Paul," replied Truman impishly. "He's all right. In fact, it's the other way around. He's a spy for me in the Eisenhower camp."

Dan Tobin Wooed

Gruff, likable Dan Tobin, boss of the AFL Teamsters Union, always calls on AFL colleagues during visits to Washington. In New Deal years this was frequent, for Dan was a great friend and close adviser of FDR's.

Last week Tobin's AFL cronies were particularly anxious to see him, and get the lowdown on his conference with President Truman. They knew Dan had been suddenly "summoned" to the White House and they wanted to know whether Truman had been successful in bringing the rebellious teamster back into the Democratic fold.

However, Dan blew in and out of Washington as if he were traveling incognito. He saw no one except Truman.

Reason was that the big shot labor leader was more than somewhat confused after the President, who desperately needs Tobin's support in his nomination and election drive, turned the ultraviolet charm ray on him during a private "audience."

Reason behind Tobin's White House summons, of course, was his press statement that AFL President Bill Green wasn't speaking for the Teamsters Union when Green declared labor couldn't support the Republican Dewey-Warren ticket. Also the White House grapevine reported Tobin was sore at Truman for not consulting with him, as did FDR.

Truman Coos to Tobin

In the background, also, was the close kinship between Dave Beck, Tobin's top lieutenant on the West Coast, and Dewey's running mate, Earl Warren of California. The AFL teamsters have always been in the Democratic column, but this year it looks like the West Coast branch, at least, will go Republican, due to the Warren influence.

Meanwhile, here is a report on the Truman-Tobin talk which may interest Dan's AFL colleagues.

Truman didn't discuss political fine points, except to say that he hoped the Teamsters Union would continue to exert its influence for "candidates friendly to labor," as it did during New Deal years.

"I realize I have been remiss in not calling on you and other responsible labor leaders for advice more often," Truman halfway apologized, "but I think you realize I haven't had the time or opportunity to do this, due to the overwhelming obligation of other things, chiefly international affairs.

"It's going to be different from now on, Dan," he continued, "and I want you to know that you are always welcome at the White House as long as I am here. Your advice has always been welcome in the past and I am sure that we will continue to operate on the old standard after November."

Tobin didn't commit himself. But he did agree with Truman on one thing—that the last Congress should be blasted for blocking public housing and other liberal measures. Other than that, the teamsters' boss made no promises.

Merry-Go-Round

New GOP chairman, Congressman Hugh D. Scott of Pennsylvania, sounded just a bit like Nazi propagandist Joseph Goebbels back during the war years. Declared Scott at a Lincoln Day dinner February 12, 1943: "It is time for the Republicans to take over. We are the best stock. We are the best people." . . . Governor Dewey will spend most of his time between now and Labor Day in Pawling, N. Y., preparing for his campaign. Republican leaders from all over the country will gather at Pawling to confer with him. . . . A strong move is under way to name Senator Joe O'Mahoney of Wyoming as Truman's running mate in Philadelphia. O'Mahoney could do more to offset Governor Warren's popularity in the West than Governor Mon Wallgren of Washington, though the old Al Smith story lurks in the background. . . . If fighting in the Holy Land is resumed, the Arab armies are in for a big surprise. The new state of Israel now has a trained air force, tanks and armored cars.

Under the Dome

Maddest man in the Republican Party today is Congressman Charles Halleck of Indiana. Halleck considered himself a leading candidate for Vice President on the Republican ticket—until Governor Dewey passed him by. What Halleck is so mad about is the way Dewey outsmarted him. Halleck admits Dewey never promised him the Vice President's job but some of Dewey's hangers-on did. Halleck thought he was a grown-up politician until now . . . Governor Dewey will begin his first Nation-wide tour of the presidential campaign on September 12. He will rest (as much as possible) in New York State until then . . . The "boys in the backroom" charting President Truman's renomination drive in Philadelphia will be Democratic Chairman J. Howard McGrath, Federal Security Administrator Oscar Ewing and Undersecretary of Interior Oscar Chapman. . . .

Capital Chaff

First convictions in the I. G. Farben trials of German industrial war criminals will be handed down next month. All the evidence is in . . . Irving Kaufman will reconvene the Federal grand jury soon to seek new indictments of unregistered lobbyists and pressure groups . . . Lee Pressman, former general counsel of the CIO, has filed for Congress as a Henry Wallace candidate from Brooklyn.

Only Outlook

I do not like the loneliness . . . That fills my room at night . . . When day is done and when I know . . . My friends are out of sight . . . I have to live in solitude . . . With foolish fantasies . . . Or gather my companionship . . . From books and memories . . . And that is difficult to do . . . Because my joy depends . . . Upon the opportunity . . . Of being with my friends . . . I have to hunt for happiness . . . When I am all alone . . . And usually I cannot find . . . The kind to call my own . . My room is filled with loneliness . . . Until the night is gone . . . And I may have my best of friends . . . To share another dawn.
